Red in the line intended positions ever saw. Indeed, the most remarkable were of such a character that shooting with the guns we had did not do them serious damage. Where a shot went from our shes dropped into a house in the town it demolished the occupant as the company was quartered.

"Did Cervera's men help in the San Juan?" was asked, to cheer up a moment's pause.

"No indeed. He had 1,000 men stationed in the fort in the battle of July 1st, and they did not fire a shot. Nobody was killed. The marines and sailors suffered severely. Cervera put them all back on board July 3rd, and on the 2nd he tried to get to sea.

"The Spaniards were given to their last on Friday when they surrendered, but they declined on the first day to accept terms offered them. The Spaniards that Admiral Sampson mentioned were just without that they came around on the prize on the second day.

"What was your food supply short before San Juan?

"It had to get quickly and there my men began to fall ill. Yellow fever, I think. Men were growing weaker and weaker every hour. We had plenty of bullets stuffed at the Spaniards, but there was only a single road, but, like the most, over which they could be brought to the front and it was a great deal of work. Wagon on road not have got the provisions where they were needed. Pack mules saved us. They were invaluable also."

"What is the condition of Santiago today?"

"It is in a very state of health," replied Gen. Shafter. "Under the military government now in existence it will be more healthy, and I think it is quite healthy. It is a pretty town but the surrounding country is in a state of misery. You ought to hasten the destruction of the island of Cuba."

"What do you think of the Spanish hospitals?"

"Those in Santiago are as good as any in the world. My surgeons tell me they inspected them carefully and they were very better, sanitary arrangements. The chief hospital there will hold 2,000 patients comfortable, and during the bombardment of the city at one time held 1,800 men. The barracks are not so satisfactory, but they are being thoroughly overhauled and put in shape. The city is growing quiet."

"Did you see any reconcentrados?"

"Only a few. I fear that most of them are dead. But the death rate in Santiago has dropped from about 400 a day to thirty-five, and most of the deaths are of old people, or children who had been weakened from the starvation which their had endured."

"When will the military occupation of the island cease?"

"Some time in the latter part of October," was the answer.

"You asked me about the use of cavalry in this war. I reply that it we have not to go down there and fight, the Indian guerillas we shall want the cavalry horses against them. Otherwise not. I hope that small garrisons of infantry scattered over the country will suffice.

"How about the western part of the island?" was the next query.

"Havana will certainly be garrisoned and everything possible will be done to render the city healthy and revive its prosperity. The western provinces are ready for annexation and crops can be put in at any time."

General Shafter was fully informed regarding the controversy between Gen. Miles and Secretary Alger. He was surprised and said it was the first time he had had of anything of the kind. He knew nothing about the causes or the merits of the controversy.

"What troops are left in garrison Santiago?"

"The only troops of the Fifth corps that were not with the regular infantry, the remainder of the Ninth Mass., about the regiment and the last of the Ninth Cavalry. These were left behind because they could not have left on the day after the Mexicans sailed and are to reach here tomorrow or next day. The regiment left without part of the army of invasion which was composed of the Fifth corps. The garrison duty is to other hands. The Fifth corps corps's day will fly over Camp Wikoff tomorrow."

Mail Robbers Arrested.

London, Sept. 1.—J. A. Jagu, chief officer of the White Star Line steamer Britannic, who was arrested on board the Cunard line steamer Lucania on her arrival at Queenstown on August 20 on charges of being concerned in the robbery of transatlantic mails, and John Kynaston, third officer of the Britannic, who is charged with the theft from the mails of bonds, coupons, diamonds, etc., who arrived in custody at Queenstown on the Germanic from New York on Wednesday last, were brought up for examination at the Bow Street police court today.

Among the letters stolen, it was said in court, was one containing forty United States bond coupons and another containing $1,500 in greenbacks.

Counsel for the British protection made a statement saying Jagu was too dangerous a man to be allowed in the robbery. He explained that it was arranged that Kynaston should receive the mail bags at Queenstown and place certain of the sacks, from London, on the Britannic. Jagu might be easily reached. The same night Kynaston visited the mail room and brought the mail bags to Jagu's cabin. On the following night he repeated this performance but both the bags were found to contain matter which was useless to the prisoners.

On the third night, however, a registered letter was found in one bag. Two days before the arrival of the Britannic at New York Jagu gave Kynaston twenty dollars to compensate for the trouble. Kynaston was arrested as a result of the suspicions of the cashier of the Cunard line company at Queenstown. Jagu had after endeavoring to dispose of a quantity of stolen property by passing it to relatives and friends.

Counsel added that, many of these facts were derived from a confession made by Kynaston.

Corbett Still in the "Business."

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Jim Corbett the pugilist, passed through Chicago today on his way to New York. In an interview he said:

"I am feeling perfectly well and have not allowed myself to worry. As regards the fight with McCoy, I have not made up the place where I will fight on October 1st or not, and cannot tell my

"Nothing is definitely settled yet. I am still in training and I will give McCoy a chance. I want to thank the members of the sporting fraternity for their kindly expressions of sympathy with me in my bereavement."

No Fusion in Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 2.—The failure of the Democratic state convention to fuse with the Populists on a state ticket will result in the Populist state ticket, as nominated, being placed on the official ticket with the other state tickets. All hopes for united action between these two parties are now shattered. In an interview today, Robert Schilling, chairman of the Populist state central committee, said that no agreement by which the Populist ticket would be withdrawn could or would be made. He said the Populists will fight the Democrats just as they will fight the Republicans. He also said that the action of the Democratic convention would preclude all question of a fusion on the county tickets as was the case in the spring election when the Democrats with fusion carried the city by a large majority.

The language of the Democratic platform in reference to the Chicago platform is looked upon as being mild and made to suit a number of gold Democrats who were in the convention. By this action it is said the fact that a number of Democrats toasted towards the end planked the party organization in a manner that could not be undone for years and that they could not be expected to support the ticket with the Populists on it, is looked upon as a long step toward the bringing about of harmony in the Democratic party of Wisconsin for the November elections.

Six Soldiers's "Tigers."

All day yesterday the train in the four sections traveled across Kentucky. It was an amusing journey. The men were in high spirits. Along the first section of the train carrying troops reached Cincinnati at 11 o'clock (midnight) the people lined the board and cheered as many. When the troops crossed Cincinnati bridge the people were out in force to see the regiment. It was the strength to get up.

As the trains drew into the city the engines and engine bells were loudly screamed on a lurid manner with all their might. There was a continuous stream of people from the time of the Union station, the crowds becoming thicker nearer the center of the city. Hundreds left their work and waved their hats and handkerchiefs. The men in the trains responded, and some of the women could be seen crying.

There are 150 hospital patients in regiment. Two men were made insane. Two fresh bodies were brought home. They were those of Clifton Lowell, of Company F, Terre Haute, and Lee Mayfield, Robert Darling, of Company, died on the train pulled into the station. All were buried from their homes. Lowell was buried at Terre Haute, a short march through the city and boarding the train at Noble street for Camp Mount.

Irrigation Congress.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 2.—The national irrigation congress opened promptly at 10 o'clock this morning with an increased attendance, a number of national delegates from other states, Wyoming, Montana and Kansas having arrived. Before proceeding with the regular program the roll of states for roll call was called and a committee appointed to notify the members of national committee and the director of each state of plans for the next annual meeting was made a special order for 4 o'clock today. The report of Col. H. V. Maxwell, member of the committee appointed by the Lincoln congress to go to Washington, was the first regular order of business. Maxwell's report was important in that the committee had succeeded in framing a bill which secured the united support of the western congressmen.

This bill provides that states taking advantage of the Carey law shall have four years from the date of final application to reclaim. The state may file through a local land office for temporary occupation, for a period of six months. Failure to file maps and plats within this period works a forfeiture of the entry. Upon this subject the desert character of the land will be held to be finally settled. Both Congressmen Hartbith and Jones of Washington spoke in favor of this individual bill in support of the committee bill, but once the year with Spain the whole matter has lost its importance. The report was adjourned and the committee received the thanks of the congress. The report of the committee on resolutions, which was not completed, but will be taken up later.

Mr. Hayes of Colorado read a very interesting statistical paper upon the subject "The success and failure in canal building in the arid states."

President Carey introduced Mr. Mattison by saying he was the most highly connected among the pioneers of irrigation, president of the great work he had done during man years. Col. Mattison divided irrigation enterprises into three heads, "corporation, co-operation and colony," and exhaustively described the methods and merits of each. In support of his statement that irrigation works were not failures he told of actual conditions in California. Large enterprises undertaking during the past twenty-five years had returned no revenue to the investors but benefited south's wealth beyond all human evidence. In 1890 Colorado had 1,500,000 acres irrigated of 4 value of $27,000,000. The value of the land of Colorado today is $100,000,000. The capital invested in irrigation enterprises were valuated at the double minimum rate, $17,000,000, while property dependent upon irrigation $37,000,000, an increase of 312 per cent. The net increase of wealth to the state was $19,000,000.

What Horses Thinks.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—Senator M. A. Hanna, has recovered from the effects of a wealthy visiting in the Yellowstone Park and Northwest. In the course of an interview he said: "I have spent the most of my time in camp. Mr. Hanna said:

"I do not care to place the blame for the conditions upon any one. I will say however, that the governors of the Rocky mountain states appealed to the President and we did that the illness among the troops comes from the water supply. The sources for the location of the camps were selected because of their availability and the general climatic conditions.

Regular troops have been camped by the side of the volunteers. I do not believe that the death rate has been high in the regular camps. Yesterday I went out at Camp Alger and looked carefully over the place. At the edge of the camp I found a number of pools of water where beer and pop and such stuff were sold to the troops. This kind of stuff was drunk by the volunteers.

Look at the rank which has been performed by the administration. At the outbreak of the war we had 25,000 men in service for full 2,000 man. I am so interested personally with the boys of the war department that I have spoken to them and I know that they worked from 16 to 18 hours each day to equip and arm this great army of 25,000 of the volunteers. It is a marvelous performance to me and could not have been accomplished by any other nation in the world. It is important but a mere stepping-stone compared to what we shall accomplish in the next year. KILLED BY A BURSTING GUN.

Hulsen Jackson, a Lad of Eighteen, Fatally Hurt at Parowan Yesterday.

A Piece of Iron Four Inches Long Entered His Abdomen—Not Considered Safe to Move at First.

Special to the "News"

Parowan, Utah, Sept. 1.—Hulsen Jackson, a boy in years old, while at a ranch ten miles from here, accidentally shot himself yesterday morning at 4:30 o'clock. He had been duck hunting, and when he got home he was in the habit of leaving his gun before returning to the house. He held it down with both hands and fired.

The gun, which was heavily charged, burst, and a piece of iron about four inches long and one inch wide, entered the abdomen of the boy, about two and a half inches deep. He pulled the iron from the wound and walked to the house, about five hundred yards away. He was brought home as soon as possible.

The wound had profusely, but was bandaged and the bleeding stopped. The end of one of the young man's fingers was also blown off.

CEDAR CITY NORMAL SCHOOL.

The New Building a Thoroughly Modern Structure—Cost $20,000.

Cedar City, Iron County,
August 30, 1898.

To the Editor:

The State Normal Academy, or branch of the State University, started here during the past year, is not only a stand addition to the educational building that adorns the hills of Utah, but it is a credit to the untiring energy and executive ability of the people of this city of Cedar. Save a contribution from Kanarra, the citizens of this place have erected the magnificent structure alone, and at a cost of twenty thousand dollars.

The site upon which it stands is particularly adapted for the purpose to which it is dedicated. The people owned a section of the site, but an expenditure of ten thousand dollars was necessary to secure the fifteen and one-half acres of land which is now, or will be, in dispute between the parties concerned, with a spacious building thereon.

The building consists of a massive basement, and two stories and a commodious attic, with all fact to the future. The basement will contain the heating and ventilating apparatus, the manual training department and the general laboratories. In the first story there are four large rooms, the hall, the office of the principal and reception room, on the second story we find the main hall, 32x60, and two class rooms, 32x32.

The people have generally donated their labor and means very liberally, and Perry has the honor of donating about twelve hundred bushels of lime. The committee in charge of the building are J. Z. Stone, Jr., Nephi Jones, John Parry, Thomas Hunter and William Dover, have been untiring in their efforts that the building shall be associated Henry Leigh, Uriah Jones and David and Hebb Bullock. They are not the least, Bullock. They are not the least, but have borrowed the necessary money for this noble purpose, pledging their credit in the unfinished Cedar Stake academy, to secure the payment.

The work of finishing the building is being pushed with earnestness, in order that it may be in readiness for the coming term of school. The architecture of the office is the first story has been superviced by Evangeal Milton Bowron, who will be assigned to the control of the school in the fall. Cedar Stake, Parrigs and Miss Annie Spencer, J. H. Tuttle will superintend the Normal Training department.

The citizens of Cedar have in this instance, shown a spirit that is to be commended in their enterprises to provide the youth of the surrounding portion of the country with a suitable academy wherein they may be educated, and fitted for the duties of life. The people of this city and county for the purpose, should be assisted in the building of the State University, and the State should make an appropriation of public lands to help out in the work of the school.

A committee is arranged for the holding of a fair for Iron county at Cedar City, are working. The fair, as proposed, will be held in Cedar City, and the exhibits are that the affair will be a success.

ALBERT JONES.

A BOY SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Little "Dan" Raleigh Caught Under a Wagon and Trampled On by a Horse.

Donald Roering Raleigh, or little "Dan" as he is generally called, met with a painful and somewhat serious accident shortly after ten o'clock this morning. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh, have recently moved North street, near Second West. "Dan" left home soon after breakfast and came up town in the store of his uncle, D. W. Roering.

The delivery wagon stood in front of the place, the opposite E. C. M. I. and Roering's grocery, and "Dan" had permission to play near and on the wagon. The lad seized hold of the horse's tail and was being dragged along by the animal, when he became somewhat nervous and got "mixed up" with the result that the delivery wagon was turned over, the horse dragging the lad about 20 feet while on the seat. The horse was urged and more agitated by being struck with a whip, and "Dan" was caught quickly under the falling vehicle and pressed closely to the ground by the wagon, the horse continuing to drag the wagon over the prostrate lad. The wagon was packed backwards by the struggles of the horse, and the boy was released from the wagon and found to be "pinned up" under the calamity horse. That he was not trampled to death was a wonder.

The accident was witnessed by a large number of people and several gentlemen were instantly on the scene to rescue the lad from his perilous position. When picked up blood was flowing from an abrasion on the nose and he complained of pains in the abdominal regions. He was quickly carried in the office of Dr. Richards in the Templeton building where his injuries were attended to after which he was taken to the home of his parents.

From the Mission Field.

Elder S. E. Caldwell of the Fillmorite ward, who departed for a mission to Louisiana on April 21, 1898, arrived home from that state a few days ago. The work in which he has been engaged was very difficult, as the ground is hard to travel. However, very satisfactory progress has been made. Friends appear to be very kind, and the prospects for the future are very bright. Elder Caldwell only enjoyed fair health and is glad to get home again.

CITY COUNCIL COMMITTEES.

Water Question Discussed Before the Committee on Irrigation.

Henry H. Harris, president of the Pleasant View Irrigation company, acted as spokesman for himself and a number of others, on the water question before the irrigation committee last night. Mr. Harris lives on the south branch of City creek, and is one of the line of the Emigration and Parley's creek canals. Ever since the water has been cut off from Parley's canal, Mr. Harris said that he and his neighbors have had to depend on the Emigration canal water. He further said that according to a contract made some twenty years ago between him and his neighbors with the city, he was entitled to one-seventh of the natural flow from Emigration creek, but since the city has taken the water from the canal he has had but one in, he and his neighbors were all getting one-seventh. Mr. Harris also took occasion to criticise in a rather severe manner, Engineer Kelsey, who, he said, had no business to interfere with the water rights, which were present, protested against Harris's remarks. Chairman Maguire explained that the action of Kelsey was done in the premises was under the direction of the City Council. After a long and lively discussion the matter was referred to a committee consisting of Waterworks Robbins, Engineer Kelsey and Mr. Harris.

The committee on claims will recommend that David Moffat be allowed $100 for injuries received by being run on the Emigration pipe line. The claim of Charles Parker for $15,000 for personal injuries received by falling into a canal was referred to City Attorney Hall, as also was the petition of Jacobs Schubach, who asked that a bars near his residence on I street be removed.

Cubes Gratitude.

The cases of the Cubans have been received of being inappreciative, of being ignorant and ungrateful. Such is not the case in the men who died for them. Greater glory, therefore, to those who have to give up their all for that, those who had little might gain greatly. But the Cubans are not inappreciative. Illustrative of this is the fact of Dr. Richards in the Templeton building where his injuries were attended to after which he was taken to the home of his parents.

From the Mission Field.

Elder S. E. Caldwell of the Fillmorite ward, who departed for a mission to Louisiana on April 21, 1898, arrived home from that state a few days ago. The work in which he has been engaged was very difficult, as the ground is hard to travel. However, very satisfactory progress has been made. Friends appear to be very kind, and the prospects for the future are very bright. Elder Caldwell only enjoyed fair health and is glad to get home again.

CITY COUNCIL COMMITTEES.

Water Question Discussed Before the Committee on Irrigation.

Henry H. Harris, president of the Pleasant View Irrigation company, acted as spokesman for himself and a number of others, on the water question before the irrigation committee last night. Mr. Harris lives on the south branch of City creek, and is one of the line of the Emigration and Parley's creek canals. Ever since the water has been cut off from Parley's canal, Mr. Harris said that he and his neighbors have had to depend on the Emigration canal water. He further said that according to a contract made some twenty years ago between him and his neighbors with the city, he was entitled to one-seventh of the natural flow from Emigration creek, but since the city has taken the water from the canal he has had but one in, he and his neighbors were all getting one-seventh. Mr. Harris also took occasion to criticise in a rather severe manner, Engineer Kelsey, who, he said, had no business to interfere with the water rights, which were present, protested against Harris's remarks. Chairman Maguire explained that the action of Kelsey was done in the premises was under the direction of the City Council. After a long and lively discussion the matter was referred to a committee consisting of Waterworks Robbins, Engineer Kelsey and Mr. Harris.

The committee on claims will recommend that David Moffat be allowed $100 for injuries received by being run on the Emigration pipe line. The claim of Charles Parker for $15,000 for personal injuries received by falling into a canal was referred to City Attorney Hall, as also was the petition of Jacobs Schubach, who asked that a bars near his residence on I street be removed.

To the Editor:

Died at Iona, Bingham county, Idaho, at 4 p. m., Saturday, August 13, 1898, of dropsy, Cadwallder Curtis, aged 74 years, 8 months and 13 days. He was born in Morrisville, Madison county, N. Y., in 1824, of Meriwethites, North Wales, and joined the Church in his native land, being baptized October 28, 1849, and emigrated to Utah in 1850 with Captain Dan Jones, arriving in Salt Lake City in the fall of the same year. He married Elizabeth Jones in 1851, and removed to Brigham City in the year 1853, and in the year 1857 removed to Iona, Bingham county, Idaho, being one of the early settlers of that city, and assisted in building up Hyrum city the year before. He was one of the first farmers in southern Cache, assisting in what then was known as Sand Creek, and was a member of the Iona ward. He was a faithful Latter-day Saint, being the first church authority sent out in this part of southeastern Idaho, being ordained a high priest on June 17, 1884, by President John Taylor and Heber J. Grant and appointed president Elder over the little flock that assembled at Iona.

He assisted in all the labors of this place, and when Apostle John W. Taylor was here on a visit, with Elder Owens in 1888 brother Owens was honorably released and appointed counselor to the Bishop. He was called on a mission to the year 1896, and in the year 1872 married Mrs. Jane Slade of Salt Lake City who survives him. From his receiving the Gospel till the day of his death he had an abiding faith in God, and his delight was in doing good to the saints as Jesus Christ, leaving one son and a daughter survive him. The funeral services were held in the church at Iona, August 16, 1898, President Hunt, Mulliner, Bishop Stanger and Elders George F. Ward and Andrew C. Anderson made consoling addresses, bearing testimony to a long and useful life, led by Brother Curtis. He died a faithful Latter-day Saint and passed from the land of the living, with the comfort of the Lord Jesus Christ, for he had earned a part and lot in the first resurrection.—[Com.

NORBERT TILL.

Elder Robert Till has gone to rest. On the afternoon of Wednesday, August 31, at 2:15 p.m., the spirit of one who was familiarly known in Provo and at Goshen as "Neighbor Till," took its flight.

Elder Till was born on May 21, 1841, at Brentford, Middlesex, England, and was baptized into the Church of Christ, London conference, October 28, 1861, being baptized by Elder Reuben Hedlock.

After contracting the Gospel, and experiencing a living testimony of its truth, he became a faithful and consistent member of his priesthood. His business became a secondary consideration. He died as he lived, and desire was to make his way to others the glorious truths that had enlightened his own mind.

He was active in all attempts and at indoor and outdoor meetings, he was untiring. He introduced the Gospel in his native land and led its many to the waters of baptism, in the Somerset Town branch, that his acquaintances gave the name of the Church of the Dove.

Elder George Teasdale and others who have been prominent in the Church, served in the church through Brother Till's administration.

Elder Till married Charlotte Freshwater, who survives the death of brigham City, and emigrated to Utah in the spring of 1871.

He assisted in the hardships incident to the settlement of the Territory at that time. He located first in Provo and then took an active part in helping up the settlements of Goshen. He entered into the sacred order of plural marriage in 1882, with Sister Mary Ann Gleason, his present wife, and was the father of high children and thirty-five grandchildren.

Elder Till was not of a very robust constitution, but of an active mind and temperament, devoted at all times to the principles of his religion, which from first to last, after his conversion to its reality, were the leading features of his life.

Elder Till has held the offices of Priest and Seventy, and at the time of his death was a member of the quorum of High Priests.

Funeral services were held in the old meeting house, Aug. 1, a large audience being present. Bishop Wilkinson of the Second ward Bishopric presided, and opening prayer was offered by Elder Joseph Hunt.

The speakers were Elders James E. Daniels, George Teasdale and David Jones. They all paid a high tribute to deceased.

Elders S. S. and Albert Jones of Provo are half-brothers to Elder Till.—[Com.

DIFFERENCE
A DIMINISHING DIFFERENCE.
When the cheaper grades of food baking powders were first put on the market there was a decided difference in opinion as to the advisability of using them. Since the merits of U. S. Baking Powder have become more thoroughly established in the minds of the people, this difference has been gradually lessened, and now it does not seem to have so either than U. S. It is a satisfaction and saves money too, that's the reason.
