CARD FROM THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Salt Lake City, August 29, 1895.

Contributions in aid of the monument to be erected in Salt Lake City in memory of Brigham Young and the pioneers, should be sent by those charged with the duty of collection as frequently as possible to Heber M. Wells, Salt Lake City, who will see that same are properly acknowledged. We earnestly hope that all the people will respond generously and promptly to this call, to the end that the monument may be completed at the earliest possible date.

THE FLEA AND THE ACTRESS.

No Wonder That McGinlo's Face Wore a Set and Stony Expression.

Two fair actresses were conversing in a cafe on Powell street with the careless ease of their "profesh." Their economic woes thinned and audible to the companies of an adjoining table.

They were chatting about a sentimental scene to which both had appeared on the previous night.

"And just at that moment when he pressed my hand," said one, "and I was supposed to answer with a sob, a flea—oh, such a bite!—began to torture me between the shoulders. It was awful—simply awful. I could not remember my lines. I could not make the sobs come. All I could think about was that horrid flea. I whispered to him, 'Pick your nose quick.' And he thought I was fainting and put his hand behind my waist and whispered: 'What is the matter with you, and why are you walking such a horrid face? Are you ill?' What could I say? Nothing, of course, but fell back against a chair, and fortunately—oh, how fortunately!—hit it with my shoulder blade, just where that flea was. Then I swung to and fro as if in great mental agony, and that got in a little scratching. It was just heavenly and did not spoil the scene a bit. When I went off the stage I had my maid go over the place where that flea had bitten me with a hand brush. She said there was a spot there as big as a dollar."

"Mudjeska told me," said the other, "that once at the California in the balcony scene in Juliet, when she was extending both hands and saying, 'Romeo, Romeo, where art thou, Romeo?' she got a nip in the ankle that almost made her cry out. She could not stop. It would have spoiled the scene, and for the minute she had to suffer. One of the critics remarked in his paper next day that during the scene Mme. Modjeska's face wore a set and stony expression. And no wonder, poor lady!"

"When May Muir, who is very susceptible to fleas, is attacked," resumed the other, "she gets up and begins to dance. She can twist about and scratch anywhere while the dance is going on, and nobody notices her. Clara Morris told me that in the dying scene in 'Camille' a flea fastened on to her so viciously that if she had not reached back with her fan and disledged it she could not have died with any decency. San Francisco is an awful place for fleas."

"Awful, awful!" sounded her friend as she settled with the waiter.—San Francisco Call.

THE NEW SERVANT.

The Redheaded Girl Is Discouraged at Trying to Teach Her Things.

That redheaded girl on Baynes street lately undertook to teach the art of domestic service to a Polish maiden who had been placed green in the wilderness of Shumway street. The new girl was willing, but ignorant even of the English language. Instruction had to be imparted by objectlessons. The first lesson was in lighting the gas. The kitchen treasure was told by her new mistress that she was to turn the stopcock and then apply a match to the end of the pipe. She seemed to comprehend.

The next day the redheaded girl was attracted by a vile smell issuing from the kitchen. On investigation the Polish exile was found standing beside the cold water faucet, patiently lighting matches and holding them under the stream of water, which she had turned on, fully to see them immediately extinguished, leaving an odor of charred wood behind.

In the course of a year or two the redheaded girl hopes to be able to impress on the Hottentot mind the fact that all general principles are subject to modification in practice, and particularly that all iron pipes do not burst into flame when approached by a match.—Buffalo Express.

"Good Night! Good Night!"

There is a tender sweetness about some of our common phrases of affectionate greeting, simple and unostentatious as they are, which falls like dew upon the heart. "Good night!" the little one lies as, dressed in white, with shining face and hands, and prayers said, she toddles off to bed. Mates and brothers exchange the wish, parents and children, friends and friends. Familiar as we has become it of its significance to some of us, we repeat it automatically, without much thought. But consider. We are as voyagers putting off from time to time upon an uncharted sea. Our barks of life set sail and go onward into the darkness, and we, asleep on our pillows, take no such care as we do when awake and journeying by daylight. Of the perils of the night, whatever they may be, we take no heed. As unsleeping vigilance of one stronger and wiser than we, who is the eternal good. "Good and God spring from the same root, and use the same in meaning. "Goodby" is only "God be with you." "Good night" is really "God night," or "God guard the night." It would be a churlish benediction which these gentle forms of speech were ignored or did not exist. Alike, the happy and the sorrowful, day by day, may say "Good night."—Churchman.

Helping In a Trade.

Doherty, an Irish chief justice, used to tell how, when passing on his circuit, one of his chaise horses began to plunge violently, then run away. "Stop, stop!" he called out. "I really think that horse may never learn in harness before!"

"Begorra, your lordship's right! It's his first time, and the master says that if he brings your lordship safe to the end of the stage he'll buy him."

The Art at Force.

For several centuries the purse was thought were fastened to the girdle. A the purse gave the name from the fact that either there take the time to leave the purse from the belt, where it was secured by buckles, to cut the strings.

If the hair is falling out and turning gray, the glands of the skin need stimulating and color-food, and the best remedy and stimulant is Hall's Hair Renewer.

Confusion as to the choice of a blood-purifier is unnecessary. There is but one Sarsaparilla, and that is Ayer's. This important fact was recognized at the World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, being the only blood purifier admitted to be placed on exhibition.

To remove the constipated habit, the only safe treatment is a course of Ayer's Pills, followed by a laxative diet. Most other cathartics do more harm than good, therefore leading physicians recommend Ayer's Pills, especially as a family physic.

Clawson, deceased; Dora Young Hyde, Nora T. Dale, Spencer Clawson, administrator of the estate of Charlotte Young Clawson, deceased; Hyrum H. Young, Albert Young, Ann C. Young, Sophronia Young Young, Lucy Young, Ina T. Williams Cook, Oscar D. Young, Kimball Y. Kimball, Vilate Y. Cook, Joseph J. Young, a minor, and Charles S. Hyrum, administrator of the estate of John Young Barlow, deceased, Mary J. Young Barlow, Lucy Y. Orchell (Cannon), and Mary J. Young, defendants.

The People of the Territory of Utah send greeting: Unto the above named defendants:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the Territory of Utah, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within twenty days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county, or within thirty days if served out of this county, and in the district, or else judgment will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to have a decree of this court adjudicating the "code of testimony and contract of marriage existing between plaintiff and defendant, and awarding to plaintiff the care of the minor children of said marriage; also to grant plaintiff a decree of divorce, and for such other and further relief as may be deemed just and equitable in the premises.

Plaintiffs allege that they respectively claim one to be the several partners of said lot, which said partnership has fully set out and divulged in the complaint herein and also second to have an adjudged and the defendants claim an estate or interest therein adverse to the said plaintiffs, that the said plaintiffs have granted and predecessors in interest have occupied and possessed said premises, uninterrupted and adverse possession of all of said lot, rendering the claim adversely to the defendants, said claim is false, and adversely to all other persons for more than twenty years immediately preceding the commencement of this action; that the claim of the said defendants and each of them is without any right whatsoever, and that the said defendants have not, nor for either of them, any estate, right, title or interest whatever in said land and premises or any part thereof; that said plaintiffs claim of the defendants is wholly without right, and the said defendants create a cloud upon the plaintiff's title to said premises.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as required, the said plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded therein.

Witness, the Hon. Stephen C. Bevan, Judge, and the seal of the District Court of the Third Judicial District, in and for the Territory of Utah, this thirteenth day of September, A. D. 1895.

(SEAL.) H. T. PERRY, JR., Clerk.
