twenty-seventh man called. He was sworn only on the five books of Moses, as he objected to accepting the entire Bible for that purpose. He failed to give satisfaction, being opposed to capital punishment for women, and was permitted to retire. The next called was Samuel R. Harper and he proved the last to answer the summons, as he was acceptable to both sides. It was 11:15 o'clock when Dist. Atty. Baker announced the government's satisfaction with the jury. Mr. Hoover responded for the defense with a similar statement and the prisoner gazed at the 12 men who are to determine her fate.

BROTHER'S ADVERSE WITNESSES.

Judge William H. King and Samuel A. King, both prominent lawyers of this state and brothers, leave today for Washington as witnesses in the case against Mrs. Anna Bradley. Judge King goes as a witness for the prosecution and Samuel King will testify for the defense. Judge William H. King was a close friend and adviser of Senator Brown, Mrs. Bradley's victim, during the time of his troubles in the Utah courts. Samuel King was identified with the other side of the case here and his sympathies are called with the woman in the case.

SAYS CHINAMAN DRUGGED AND KIDNAPED HER.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 14.—Under the influence of some powerful drug, Mrs. W. L. Reese, wife of a wealthy boiler manufacturer of Altoona, was found by the police in company with Al Sing Dean, a Chinese, yesterday, who had been a member of her Sunday school class and who had kidnaped her, she said.

Mrs. Reese and her mother were at luncheon at their home when Dean called. While Mrs. Reese's mother was answering the telephone, according to Mrs. Reese, Dean turned the conversation to the subject of opium and told her that the reports that the Chinese were opium fiends was outrageously false. He said that the Americans mistook for opium some little crystals which the Chinese frequently took as an appetizer. He offered Mrs. Reese one of the crystals. At first she hesitated until she saw the Chinese apparently swallow one. Mrs. Reese says she remembers but little of what happened after that.

It is believed that Dean wanted to hold her for ransom.

"My present plight," sobbed Mrs. Reese, "is perhaps a culmination of philanthropy and too much time on my hands. As a member of the First Lutheran church of Altoona, I took interest in the mission for Chinese, and became one of the volunteer workers."

Mr. Reese took his wife back to Altoona last night. Al Sing Dean was taken back manacled to be tried for abduction.

HUGH JOHNSON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Hugh Johnson of Clear Creek, was held this morning, from S. D. Evan's chapel, under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias, of which order the deceased was a member. The interment was at Mt. Olivet. Johnson, a miner, was taken with pneumonia in Nevada and brought to this city Sunday night for treatment, but too late.

LATE LOCALS.

Continues to Improve—Prest. Angus M. Cannon continues to improve in the Dixie country.

Bell Company Loses—The Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company lost 400 feet of cable by the Redman fire, causing a loss of $600. The cable had just been put up.

Richfield Gets Company—Richfield Sevier county, is to have a company in the First infantry, N. G. U., with 51 men. This will make the seventh company command, with others yet to follow.

Governor in Provo—Gov. John C. Cutler, Treasurer James Christiansen and Auditor J. A. Edwards are at Provo today attending a meeting of the state mental hospital board, of which they are members.

Meeting Tomorrow—A meeting of the board of public works will be held tomorrow evening, at which time bids will be received for the building of a pump house for the intersecting sewer, as also bids for the putting in of a pipe line for the same system.

Drop in Bank Clearings—Today's local bank clearings amounted to $621,851.51 as compared against $1,020,189.1 for the same day last year. This decrease is a record; and when the figures were shown this noon to a prominent banker for explanation, all he had to say was, "Well, its one of the signs of the times I guess."

Fatal Accident to Boy—Robert Kappelle, aged 10, son of Otto Kappele of Bingham, was run over Monday afternoon by a heavy, four-horse wagon, which passed over his stomach. The child was immediately carried for, and everything done to save his life, but the internal injuries were too serious and he died at 2 p. m. yesterday.

Funeral of E. G. Crowther—The body of Edward G. Crowther, who was killed at Milner, Ida., on the 11th inst., arrived this morning over the Short Line. Funeral services will be held over the remains tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Fifth ward meeting house. Remains may be viewed at 471 west Sixth South street from 11 to 1 o'clock.

Fair Day Tomorrow—A very weak "low" barometer has reached this county from the Gulf of California, with another weak "low" pushing down from the north. But with "highs" on either side, the conditions for a storm are wanting, although the temperature is being lowered. This afternoon the increasing chill is quite marked. The predictions are for fair weather tomorrow. There was little or no precipitation over the country yesterday.

SALT LAKE SUFFERS $250,000 FIRE

can't do anything for those animals—that's what hurts. That's what cut last night. People rushed around while the fire was most furious and asked me, 'What are you going to do?' How did I know—I wanted time to think and I couldn't hear or see anything but Paul and the list of those noble brutes going to a horrible death. Today I am beginning to look ahead; it is no time to cry over spilled milk. Time is money with us right now and not a moment is going to be lost in wiping out the results of last night's catastrophe and start anew. I want to say and I want you to say that those persons who have come to me or telephoned me and spoken an encouraging word do not realize how much I appreciated it—nor how much good it did when encouragement was most needed." Fires there are but few—no matter how large or small—have such a pathetic side as last night's affair. When talking about his loss in thousands of dollars was hopeful and apparently thinking of the future only, but when he came to tell of the death struggles of his horses—the finest in the state—tears filled his eyes and he could hardly go on.

BIG CROWDS PRESENT.

The alarm came into the department just as the streets were thronged with after-theater crowds. As the various departments rushed towards the scene hundreds of people started pell-mell behind them. When the engines and other equipment reached the ground there were already 300 or more persons flocking into the center of the block. It is a great wonder no one was hurt or killed because the alleys and narrow streets leading to the burning buildings were choked with the ever-present heedless curious. The crowds swelled quickly and the entire block was surrounded by them; women were sprinkled throughout the spectators and as the animals in the burning barns squealed with fright and pain, they turned away horrified. This morning saw men, women and children wading through the wet ashes and debris to get a peep at the burned carcasses and wreckage.

REGARDING THE RESPONSE.

A story in wide circulation this morning had it that so many persons tried to notify the department at once that the "centrals" shut off, determined to learn the exact location of the fire before calling out the departments—thus eliminating the likelihood of a useless run. This would have consumed a minute or two, owing to the excitement of the moment. The other story said the alarm sent in simply said "Redman's is on fire," and the department ran to West Temple, where the company's offices are located, before getting the location. Chief Yull, while directing the work at the scene this morning, said, "The alarm came in all right and we did not lose a second getting there."

A number of the men still at work among the debris this noon had been on their feet since 11 o'clock last night. Fresh men were put down to relieve them. Tired, hungry, covered with dirt and dripping wet the boys came up town to hurry into dry clean clothes and get around a greatly needed square meal.

LOST PRICELESS RELICS.

One citizen, who lost severely by the fire is Henry Clay Brownlee, who lost household goods valued at $2,000, and heirlooms on which no money value can be placed, for no amount of money will ever can make them good. Among these was a set of cut glass ware presented to Mr. Brownlee's father by the great statesman, Henry Clay, after whom he was named. There were also articles which had been handed down from past generations for over 200 years, several of which belonged to an ancestor of M. Brownlee, when he was postmaster of Dublin, Ireland, about a century ago. A number of articles belonged to ancestors of his wife, also. Mr. Brownlee has been laid up with lumbago, and was just able to get out this morning to see the ruins. He was not insured.

LAST RITES OVER GEN. R. T. BURTON

Mortal Remains of Stalwart Leader Consigned to Rest After Impressive Funeral.

SERVICES IN ASSEMBLY HALL.

President Joseph F. Smith and Others Eulogize Life of Deceased—Appropriate Musical Numbers.

The mortal body in which was tabernacled for 86 years of full measure by all standards of manhood the soul of General Robert T. Burton, of the presiding bishopric of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, was consigned to its rest today shortly after noon. The interment in the city cemetery was preceded by impressive services in the Assembly hall, in temple square. Accompanying the body to the graveside were hundreds of friends who had traveled life's road under the leadership of the sterling man who has gone to greet his Maker and the men who have preceded him to their reward in a higher sphere. So true to his God, to his fellowmen, to his religion as revealed to man through the agency of Joseph Smith, and to every trust given him was the departed leader of men that in the service there was a spirit of sweet comfort, of rejoicing and of confidence in the man's future estate, impressive in its presence.

As the hearse leaving the mortal body of Gen. Burton approached the temple square just before the obsequies, the survivors of Utah's Indian wars lined up in a double rank facing each other to salute for the last time the commander who had so gallantly led them through the conquests with their savage foes of the days when the state was young. Of the survivors all showed the weight of the life they led in their youth. In spite of their silver hair and the burdens of long and useful lives, there was about them a martial bearing that was suggestive of their former leader. As the hearse approached the square, Commander O. P. Arnold, in subdued tones, gave the command: "Comrades, fall in line." The response was instantaneous. The comrades of the man they were met to honor, formed in two ranks facing the hearse as it was driven into the grounds.

Of the Indian fighters of Utah's early days, the following were in line to render tribute to their departed general: O. P. Arnold, James Hague, Charles Livingston, Robert Marcroft, John W. Snell, Samuel Bateman, Henry B. Skidmore, John Woodbury, John Gabbot, C. J. Lambert, Henry S. Buckwalter, John Mackay, John R. Jones, W. W. Turner, David Hagenan, O. C. Larson, W. W. Willey, Wm. Crabbe, Samuel S. Jones, Charles Ringwood, A. H. Kirk, John Reading, Robert Widdison, J. F. Gray, M. M. Miller, John W. Andrews, Thomas E. Jeremy, E. R. Parry, James Standing and Alexander Burt.

The pallbearers who bore the bier of Gen. Burton into the edifice were all sons of the departed. They were Lafayette Burton, Hosea M. Burton, Heber K. Burton, Austin G. Burton, Walter C. Burton and Hardy G. Burton.

THE SERVICES.

The organ, stand and railings in the front of the Assembly hall were decorated with a profusion of white. Everywhere in evidence were potted palm trees, ferns and masses of cut flowers. Covering the bier and everywhere about it were set pieces and cut flowers, exhaling in their fragrance the tribute of hundreds of friends. Church organizations with which Gen. Burton had been identified in his eventful life offered their tribute to his memory in this way. Draped over the organ was a large American flag and a beautiful set piece from the Indian war veterans was fashioned out of the tri-colored flowers. These symbolized eloquently the man's life—so much of which was spent in the defense of the flag of his adopted country, an emblem honored and respected by him.

Among those who were seated on the stand at the funeral service were the following: President Joseph F. Smith and his counselors, John R. Winder and Anthon H. Lund, John Henry Smith, John Smith, Orson F. Whitney, Rulon S. Wells, Brigham H. Roberts, Hyrum Smith, Joseph W. McMurrin, Nephi L. Morris, Orrin P. Miller and Francis M. Lyman.

The service was begun with an organ number by J. J. McClellan, which was followed by the choir under the direction of Evan Stephens with "When First the Glorious Light of Truth." Elder Orson F. Whitney, of the quorum of Twelve Apostles, bespoke the invocation, asking the blessings of God to rest with the mourning family and for His Spirit to be evidenced in the remarks of those called upon to speak. Elder Whitney was followed by the choir singing, "O My Father."

BISHOP ORRIN P. MILLER.

Elder Orrin P. Miller of the presiding bishopric's office was the first speaker. He spoke of his association with Gen. Burton since an early age. In that association, he said, he had learned to love and esteem the departed, and few men, he declared, are dearer to his heart. For his love, his genial nature, his generosity and charity Bishop Miller said he had learned to love him above all men of his acquaintance. He was charitable to a fault, he declared. His life is one to emulate. Gen. Burton was one of the men called by God to surround and sustain the boy prophet. He was a stalwart and noble son of God. He was ever brave and unflinching in time of trial, a man of integrity to his fellowmen and to the gospel. Elder Miller said that his testimony of the truth of the gospel was gained to great measure from that of Gen. Burton. Elder Miller declared that he felt to rejoice, though the loss of a father and brother was rending his heart. He was fervent in thanking God that he had been privileged to associate with such a man. To the family Elder Miller pleaded that they live the life of their father and husband—that they emulate his examples and that they keep the commandments of God as he kept them. Their reward would be assured, he asserted, if this be the mode of their living.

PREST. JOHN R. WINDER.

Elder John R. Winder of the first presidency was the next speaker. He spoke of the close relationship that has existed between the man whose mortal remains lay in the bier before him. For 53 years, he said, he had been intimately associated with him, and the association had brought nothing but love and respect into his heart in his regard of the man. Elder Winder said that there was only 47 days' difference in their ages, his eighty-sixth birthday being on the 11th of the December approaching. The two, he said, had been for nearly 60 years as twin brothers. He was first associated with him the year they came to the Salt Lake valley together, then in the Indian wars, the departments of nations and city government and then more intimately than these the Church offices. He said that he hoped the large family who survive their illustrious father and husband will emulate the examples he set in his life.

Elder Winder said that he with many of his hearers would not be surprised if he should be one of the first to leave this sphere to join General Burton on the other side of the veil. By his life, he said, he knew it would be his privilege and he felt to rejoice in the prospect of being associated with him there for a period even longer than they were together here.

Horace S. Ensign was heard in a solo, "Unanswered Yet," accompanied by Prof. McClellan on the organ.

PRESIDENT ANTHON H. LUND.

President Anthon H. Lund was the next speaker. He expressed his firm belief in the fact that Gen. Burton still lives. He recognized that there has come a parting between the soul and the mortal body—but that part of Gen. Burton which thinks and directs his acts is still alive and exercising the faculties which God gave him. He expressed as his testimony that of Elders Miller and Winder, wherein they testified to his integrity, love, honor and fullness of years filled with good works. After accomplishing so much, said the speaker, he has now lain down to rest. He leaves this world with a full confidence in the redeeming power of the Savior. The speaker declared that there was no doubt with him but that he had gone to meet his Maker, that he had rendered his report of his work on earth and that he had received the glad message from God and had been assigned to other duties and rewarded for his faithfulness while in the life of probation here.

ELDER F. M. LYMAN.

Elder Francis M. Lyman of the quorum of twelve apostles spoke next. He said that he had known him since the year they both came to Utah, 1848, and that he was familiar with his life, labors and faith. He was one of the very strong men associated with President Young, Heber C. Kimball, Willard Richards and Daniel H. Wells. He pictured the glad meeting that had already taken place which those valiant sons of God had welcomed him into their midst on the other side. Gen. Burton was a general in the army of right, in the army of truth and of love. He was tender-hearted, sympathetic and worthy of our confidence and love.

Mrs. Lizzie Thomas Edward sang "Sometime We Will Understand" in a most effective manner, accompanied by Prof. McClellan with an obligato by the choir in the refrain.

ELDER JOHN HENRY SMITH.

Elder John Henry Smith of the quorum of the apostles, who was the next speaker, said that he felt to rejoice in being permitted to speak, for he recognized that in the great body of men assembled before him there were many who had been associated with him and would be glad to bear their testimonies to his life's nobility. Gen. Burton, said he, was genuine in all the elements of true manhood and his faith was as enduring as the heavens. "Peace to his ashes," said he, "in the Lamb's book of Life will be written the name of this man and he shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection." He paid an eloquent tribute to the life and work of the man, declaring him to be one of God's jewels. He implored his surviving family to live in his footsteps.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH F. SMITH.

President Joseph F. Smith was the last speaker. His address was prefaced with a tribute to the man whose mortal body lay before him. He paid he said:

"Like the brethren who have already spoken, I feel very keenly the great loss we have sustained in the death of Bishop Robert T. Burton. He will no more bear that incontrovertible testimony he bore to Bishop Miller relating to the divinity of the mission of the Prophet Joseph Smith. His lips are sealed, but I sincerely hope that the example of his life and his testimony of the truth he has borne will not perish, but live throughout this generation and generations to come, that the knowledge he received of God of the truth of the gospel, of the divinity of the mission of Joseph Smith all may live fresh in the minds of those who knew him and to whom his words shall descend.

"Perhaps there are hundreds here who could speak fervently of the excellent life of Bishop Burton, and if the time would permit we should be delighted to hear their testimonies of his work and life. I know that there are thousands who are not here who could do so.

"He knew the Prophet Joseph Smith and when he testified to the divinity of his mission on earth he knew what he was saying, and he knew it was true. No man ever lived more consistently to his profession of faith in this work than he. I have known him all my life it seems to me. I cannot recall the time I was not familiar with him. I crossed the plains the same year. All his life in Utah he has been a prominent figure in life before my eyes. He was prominent in the Indian difficulties caused by the vash deeds of white men, it is true. It was in those trying days in the Nauvoo legion that he gained his military experience and it was needed in those days when we were a thousand miles from provisions and supplies and we were surrounded by hostile Indians on every side.

"Aside from my acquaintance with him gained in this way, I was with him on a two years' mission in Great Britain and was directly in his company all of that time, 1874-1875. It was while there that I had every opportunity to become familiar with his noble traits. He was never false to God, to himself or to his fellow-man, friend or foe.

President Smith then expounded the doctrines of the faith, speaking of the principles revealed through the instrumentality of God concerning the association of men and women in the capacity of husbands and wives, of which the world knows little, he said. He said that it has been revealed to us that we are here for a purpose—that we are here on probation, a probation in which we are expected to prepare ourselves for an inheritance in the celestial kingdom of God. He spoke of the works of the Savior. "Whomsoever God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." In further explanation he said: "An inspired translation of these words would be: 'Whomsoever God hath joined together, no man can put asunder.' Death, he said, cannot sever the bonds. "What gives me supremest joy," said President Smith, "is the fact that Bishop Burton has obeyed this, these principles. He has received them in his heart and has obeyed them and carried them out in his life. He has put himself in a position to receive the gift of the priesthood, the gift of wisdom, the gifts of wives and children, which are the gifts of God to him. They are as eternal as the immortal soul and death, it may for anything else can put them asunder. These blessings have been sealed upon him and the promise that he shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection has also been sealed upon him." He read from the Book of Mormon the revealed principles of eternal life and the resurrection and expounded them at length. He concluded by saying: "We lay away the mortal remains of our brother with the knowledge that he will come up again in the morning of the first resurrection, in the body now corruptible, but when it shall be taken up, incorruptible—the same flesh, the same bones. Every part shall be perfect. It will not fail, for the Lord has spoken. I implore the family of Bishop Burton, as brothers and friends, not only to your father, but to you, to follow in the footsteps of your illustrious sire. Keeping the covenants he has kept. Honor your father; walk in his footsteps and emulate his example. Your exhaltation will be sure. May the Lord bless the bereaved family in their hour of sorrow."

The cortege was a long one as it moved from the assembly hall to the graveside. At the grave the doxology was sung by the Pyper-Whitney-Spencer-Ensign quartet sang "I Need Thee Every Hour."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Martin and Tyler Handcart Company Revere Memory of Deceased.

(Special to the "News.")

Provo, Utah, Nov. 13.—The members of the Martin and Tyler handcart company today passed the following resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Robert T. Burton:

Whereas, our brother, Robert T. Burton, after having filled a life of usefulness, extending through so many years of splendid activity, has departed this life.

Therefore, be it resolved, That we, the chairman and members of the handcart committee, and in behalf of the members of the Martin and Tyler Handcart company, feel to tender our sympathy to the family of the illustrious dead, in this the hour of their bereavement.

Resolved, That we revere the memory of the deceased, for his heroic action in coming to our aid, through the deep snows and fastnesses of the Rocky mountains in the winter of 1856, and helping us in to the valley, when our lives were in peril on the great plains.

Resolved, That not only do we honor the deceased for rescuing us, and our brethren and sisters, whose lives were then in great danger, but we honor him for the noble manner in which he has conducted himself in all the affairs of civil, military and ecclesiastical life in which he has been so prominently engaged.

Resolved, That we hereby tender on behalf of the Martin and Tyler Handcart company our love and sympathy to the family of the deceased, and earnestly desire that the Holy Spirit may impart comfort and consolation, in this passing of their husband and father to a well-earned reward and rest in the mansions of our Eternal Father.

PETER ASKED TOO MUCH.

Coal Land Hearing Witness Had His Price, But 'T was High.

Before Master in Chancery Lewis in the circuit courtroom of the United States court yesterday, Peter Anderson testified that while he was working in the coal mines at Sunnyside operated by the Utah Fuel company he had been asked by Mine Supt. Shagg to make entry on a certain piece of land, listing it up as grazing land. Anderson said that he had informed them that he would do so if they would pay $5,000 for the land when he made his transfer to them. This, he said, they refused to do, declaring that they could get all the men they wanted to do the work for from $150 to $500. Anderson testified to the fact that the same proposition had been made to his mother-in-law, but that he, too, asked more than the company would pay for the service.

Another witness, John Gentry, testified to the character of the Utah Fuel company's holdings, declaring that none of the land taken up by the "dummies" was grazing land, but that it was coal land.

George Whitmore, a Nephi banker was on the stand this morning. His testimony was largely a repetition of that furnished by Mr. Gentry. Mr. Whitmore described the land taken up by the Utah Fuel company in Carbon county was mineral, pure and simple, and in no way grazing land.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

The football edition of the Chronicle came out today. It's a dandy.

The "second" football team, composed of men who didn't go to Boulder, leaves for Logan tomorrow to play Coach Stoneback's eleven, the "Crimsons," Saturday. The team is fast and so are the Crimsons. A snappy, close game is expected.

KILLED BY HEAVY WAGON.

Robert Kapelle, son of Otto Kapelle, a purchasing man of Bingham canyon, was run over and killed by a heavy ore wagon yesterday afternoon. The lad was 10 years of age.

RAILROAD NEWS.

NEW INFERNAL MACHINES.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Soon there will be more peaceful hours of slumber for the colored porters during their hours of duty on Burlington trains.

In response to an insistent appeal from the traveling public the management of the Burlington has decided to put what the porters call an "infernal machine" in every Pullman car. This is a self-registering thermometer which makes black streaks on a sheet of paper, which can be read by the general manager or any one else. If the porter fell asleep and the heat went to 100 or if he permitted the chilling blasts to creep into the ventilators the fatal meter of the "infernal machine" will grind the story.

New York, Nov. 14.—As the result of the representations frankly presented by a special committee of grain interests, the railroad embargo placed about a month ago on grain from Buffalo, has been raised and all the trunk-line New York lines will co-operate in a movement to aid in the movement of grain from this country. It is a matter of distinct importance in connection with the gold import movement that is now under way.

The traffic managers and other important officials met representatives of the grain trade and of the produce exchange and agreed to ship out 1,000,000 bushels of grain per week from Buffalo to New York up to the close of navigation.

Another railroad agent today severs his connection with the business and enters commercial life. This time it is J. W. Trewhela, who for a number of years was connected with the local agency of the Rock Island and left here for St. Paul to later go to Seattle as commercial agent for the road. Mr. Trewhela returned to Salt Lake this morning to take a good position with Homenway & Moser as traveling representative.

Mr. Trewhela affirms that the railroads are cutting down their forces to the limit all over the country and the outlook is not bright for a young man, accordingly he decided to get out of the business and come back to his home town.

W. D. McNeill, city ticket agent of the Pennsylvania at Pittsburg, is in Salt Lake today.

New York, Nov. 14.—Directors of the Union Pacific Railway company today declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent on the common stock, which is separate from the rate of dividend of 10 per cent annually established about a year ago.

The directors of the Southern Pacific company declared a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent on the preferred stock and a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the common stock. These dividends are unchanged from the last previous quarter.

ASK FOR CLEMENCY.

Prisoners File Petitions With State Board of Pardons.

The following petitions for official clemency from the state prison have just been filed with the state board of pardons:

For pardon—Joseph Overson, grand larceny, sentenced from Fillmore, July 1, 1905, to five years; Rose Raleigh, grand larceny, Ogden, April 13, 1907, one year; Domingo Larabe, carnal knowledge, Salt Lake, Aug. 9, 1907, one year; Yoso Basich, assault to murder, Salt Lake, Sept. 1, 1906, five years.

Parole—Edward Thompson, burglary, Salt Lake, Oct. 8, 1906, three years; Dick Pensaling, obtaining money under false pretenses, Salt Lake, July 22, 1907, six months county jail; R. R. Robertson, carnal knowledge, Salt Lake, Aug. 27, 1906, two years; Johannes Kooyman, burglary, Ogden, July 13, 1907, two years.

Commutation of sentence—Louie J. Few, assault with deadly weapon, Salt Lake, April 15, 1907, one year; Mary Jane Smith, murder, Salt Lake, April 8, 1903, 20 years.

LOCAL MARKETS.

The feature of today's local markets is the receipt of the first consignment of turkeys which came from Tooele county, where this toothsome fowl is being raised in goodly quantities and of excellent quality. They are wholesaling at 23 cents, and retailing at 27, at present; but prices will be lower a little later on. Uintah and Sanpete counties are yet to be heard from; they are likely to send in heavy supplies. It is not believed there will be any scarcity this season, although barrel birds from the east are not expected in any quantity on account of the heavy call back east. Alfalfa is down a dollar per ton, as there is plenty on the market. Native Concord grapes are reported as out of the market, with Pennsylvania and New York Concordia arriving in seasonable quantities, and retailing at 60 cents per basket. The general receipts include sizeable lots of Clearfield, (Davis county) apples in fine condition, each apple separately wrapped in paper, packed in even sizes, and with the number in each box stenceled on the label. Potatoes are in plenty, with car lots arriving daily from this state and Idaho. Then there are the usual car lots of bananas, cocoanuts, new navel oranges from California, fresh oysters, etc. Councilman Crabtree is about to ship to this city from Phoenix, Ariz., a car of oranges, which it is believed is the first king of such a shipment to be made into Utah from that section. The prices prevailing today are as follows:

RETAIL.

Timothy, per cwt	.90
Alfalfa, per cwt	.75
Corn, per cwt	1.70
Wheat, per cwt	1.60
