evidences of one of the contestants is manufactured from a back of physical endurance, or equals of his own weight, in the military parlance of the ring, is "knocked out." The Thompson-Carter fight was most without doubt my was a pugilistic contest to a finish.

Mr. Hume—If you and I, Mr. Jackson, were engaged in a discussion relative to the prowess of the South, and by some accident, or by reason of superior skill I should strike you a blow in the jaw and you not aware of it would be impossible, would you call that a finish match?

Witness—Well, I can't conceive of such a situation, but if so, why, I would wish to be considered as my being. A finish contest depends largely upon the previous agreement.

Mr. Jackson's statement prevailed laughter in the court, which was suppressed by Bailiff Hahon, and issues was taken till 2 o'clock.

DR. M'LAIN.

Dr. McLain was called for the prosecution and said he made a post mortem examination of Carter and found several bruises on the arms, head and face. Assisted by Dr. Christian he trepanned the top of the skull and found a depressed bone caused and a clot of blood at the base of the brain. In the opinion of the witness the injury to the brain was the result of the blow or the head violently striking the floor. Carter was in a healthy condition otherwise.

DR. CHRISTIAN.

Dr. Christian was called and testified for the prosecution that Carter was brought to St. Mark's hospital on the morning after the glove contest and lasted to add the patient was found to be suffering from a brain lesion of cerebral. Carter was in a totally unconscious condition and died within five minutes after being brought to the hospital. The witness made an examination of Carter and found him to be physically in the prime of condition. Also assisted in making the post mortem examination and found substantially the same conditions as those described by Dr. McLain. There were no indications that Carter was afflicted with any cerebral trouble. The blow which caused the hemorrhage of the brain was, in his opinion, and without, delivered on the side of the head.

"EXPERT" JACKSON.

John E. Hansen, another newspaper man, gave testimony similar to that of "Expert" Jackson, except that the former emphasized that the motion would be for what Wilson thought was twelve rounds.

MORE COLORED TROOPS COME.

Companies D, E and G of the Fort Bayard Attachment arrive today.

This afternoon witnessed the arrival in this city of the second squad of colored Federal troops. They were companies D, E and G of the Fort Bayard detachment of the Twenty-fourth infantry.

They came in on the Union Pacific between 2 and 3 o'clock, and soon afterwards were marched to Fort Douglas where by the disposition of army life they will be stationed for some time to come. Four more companies are scheduled to arrive here this evening. They, too, will immediately repair to the fort and thus complete the regiment. The first to arrive arrived this afternoon left Denver at 1 p. m. yesterday, breakfasted at Evanston this morning and took dinner at Ogden today. The trip was made without the occurrence of any unusual incident.

MRS. STEPHENS WINS

In Two Other Cases Against the New York Insurance Companies.

OPINIONS BY THE SUPREME COURT.

Attorney General Maloney Writes an Opinion in Regard to Fees in Certain Cases.

The Supreme court today rendered opinions in favor of Mrs. Elizabeth J. Stephens vs. the Home Fire Insurance company and equal in the Continental Fire Insurance company, both of New York. Justices Barton and Zane rendered the opinions and Justice Miner dissented. These are two of three suits by Mrs. Stephens and the decisions today are identically the same as I set in the first one given in the News a day or two ago.

FOR THE COMING ELECTION.

Transfers Cannot be Made Between Election Precincts in Justices' Precincts.

Today Attorney General Bishop transmitted the following opinion to William D. Livingston, attorney for Sanpete county:

Dear Sir—I am in receipt of your letter of October 14th, in which you ask to be advised upon the following:

"In Sanpete county the precincts which elect justices of the peace are so many instances divided into a number of election precincts. Could there in such instances be a transfer of registration as per section 16, chapter xxxvi of our late session laws, from one of such election precincts to another, if both election precincts are within the precinct which elect the same justice of the peace? I, e., does the election precinct govern the length of residence? If so is it not impossible to transfer registration so far as the coming election is concerned?"

In reply to your inquiry, it may be well to suggest that the present registration is an entirely new one, and that all of the Territorial law in relation thereto has been repealed by necessary implication by chapter xxxvi of the Laws of 1896.

Section 3 of said chapter provides: "It shall be the duty of the registry agent, between the hours of eight o'clock a. m. and eight o'clock p. m., of each day between the tenth and fourteenth days of September to may be designated by the board of county commissioners of their respective counties in each year in which there is a general election, to personally visit every occupied house in their respective precincts and to receive and register the names of all persons legally qualified and entitled to vote at such election," etc.

Said section also provides for registration on certain days thereafter for persons who were not registered in the house to house canvass. It will be observed by the section that the registration contemplated by the act is an entirely new one, and that the present law, with the 11th day of September, 1896. Section 9 of said act provides the form of oath which must be taken by each elector at the time of registration. In this he is required to swear that he shall have been a resident of the precinct in which he seeks to be registered, for sixty days at the time of the election which occurs on the 3rd day of November, 1896.

Section 18 of said act (being the one cited by you) provides:

"Any registered voter moving from one precinct to another, prior to the day to the election election, may apply to the registry agent before whom he has already been registered for the year, at any time prior to the last day of the registration of voters and have his name taken off the official register and receive from the registry agent a certificate to be called a registry certificate, under the signature of the registry agent, stating substantially that he was, on a certain day, duly registered in the official register of that precinct, and that his name has been erased as above required, which certificate will enable him to take his place in the register within the same county or city if removed recently, by such election; provided, it subsequently appears to the registry agent receiving the certificate, and to whom application is made for second registration, that the applicant will have resided such length of time within such county and precinct prior to the next ensuing election as is provided by law to entitle him to vote."

I must be borne in mind that this law was not enacted wholly with reference to the coming election, but was enacted as a general law upon the subject of registration, to continue in force from year to year unless modified or repealed.

I am of opinion that this section does not contemplate a transfer of registration at the coming election or the reason that it would be impossible for any person who was a resident of a given precinct on the 11th day of September, 1896, and who for reasons of such residence was entitled to register in such precinct and who afterwards removed into another precinct, to be a resident of the precinct in which he seeks to vote for the coming election, prior to the general election on November 3d. This would be impossible, because there are only 20 days in the interval between the 11th day of September and the 3rd day of November.

You say that in your county there are many precincts which elect justices of the peace which are divided into numerous election precincts. I do not know that it is what you mean by "the length of residence" in the last sentence of your letter, but you have used the word "residence" in the election section.

Section 2 of the election law, amending her things, provides: "That shall be the only legality again for such election purposes."

The elector resident must be taken to govern in all matters pertaining to nominations without reference to subsequent residence, and I, as per my, who is a resident of one election precinct, and who regularly voted in such precinct would be entitled to vote in such precinct. I know of no law which would entitle a voter to a transfer of his registration in any precinct of which he is not a resident.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully yours,
A. C. BISHOP,
Attorney General.

THE GREEN BAG.

Emil J. Blom and Jane Park of Mill Creek drew a marriage license today.

Judge Hunt today heard argument in the damage suit of William Black against the Rio Grande Western Railway company.

A certificate of incorporation was today issued by the secretary of state to Lucky Boy Gold Mining and Milling company.

County Clerk Stanton this morning issued the subpoenas to the Bitter Root Mountains probate. A decision will not be given out until noon today.

Louis H. Sims and Lula May Young of Fifth Dale were today given a marriage license, as were John T. Thompson of Vernal and Maud B. Kennedy of Provo.

Dr. Will C. Wentworth has commenced suit against the receivers of the Union Pacific Railway company to recover $10,000 damages for injuries received on North Temple street by reason of which he lost his left foot.

Frank Knox and Charles Jacobs, receivers of the Bank of Salt Lake, today entered suit against the Hecla Gold Mining company to recover $1,982.37, the agent of C. F. Loofbourow for $235.81, and against the Golden Reef Mining company to recover $238.07, with interest and costs in each case.

Roy Herring, about 16 years old, previously having pleaded not guilty to a charge of housebreaking, and whose case was set for trial yesterday, appeared before Judge Hiles today and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of petit larceny. Attorney N. V. Jones made a statement to the court on behalf of the boy, and his honor ordered him to be let come tomorrow afternoon to hear judgment.

BISHOP'S TABE NOTICE.

In consequence of the Conference of the Mutual Improvement associations, to be held in the Tabernacle on Sunday, October 25th, 1896, the bishops of the city wards are hereby requested to notify the Saints, by announcement in the Sunday schools and by other means at their commandment, that there will be no meetings in the city wards on Sunday evening next. The Sacrament will be administered in the Tabernacle on Sunday afternoon.

P. F. SHELBY HERE.

The Well Known Railroad Man at Our Visit a Self-Made Man in the City.

Mr. P. F. Shelby, at one time assistant general manager of the Union Pacific, with headquarters in Salt Lake, arrived in the city this morning and registered at the Templeton. Mr. Shelby resided here some seven years ago, at which time he became acquainted to the city as well as to the people, among whom he has many friends at the present time. His experience in railroading has been a varied and extensive one, and since leaving this city he has been connected with some of the railroad companies operating east of here.

Recently Mr. Shelby's health became very poor, and he took a trip to Europe where his condition became very much improved. In speaking of Salt Lake today he said he could not help it was one of the prettiest spots on the entire globe, but now he knows it. He is accompanied by his daughter, and resides at present in Columbus, Ohio.

POLICE COURT.

Gamblers, Tramps and Drunks Fined—Jackson Wrapped Away.

In the police court today Chin Chin, a Chinese gambler forfeited $10 for persistently pursuing his unlawful vocation.

Charles Clingman, whose reputation as an all round housebreaker is above reproach, and who was yesterday arrested for gambling, had the charge against him changed to one of vagrancy, for which he will be fined on Saturday at 10 o'clock.

J. F. Thomas, a stender and "broke" bicycle trick rider, and Harry Ryan, were fined for begging, or to other words for soliciting alms on the street. The former was fortunate enough to have sentence suspended in his case, while the latter was not so fortunate, being allowed to rest at Rimbal's table d'hote for a period of thirty days.

Jesse Wells and Mrs. Jones were found guilty of being no fair for witnesses and sent to jail for thirty and twenty days respectively.

Killed at Pocatello.

At Pocatello, Idaho, Tuesday night at 11 o'clock Engineer J. B. Christmas instantly killed James Tilton, a colored resident of the family. Tilton arrived on the train from Ogden. He thought he would surprise the folks and went to the house and knocked on one window and then stepped around the house. Christmas heard the noise, and, thinking it was a burglar, grabbed his pistol, ran out and met him at the door. He fired immediately, the shot penetrating the heart. Tilton only exclaimed, "You have shot me!" and expired. The family is almost frantic with grief.

MINOR MENTION.

The wooden portion of fire station No. 1, is rapidly being taken to the ground to make room for a new and more substantial structure.

Of one thing the experience of the companions of the Twenty-fourth infantry, which arrived today, is very unusual, they present themselves in good marching order. Their precision in preserving rank and step would be a cool item to some other regiments.

It is unofficially announced that Mayor Christensen will shortly fill the vacancy in the city attorney's commission and that Henry Barnes, proprietor of the Warm Springs, will be one of his appointees. Who the other one will be is not yet stated.

Passenger Agent Burley of the Union Pacific is back from a ten days' business trip to Nebraska and Illinois. He says the political situation is as mixed and uncertain as to make intelligent prognostication of election results impossible.

The Entente in Justice Wenger's courtroom was the scene of much gaiety and pastimes. The judge now sits with his back to the east wall of the room with the audience of curious and inquisitive spectators facing him. The change was made looking to the making of things more comfortable for the fellow magistrate.

The welcoming Hay.

He was not exactly what world be called a handsome boy. Indeed, he didn't look at all as if he were a story hero. His yellow curls, which had once been his mother's pride, were cut close off now; and his face was uncomfortably freckled. But he was a sturdy, well-built boy, and the freckles frame around a pair of most excellent blue eyes. And it was this pair of very excellent eyes which caused the young man who wrote stories to stop when they met plump into each other in the lane of the little country lane, and look down at him. Then he said, "Miss Anne—"

"Where are you going?"

"Swimming," replied the boy promptly and smiling up at the other pleasantly.

"Swimming?" repeated the young man, as he looked doubtfully over the small person before him. "Does your mother know that?"

"Yes, sir," answered the boy, smiling more than ever. Then he added, "I'm the only one she has to mind."

"Oh," said the young man, "you are sure? I don't like to be responsible for the right of a new interest coming into his own eyes behind his glasses, and he went on musingly: "It is still early, and there's plenty of time to go to the swimmin'. Come, tell me about it. I want to know, you know, why you are the 'boy who swims.' Way are you not the boy who rides, or the boy who fishes, or shoots, or plays ball, you know?"

"Where I swim best, I guess," said the other. Then the young man looked at way to a shadier spot where where they were standing, and, having made themselves comfortable, he proceeded to listen to a story of the boy who swims, and the impulsive young man about himself.

"Well, sir," said he, "when we are at home, we live right on the river bank, and our back porch hangs over it, 'cause the river has cut the bank away some there. I've got to be somebody younger than I am, too,—I've lost and we can all swim. Mamma taught us. Yes, sir, mamma, she's the boss a little bainee but Sis wouldn't do what she thinks was a long way to go and whenever we have a stranger that thinks we five years old, it is in the summer time, we go in and we know no one in the river. Then we paddle around for a while and she takes us out. She does that every day, and then after awhile we know how to swim."

"It's a funny way to learn, isn't it?"

The young man thought it was and a very nice way, too.

"Yes; and then you see as soon as we do learn, mamma doesn't worry about our being near the river ever so much. Some of his friends do. They wouldn't give near the time to anything, if they were in our place; but we don't know any. We, sometimes, there was a time we wanted to teach my wife to swim, and we took her down to the river—she, while we were at upper anchor, in high water for house. I had pretty soon I heard some one screaming distress signal, and I ran out. And there was the poor lady in the water and her hands if we could see her hands. Well, sir, I was in a cold sweat, I tell you. I ran down to the people came running down to us, and we went around, and said a lot of funny things about the lady's hats. But I told them they didn't know about the wonderful sensation of falling in them. And then, after mamma had laughed, we said what, and they were all up in, I went back and found my wife safe and well. I was so glad my five cracksers were all right. I suppose, from that evening, they've all been called 'the boy who swims,' just as it was my turn."

Then the young man who wrote stories did a funny thing; he asked the boy if he would mind sitting down with him. The boy looked at him with open eyes at this odd question, but he said he would, he knew, he was glad and frankly so as he had asked in his awkwardness.

"Thank you," the young man said, with a queer look in his eyes. And a few minutes later the boy was asleep and disappeared about the little bend in the shady green lane, in his way to the swimmin' hole, shouting, whistling and happy, and thinking of the good times he had just had.

But the young man who wrote stories turned thoughtfully, and perhaps a little way with a warm feeling in his musing mind, from that day on then, I really don't know, but I know the acquaintance with the boy who "swims" than anyone else he knows.—Lillie Mae in Women.

Cheap Labor.

People in general cannot understand the doings of a manual or mining Superintendent quite ignorant persons are apt to wonder, when told that the orders of his employers have been to cut down their expenses. The explanation is concealed the purpose of sending some select treasure, or that in the only way left open to them to get rid of the stuff which nature thrust in the mine. Mr. A. L. Adams relates an amusing instance of this reasoning.

When a large force of men were on the southern coast of Maine we had dug a trench in the soil on its floor prior to laying down the speed of the engine engines. The natives in the vicinity, hearing of our presence, came in numbers daily to witness the novel sight and to hire out to the foreman with reference to the object of our researches, of which the workmen were always ready to give them all information. One afternoon three strangers came and as a visit, and while they sat on the heaps of dirt looking down into the deep hole, one of them, a Spaniard, came on a shovel full of earth, and the next moment it lay with the soil on the heap. Picking it up in a careless way he threw it into the hole and a few minutes afterward our friends disappeared, muttering to themselves in a foreign tongue.

Great was our amusement the next morning to find that our trench had been carried fully four feet below the level we had called for the previous evening. Not only that; several other assistant members of the foreman were found by the native investigation of having further treasure.—Yank's Companion.

UNTOLD MISERY FROM RHEUMATISM

C. E. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For two years I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I was every hours sometimes, and I lost my appetite, and was so weak I could not walk without crutches. I tried many remedies, but found no relief, until I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has worked wonders in my case. I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape. Six months using Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I was able to resume my work, except with assistance, and could walk without crutches. My appetite had become quite good, and I had no pain left, but was troubled by the doctors. But I would not live. The pain, or rather the want of it, made me a new man. I would gladly testify to the world, if I could, my gratitude for the wonderful cure effected only by means of Dr. Ayer's medicines. I had tried many medicines before, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla was the only one that did me good. I have gone only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most acute agony, I despaired of ever being cured. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months my limbs began to straighten, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am able to do my full share of work as a railroad blacksmith."

Let The Whole World Know The Good Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Does

HEART DISEASE has no victim at a single stage. Its symptoms taught that heart disease is incurable, when the symptoms become well defined, the patient becomes alarmed and a serious point taken place. But when a cure comes to be found and a cure effected, after years of suffering, there is great rejoicing and desire to "let the whole world know." Mrs. Louis Wenger, of Schlieta, Kansas, writes: "I desire to let the whole world know what Dr. Miles' Heart Cure has done for me. For years I had spells in my heart, short-ness of breath, palpitation, pain in my left side, oppressed feeling in my chest, weak and nervous, hungry spells, bad dreams, could not lie on either side, was much and suffered terribly. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and before I finished the second bottle I felt its good effects. I feel now that I am fully recovered, and that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure saved my life."

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold on a guarantee that first bottle benefits, or money refunded.
