BRYAN IN BOSTON.

A Sensational Meeting in the Old-Fashioned Music Hall.

AUDIENCE REMAINS ALL NIGHT.

In Order To Be On Hand For the Convention Today—the Boston Commons.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—In the old, old-fashioned Music hall William Jennings Bryan tonight closed one of the most eventful days of his Eastern tour. The place has a capacity of about 4,000 people under ordinary circumstances. An hour before the candidate's party arrived two-thirds of the seats were filled by ticket-holders and hundreds were standing. When the building had been filled from wall to wall, the doors were closed and clamoring thousands went away disappointed.

When George Fred Williams with his party pushed to the front of the stage, the crowd burst into tumultuous applause. Mr. Williams made what proved to be a most sensational speech. Mr. Williams said:

"I am surprised at the want of intelligence which is displayed by some members of our community, who appear to be easily bewildered, I am surprised that the Atlantic stockholders of Boston are listening to the frantic appeals of the various officials who defrauded them of their hard-earned money. [Applause and cheers.] What do the stockholders of Massachusetts say to the fact that only two years ago one quarter of the railroads of this country were in the hands of the receivers? Is that in the interest of the investors of New England? No; there is but one class that profits by the bankruptcy of railroads, and that is the class of railroad-wreckers and reorganizers of which the king of American finance, J. Pierpont Morgan (cheers and applause) is the head." [Great applause and a voice: "We will kill his friends tomorrow."]

Mr. Williams then addressed himself to tomorrow's convention and said:

"Men appointed to carry out the party will who are openly declaring their sympathies to the Democracy and their purpose to defeat it, hold their places in the party organization in order to defeat the cause which is laid down in the National platform adopted at Chicago. [Applause.] I have not ceased to love and defy the traitors who hold our party sway. [Great applause and cheering.] And they are now at this very moment, with a gold standard majority, undertaking to defeat our rights in that convention tomorrow." [Hisses and groans.]

He then criticised the method of distributing tickets to the convention and added: "I wrote to the mayor of the city of Boston [a storm of hisses] pleading with him for an honest convention and saying that we should hold him personally responsible [applause and cries of "Good!"] for upsetting the will of this convention. He and those he is leading—for he is the leader, I tell you of that fact—let him look no longer [applause and hisses]—he and his men decided that they would keep up their fraudulent methods until tomorrow. Now, what I propose is this: That when this meeting is ended those who hold credentials in this house shall remain here." [Great applause and cries of "We will."]

Here the song of "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" was started, and for a few minutes nothing but applause and singing could be heard. When Mr. Williams procured order he continued:

"I ask them to remind here to hold a meeting for the drafting of a bill of rights to be presented to a judge tomorrow morning to secure their rights, so that, if, when you are gathered, you deem it best to remain in the hall until 11 o'clock tomorrow [great applause and cries of "We will do it"] I will pay for the breakfast, though I cannot provide for them." [Great applause and enthusiastic cheering.]

Then a scene of confusion followed. The cord in the gallery started up the tune, "Hold the fort, for I am coming," and the crowd stood on the chairs and yelled themselves hoarse.

Just as Mr. Williams concluded his speech, Mr. Bryan came his appearance on the stage, and when the cheering had subsided, Mr. Williams introduced him. The nominee delighted George Fred Williams, and turned his attention to the gold standard Democrats. He said he had seen them resort to every sort of deception "in order to elect a Republican to prove that they are better Democrats than anybody else."

Bryan, he said, he was prepared for all sorts of underhand schemes, for all sorts of work in the dark. He said it was necessary to take every precaution, that they would not be found asleep when the enemy came. He had seen for a short time with the newspaper business myself, I do not undertake estimate the influence of newspapers, but in times like these people go where of the newspapers. If this election shall result in elevating to office those who believe in the free coinage of silver, the return will come now. If it results in their defeat, it will simply postpone for four years more the coining of silver to the people of this country.

With this last remark Mr. Bryan closed his address and changed his position to the other side of the platform, as he had been obliged to do so many as eight times during his address. Facing the portion of the crowd which occupied largely the seats his companion on the Democratic ticket to the chair, and both stood upon chairs for the first time in this state, at least, the two candidates who were seen side by side. Introducing his running mate, Mr. Bryan said:

My fellow citizens, I introduce to you a man who, by the time he was willing to stand for free coinage when his neighbors were against it. [Applause and hurrahs for Sewall.] I introduce to you a man who was in favor of an income tax, although he had to pay it. A man who did not bow the knee to Baal, or worship the golden calf. Arthur Sewall, the Democratic candidate for Vice President. [Tremendous applause and cheering for Sewall.]

Mr. Sewall then addressed the crowd.

NON-PARTISAN RAILROAD.

Employees of the Northern Pacific Expect Receivership.

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 25.—Robert W. Winter, president of the Northern Pacific Railway company, and party arrived here today. Mr. Winter was asked if the report that he was to take the management of the road was coming out McKinney in-stars and encouraging the formation of McKinny clubs. He said:

"The report is utterly without foundation, as the Northern Pacific, as a corporation, is absolutely impotent. Our employes are at perfect liberty to vote as they please, and I was only after the receipt of numerous letters of inquiry from employes asking for information on the subject that a general circular letter was sent out, offering all available information on both sides of the question in any one so disposed, to General Manager J. W. Kendrick. Information on one side is sent just as cheerfully as on the other, and our employes are personally free to act and vote as they think right and proper."

A DARING ROBBERY.

Two Men Obtain $1,600 and Escape in a Buggy.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Two men carefully disguised committed a daring robbery at the Union Foundry company's office at Brighton Park this afternoon, robbing the company of $1,600. They then escaped by means of a buggy, but not before they had shot one man and fired several shots into a crowd of people who were chasing them. A pistol wagon gave chase, but did not succeed in capturing the robbers.

In the office when the robbers entered were D. F. O'Neill, president of the company; M. A. Roche, treasurer; C. B. Hopke, general superintendent; Charles O'Gorman, clerk, and John O'Neill, clerk.

Mr. O'Rourke was engaged in filling the envelopes of the men preparatory to paying off, and the top of his desk was covered with money. The robbers completely fooled him at first, and while one kept them covered with two big revolvers, the other scooped up all the money in sight, about $1,600, and then both made a dash for the door. They had left a buggy standing near the building, and springing into it they drove rapidly north across the prairie. As soon as the men, one of whom was tall, the other short, were out of the office, Hopke dashes into the shop to give the alarm to the seventy-five workmen employed there, while President O'Neil and Mr. O'Rourke, grabbing revolvers, started in pursuit. O'Rourke pointed his revolver at them and pulled the trigger, but the weapon failed to explode. O'Neill, however, sent shot after shot at the robbers as he was leaning the rear behind the buggy, but none of them took effect.

The short man, standing up in the buggy, also fired both his revolvers, and when the chambers were empty he reloaded. The long man, who had thrown his revolvers into the bottom of the buggy, paid no attention to the shooting, but kept up his pace with his horse at a terrific rate of speed. A large crowd was soon there in a few minutes, and by the time the chase turned into Archer avenue the chase they were passed by a crowd of several hundred people. Men in wagons and on bicycles by the score took up the chase, but the robber's horse was a good one and outran them all.

In a short time the patrol wagon from the Brighton Park police station was upon the scene, and although the thieves had a long start, it kept other than on a full run. At Thirty-sixth street and California avenue the buggy tipped over and threw the robbers into the street. The patrol wagon was not far behind at the time, and it was thought they would be captured. The thieves, however, quickly picked themselves up, and a second scene of panic, some out on Grand avenue. Near the corner stood Frank Nynoth's milk wagon. The robber's leaped in. The short man drew a second revolver and fired one shot at Nynoth, the bullet taking effect in his right leg, above the knee. The robbers whipped up the horse, which was a spirited one, and up to a late hour had not been captured.

Later the horse and wagon of the milkman were found standing in an alley.

In the bottom of the tipped over buggy were found two milk false beards, a blonde wig and four big revolvers used by the robbers.

Patent and Robbery.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 25.—A highly sensational business amounting between 4,000 and 5,000 accounted to the Mason Hall Rose tonight to great tune. John M. Palmer of Illinois and D. B. Hickman of Kentucky, the national Democratic candidates, Both continuous were hailed with vociferous applause, and points in their addresses were received with applause. When during the course of Senator Palmer's speech he first mentioned the name of W. J. Bryan, it was greeted with applause long and continued, followed by hisses. The uproar lasted five minutes. Every mention of the names of Mr. Bliss and Cleveland called forth enthusiastic cheers. A reference to Gov. Altgeld of Illinois provoked a storm of hisses.

Senator Palmer discussed the money question at some length. In concluding his speech he said: "This imposition upon the American people of bring the slaves of Great Britain is an infamous outrage, whoever says it."

Following Gen. Palmer, Gen. Buckner spoke briefly and was heartily received.

VENEZUELA COMMISSION.

Report to Be Made Shortly Before Congress Convenes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25.—The report of the Venezuelan commission appointed last January to investigate the British-Venezuelan boundary dispute, probably will be made to the President shortly before Congress convenes in December. It was expected that the report might be ready by November 1, but complications in connection with the work in Holland have caused the delay.

The several members of the commission have been at work on different branches of the subject all summer, but it will be impossible to complete as early as possible. Justice Brewer, the chairman of the commission, has called a meeting of the commission for October 5, and it was thought that at that meeting all the necessary data could be submitted and the decision arrived at. All the work of the members of the commission has been arranged with this purpose in view.

The material collected in Spain by the British and Venezuelan governments relative to the original Spanish possessions in the territory in dispute and the material from the propaganda at Rome, which is the records of the old Catholic missions are being in the possession of the commission, and copies were distributed to the members at the last session of the commission.

This material, with the exception of some documents which Frederick Coudert, one of the members of the commission, will bring with him from Rome, is complete. The prospective delay will be incident to the work of Prof. Baer, who has been charged with the task of translating the Dutch archives in Holland. Prof. Baer was instructed to make a most thorough search for anything that might have a bearing on the subject and to obtain assurance copies of all documents. His investigations led him to London. During Brewer's absence he received a cable grams from him saying that he would be in London shortly, implied and that he would return to Holland, but would not finish before the middle of October. The information was considered of such a nature that Justice Brewer, who had been ill, was called upon to go to London. Prof. Baer has kept Justice Brewer informed of the progress of his work and his information has been promptly distributed among the members of the commission, but as Justice Brewer says, in the decision of the question of such great importance and far-reaching effects, each member will be obliged to examine the documents for himself.

Gold Still Coming.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Of the gold brought on the Normannia, $2,700,000 was deposited at the sub-treasury, $1,100,000 being in exchange for greenbacks and $1,600,000 in the sub-treasury. They have engaged for export to this country $1,500,000 in gold for Saturday. Augusta Vanderbilt, was $500,000 in gold for the Le Bourgogne, making the total $2,100,000. The arrangements by this Bros aggregate $13,500,000.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Gold in the open market is quoted today at 77s 11½ per ounce. There was withdrawn from the Bank of England today $2,000 in gold, of which $43,000 was to United States gold.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW.

Heavy Hard Rocker Quoted for the Gold Standard.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Republicans of Kings county opened the campaign tonight in Brooklyn. Six thousand persons cheered Chauncey M. Depew and Franklin Faith of New Jersey.

Chairman Mark A. Hanna was among those on the platform.

Mr. Depew served the Chicago platform and the recent speeches of Mr. Bryan in Brooklyn in wit and sarcasm, and evoked much cheering. Continuing his criticisms, he took up Mr. Bryan's reference to Henry Ward Beecher in which Mr. Bryan had wished for the presence of the preacher and said: "During the Civil war and unlimited currency excitement of 1871, Mr. Beecher delivered a famous sermon on Thanksgiving day of the year on the perils of the hour. In it he used this language, which I commend to the study of the Populist candidate for the Presidency, since he has called Henry Ward Beecher his mentor: 'Whoever tampers with established standards, tampers with the very marrow and vitality of public virtue. He now by tolling or interposes all the worth is one open market, the need of one and the same standard of money, uniform, universal, and of the highest value, imperious. Gold is the world's standard. Gold is the universal measure of value. In the court of the commercial world's parliament, gold is the only voice of conservatism to chest men who have come to our rescue in the dark way. Tom Campbell would not have existed, nor any government of the United States, but for the strength given to our armies by foreign capitalists; and now to restore and to save the treasury is to deserve an Inland as deep as the lowest depths of hell. But woe to those men, without eyes, who are attempting to undermine the integrity of the nation."

Much cheering was elicited by this quotation, and the crowd was enraptured when the speaker added: "If called upon the speaker added: "If Mr. Bryan ever says again, after this has appeared in print, that Beecher is a good platform for the common people, he has more gall than I gave him credit for, and I concede him the kick's shod."

When Mr. Depew finished there were cries of "Hanna," which continued until that gentleman came to the front of the stage. "If I have been successful in anything," said the Republican national chairman, "it has been in knowing enough not to talk too much."
