A ROW IN THE HOUSE.

The Hawaiian Dispute Continued by Congress.

BOUTELLE ASSAILS CLEVELAND.

The Senate Refers the Message to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The House was in an ugly frame of mind today. The Republicans were in fighting temper over the Hawaiian situation when the House met and the row opened immediately.

Cockran's resolution of yesterday was presented and hurriedly referred to the committee on rules.

Then came a sharp skirmish on Boutelle's resolution. By means of this resolution Boutelle succeeded in getting an opportunity to address the House, but his philippic against the administration was suddenly cut short by the action of the speaker in deciding the point of order to which Boutelle was speaking in his favor, and referred the resolution to the committee, under the rules.

Consideration of the urgent deficiency bill was then resumed and some very exciting scenes were enacted before it was finally passed.

Amendments were also adopted appropriating $[illegible] for extra mileage for members and senators, $40,000 for stationery and about $25,000 to pay the employes of the House and Senate a month's pay.

Immediately after the reading of the journal, Cockran offered a resolution which he sought to present yesterday, to appoint a special committee of seven to investigate the alleged attempt of the last administration to annex territory to the United States without consulting the House of Representatives, and to enquire into the rights of the House in the premises.

A dozen men on each side of the House rushed toward the bar of the House, crying for recognition. Boutelle, meantime, was wildly attempting to offer his resolution of yesterday as a substitute, but Cockran was recognized to move to refer the resolution to the committee on rules, and upon the motion he demanded the previous question.

The confusion was so great that the speaker appealed several times for order. Finally Breckenridge made the point of order that under the rules the resolution would go to the committee on rules without motion. The speaker held in accordance with the point of order and referred the resolution.

Breckenridge then tried to move to go into committee of the whole, but Boutelle was at the front demanding recognition for a privileged resolution, and the speaker was obliged to recognize him. The resolution Boutelle sought to introduce declared that the prerogatives of Congress had been invaded by the policy of the administration.

The row was now full under way. McCreary, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, made the point that the resolution was not privileged, and after some sharp words from each side, Boutelle got the floor to discuss the question as to whether the resolution was privileged.

"The message of the President, read here yesterday," he said, "indicates that this country may be involved in a war with a friendly power."

He held that it was the imperative duty of a Congress reluctantly recognized by the President, to disavow, discredit and repudiate a policy designed to bring the country into discredit in the eyes of the civilized world. [Great applause on the Republican side.]

"I care not whence this policy emanates," continued Boutelle, "whether from a Republican President or a Democratic usurper."

The confusion that followed the word "usurper" drowned the rest of the sentence. He continued to talk, amid loud cries for order and the speaker at last, with the aid of his gavel, brought the House to a standstill.

Before the gentleman from Maine had fairly launched his next philippic, Speaker Crisp fairly swept the ground from under him by deciding the point of order in accordance with the contention of McCreary, and referred the resolution directly to the committee on foreign affairs.

Boutelle and Dingley then attempted to argue the question relating to the decision of the chairman, but the speaker was obdurate. Amid great excitement he ordered all the gentlemen to take their seats, declaring that he would hear no gentleman until he had formally discharged his duty by deciding upon the point of order.

The speaker then delivered his decision and referred the resolution to the committee on foreign affairs.

Boutelle immediately appealed from the decision of the chair, and McCreary moved to lay the appeal on the table. The motion prevailed, [illegible].

THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19.—The special Senate discussion on the President's message was started by Hoar, whose motion to refer the message and accompanying documents to the committee on foreign relations is the pending question before the Senate, yielding to Gerry and Peffer.

The first named addressed the Senate in advocacy of the bill to repeal the Federal election laws, while Peffer argued in favor of the bill introduced by him yesterday appropriating money for immediate use in [illegible] and distributing [illegible] throughout the country.

The Senate was in executive session about an hour, engaged in an effort to clean up the nominations calendar before the holidays. Seventy-eight nominations were confirmed.

A DAKOTA TRAGEDY.

A Tale of Rejected Love, Murder and Suicide.

SIOUX CITY, Dec. 19.—A Journal special from Vermillion, S. D.: Kate Stefand had been keeping company with "Shorty" Babcock at Burbank, a village twelve miles from here, but at the request of her mother broke off the relationship. Today Babcock drove up to the millinery store where she was employed and said her mother was sick and had sent him to take her home. She refused to go unless her friend, Dolly Hemphill, also went.

Miss Hemphill consented, and the three got into a sleigh and drove out of the village toward the Stefand farm. On the road Babcock shot Miss Hemphill dead, and turned the pistol upon Miss Stefand, who escaped instant death by crawling under the sleigh seat, though receiving two dangerous wounds in her breast. Babcock then shot himself, dying instantly.

Gov. Waite Retreats.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 19.—Governor Waite today announced that he would not issue a call for an extra session of the legislature tomorrow, as previously announced. He will wait until after the business men's meeting, called for Thursday, to consider matters relating to the extra session, and it is understood he will be guided to a great extent by the resolutions they may pass.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

Some of Them Do Not Suit Senator Hill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The President sent the following nominations to the Senate: Wayne McVeagh of Pennsylvania, ambassador to Italy.

John P. Irish of California, naval officer, San Francisco.

James H. Forney, Idaho, United States attorney for the district of Idaho.

When the appointment list was handed Senator Hill, he exclaimed: "What, have not all the Mugwumps been provided for yet?"

THE RAILROADS.

The Gulf and the Union Pacific—A Bond Suit.

DENVER, Dec. 19.—Receiver Anderson of the Union Pacific, in an interview, said: "It is a mistake to take the Gulf away from the Union Pacific and no one will be especially benefited, in my opinion." He intimated that the three Union Pacific receivers could have been trusted to look after the interests of the entire system.

THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Announcement was made by C. P. Huntington today that he had sold the control of the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern to the Illinois Central.

Huntington said today: "I have sold my holdings in the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern for about $5,000,000."

THE DUTCH BONDHOLDERS.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Financial News has an interview with Boissevain, who has gone to Amsterdam to confer with the Dutch bondholders in the matter of the Union Pacific reorganization. He said he believed it would be possible to arrive at an amicable and fair understanding with the government on the Union Pacific matter during the present session of Congress.

OVERWHELMED WITH SURPRISE.

Mrs. Willis Finds Civilization in Hawaii.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 19.—A special dispatch to the Tribune from Ann Arbor, contains an interesting quotation from a letter written to Mrs. Geo. H. Mead, wife of one of the Ann Arbor university professors, by a member of the family in Hawaii. This is the quotation from the letter:

"Mrs. Willis told me herself how overwhelmed with surprise they were at finding the community here equal, if not far ahead of any city in the world in matters of culture, refinement, etc. 'Why, you have no idea,' she said, 'of the ideas that exist in America in regard to these islands.' I told Mr. Willis that Mrs. Dole was a lady who would grace the White House quite as well as the lady who now reigns there, or any other, and that is saying a good deal."

"Mr. Willis said as much and more, showing how strongly he was impressed with the character of the people in power. He was led to believe that a few low class whites and 'beachcombers' had done all this business of overturning the queen's government."

CHICAGO ELECTIONS.

The Democratic Candidate John P. Hopkins Chosen.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—In the special election for mayor to fill the unexpired term of Carter H. Harrison, John P. Hopkins, Democratic candidate was elected, over George B. Swift, Republican, by a majority of 1,287. Total vote: Hopkins (Democrat) 112,70[illegible]; Swift (Republican), 111,[illegible]; Britzius (Socialist-labor), 1,[illegible]; Wakeley (People's Silver), [illegible].

TO BE CONTESTED.

Late tonight the Republican city central committee decided to contest Hopkins's election. It is claimed by the committee that the official count will give the election to Swift.

The Murdered Messenger.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 19.—A special to the Republic from New Orleans: The agents of Wells-Fargo's Express say the express car in which Messenger Richardson was killed was not robbed and the company did not lose a cent. Richardson had a gold watch on him at the time of the murder, which the robbers did not disturb. The opinion of the express officials is that Richardson was either killed by some private enemy, or that the robbers, after killing him, were interrupted in the robbery by the train stopping at Dayton, which is an unusual thing.

ENGLISH NAVAL FORCES.

Gladstone Makes a Vigorous Speech for the Government.

He Shows that Great Britain is Still at the Head of the European Powers on the Sea.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—In the commons Lord George Hamilton, former first lord of the admiralty in the Salisbury government, provoked a battle royal between the liberals and conservatives by a motion for immediate consideration of a motion to make a considerable addition to the strength of the British navy, and to ask the government to state its intention in regard to the navy. Hamilton declared that the motion was not inspired by party objects.

Gladstone accepted the challenge, and responded with a great speech, which showed that he had lost none of his old-time vigor and force. He moved an amendment to the effect that the house relies on the responsible ministers of the crown to make adequate provision for the empire; urged that Lord Hamilton's motion was practically a vote of censure, and the object was to overturn the government.

England could complete a first-class warship in three years, against four years required by France. England had nineteen first-class battle ships, against fourteen of France and Russia combined. Eight of the French and Russian ships were of the wooden type, already discarded by England. The latter has 572,000 tons of fighting ships. France and Russia combined had only 319,000 tons. The British ships were larger and more powerful. If Britain built no more ships until 1897, her tonnage would still be greater than France and Russia, yet the government intended a still further increase in the strength of the British navy.

Gladstone expressed a hope that the house would not set a bad example, and marshal the party forces on the great question of imperial defense. There was cheering at his conclusion.

Balfour, conservative leader, denied Gladstone's taunt that the opposition was trying to make party capital out of the naval debate. In the future naval combat, Britain would have to fight opponents who stake nothing on the result, while England stakes all.

Finally, Lord George Hamilton's motion was rejected by a vote of [illegible] to 2[illegible]4. The result was followed by loud cheering from the liberals.

Mr. Gladstone's amendment, to the effect that the house of commons relies upon the ministers of the crown to submit fitting proposals in due time for strengthening the navy, or, in other words, that the house has confidence in the government, was adopted without division, causing more cheering from the liberals.

Anarchists Arrested.

BARCELONA, Dec. 19.—Of the six anarchists who swore to avenge Pallas, five have already been arrested, and will be court martialed. A feeling of alarm is rapidly extending throughout the city. Most of the theaters are closed, and trade is completely paralyzed.

Germany's Anti-Anarchist Law.

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The new anti-anarchist law provides imprisonment and penal servitude for people who incite others to use explosives. Persons found in the possession of chemicals for use as explosives for evil purposes are liable to fifteen years imprisonment, and persons causing explosions from ten years to penal servitude for life.

As a Result of Falsehoods.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—A dispatch to the Times from Paris says: The chamber, by a vote of 21[illegible] to 2[illegible], has annulled the election of Vicomte Hughes, deputy for [illegible], who defeated General MacAdaras, who is a naturalized Irishman and a Republican. It is contended that calumnies were circulated during the electioneering to the effect that MacAdaras was one of the Phoenix Park murderers, and it is claimed that these calumnies vitiated the Deputy's election.

Prize Fights Allowed.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 19.—The city council of Jacksonville, passed an ordinance permitting glove contests, with five-ounce gloves, for an unlimited number of rounds. A license of $50 is required. The chief of police is to supervise the affair.
