THE MAMMOTH ENTERPRISE

THE PRESENT SITUATION AND OUTLOOK.

A few days ago we stated that there was a prospect of some sort of a settlement being reached in relation to the Mammoth Mining property. The cause of the collapse in the first place was the failure of the English syndicate to make certain stipulated payments and fulfill a contract entered into between them and the McIntyre Brothers and A. Cunningham. We understand it to have been in the nature of the agreement that in that contingency, the property should revert to the original parties named. An offer was made by the English capitalists, through Mr. Goodhardt, to purchase the balance of the stock held by Messrs. McIntyre and Cunningham, at a certain figure, but the latter declined to accept. In the event of the property reverting to their possession the original owners held that they had no responsibility regarding any claims existing against the company, notwithstanding they held a large proportion of the stock, and they purposed ignoring them. Recently, however, they have concluded to accept of Mr. Goodhardt's proposition, the last of the three gentlemen having consented to the transaction a week ago to-day; payment for the stock was expected to be made by the Englishmen within thirty days from the date of acceptance, and the matter stands in that position now, awaiting consummation of the proposal.

It is stated, with what degree of correctness we are unable to say, but on reliable authority, that should the purchase be completed and the mine and works be operated under the same attitude regarding the claims against the company as was intended by the Messrs. McIntyre and Cunningham had the property reverted permanently to them. How this position can be taken, however, if it be attempted, is an anomaly. Should such a scheme be successful it looks as if the bulwarks of the law intended for the protection of mechanics and others could be very readily evaded or swept away.

There is a great deal of local interest in this subject, the interests involved in it being unusually widespread, so far as this part of the country is concerned. Unless the matter takes a different shape than present appearances would indicate, a large amount of litigation will undoubtedly be involved.

Occurrences in Cache.—With its issue of August 1st the Utah Journal entered upon the second year of its life. It is an excellent newspaper generally found on the right side of every prominent question which it undertakes to treat upon, and is bright and newy besides. It is a credit to Northern Utah. We wish it continued success.

We call the following from its last number:

At Richmond, on July 27th, August Snow, a carpenter, while nailing a board on the scaffolding of Mr. Cullin's house, fell, striking the small of his back on a trestle and head on a pile of bricks. He is now crawling around but feels the effects of the fall. He dreamed the previous night almost the full particulars of the fall, but they slipped his memory until after he had consumed the reality.

As Mr. L. Crook, of Fish Haven, near Lake County, Idaho, was riding on horseback near the upper toll gate in Logan canyon, he spied a bear in the middle of the road-way. He yelled at the beast, when it reared upon its hind legs and shuffled to one side, the narrator then made as wide a detour as the road permitted and gladly avoided it. Mr. Crook says he had previously met two young girls at a distance of not over 300 yards from where he encountered Master Bruin.

On Friday a serious accident befell Mr. Hans S. Jeppesen, father of N. P. Jeppesen, who was working at the U. O. steam mill in Logan canyon. A piece of plank flew from the saw and struck him in the face, damaging his eyes. He remained senseless over an hour. He was afterwards taken home, and is now doing well.

Mr. Jackson's Dental.—The following was handed in to-day, which is justice to Mr. Jackson, who inserts with pleasure, having as we before stated, not the slightest desire to do him or Mr. Wood injustice or injury:

August 2, 1888.

Editor Deseret News:

The statement regarding me, contained in an article in the fourth of July 18th number of the Spectator, and republished in your issue of July 23rd, are absolutely and positively untrue.

In the first place I am not a married man; never was in Public in my life, nor am I fighting any suit with any one, and was but three weeks in Salt Lake City, on my coming to Salt Lake City.

Respectfully yours, DAVID JACKSON.

Arrival of the Callenders.—The great Callender Musical Festival Organization, supplemented by the famous Hyers Sisters, who are now a permanent feature of the Callender's, arrived this morning in their full complement. Their parade today was a brilliant affair and provoked considerable enthusiasm among the spectators along the route. The first festival takes place to-night at the Theatre, and will be repeated to-morrow and Saturday evenings, with a grand matinee at 2 o'clock Saturday, for ladies and children, on which occasion the entire evening programs will be presented without exception.

Tour on the Continent.—President John Henry Smith left Liverpool on Saturday for a trip to the Continent, expecting to be absent from a month to six weeks. He will visit throughout the Scandinavian and the Swiss and German Missions and perhaps also go to Italy and France before he returns. Our readers will, we hope, be posted in regard to his progress and observations by occasional communications from him. He is accompanied by Elder Jane Wrathall. —Minn's Star, July 16th.

The High Council will meet at 6 o'clock to-morrow evening, at the Social Hall.

INCREASE OF DRUNKENNESS.

THE SUNDAY LAW SHOULD BE STRICTLY ENFORCED.

It is painfully apparent to the most casual observer that drunkenness is increasing to an extent that should create some degree of alarm among the majority of the citizens, who are opposed to the growth of evil of every description. To what extent the liberal ordinance of the city affects this subject we will not at present discuss. The Council deemed it wise to make concessions to the liquor dealers, presumably to avoid a prolonged, expensive and irritating legal contest between the corporation and that class. The ordinance is certainly liberal on the side of the liquor dealers, enabling them, if they so choose, to run their establishments all night on week days, as no closing hour is named. The ordinance is, however, definite in regard to keeping closed on Sundays. At the time it was made the dealers as a class conceded that it was as favorable to them as they could consistently wish, and they asserted that should any undertake to break the Sunday closing provision they would, as a body, be as anxious for their punishment as any other class of citizens. We are safe in saying, however, that by far the greatest proportion of drunkenness of the week occurs in the twenty-four hours between midnight on Saturday morning and twelve o'clock on Sunday night. Any person who will take the trouble, can prove this to be a fact by actual observation if he is so disposed. This feature of the evil complained of can be materially lessened by two classes of repression—the prompt detection and arrest of all persons breaking the ordinance against selling liquor on Sunday and consequently without license, there being no license for selling on the Sabbath, and the application of the full penalty of the law in each case, including imprisonment. The imposition of a nominal fine on the first offence plea, does not properly apply in this direction, in view of the plain understanding which has always existed in relation to this particular ordinance. We are positive that the citizens generally favor the rigid enforcement of the law in the premises. If it is not done, there is a plain dereliction of duty somewhere and with somebody.

BOLD ROBBERY.

A THIEF TAKES A CONSIDERABLE SUM FROM MR. GILBERT'S CLOSET.

At half-past three o'clock this afternoon Mr. Gilbert, proprietor of the Bull's Head meat market, opposite the Walker House, was robbed of $400.50. While he was temporarily absent from the premises, the thief entered the back room, broke open his desk, abstracted the money and departed. When we went to press no track of the robber had been found.

Janaushek.—A large audience witnessed the stirring play of "Deborah" at the Opera House last night. Madame Janaushek played the chief part with all the dramatic skill and vigor for which she is justly famed and was well supported by her talented company.

In consequence of the delay through the washout on the D. & R. R. R. R., Madame Janaushek has consented to play "Mother and Son" during her detention. This Son" during of all her pieces will be rendered to-night, and will prove a great attraction.

Please Answer.—Who has seen a dark brindled stray cow? She has some white under belly, an illegible brand on left hip and is giving milk. Please leave word at this office or with C. W. Penrose, 9th Ward, corner Third East and Fifth South Streets.
