IN THE WHITE CITY.

Over Three Hundred Thousand People in the Grounds Yesterday.

THE COLUMBUS CARAVELS.

Preparations to Receive the Strange Vessels in Grand style at the Fair.

CHICAGO, July 5.—The indications are, when the counts are all completed, that they will show that over 300,000 people visited the World's Fair yesterday.

Today opened fair, and with a bracing breeze and the crowds began to flock through the gates early. The government buildings of Costa Rica and Venezuela were dedicated today with exercises of an informal character.

Elaborate preparations are being made to receive the Columbus Caravels which are expected to arrive about the 7th, having entered Lake Michigan. The man-of-war Michigan, accompanied by a fleet of vessels, including the coast survey steamer Blake and revenue cutter Andrew Johnson, will go up the lake to meet them. When they arrive at the grounds there will be a parade of United States troops, sailors, marines with detachments of French, Italian, Russian and Spanish sailors, and a number of queer people from Midway Plaisance. It is also intended to include soldiers from all the countries on earth as far as possible. The address of welcome will be delivered by Hon. John Sherman. A number of senators and prominent men, including Allison, of Iowa, ex-Speaker Reed and the secretary and ex-secretary of the navy have been asked to participate in the exercises.

THE COMMISSION MEETS.

The World's Fair national commission met at noon, and for the first time since the organization went into secret session. Commissioner Tarsney in making the motion said that there were many things to be talked over which should not be listened to the world.

There is no hope that civil servants would receive a retrospective compensation.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Money worked easier today. Call loans early were 6 and 7. The highest paid was 15. Time money and commercial paper was unchanged. Foreign bankers were liberal lenders on call. The sterling exchange was higher on good demand from remitters on account of the July disbursements, while the supply of commercial bills was small. The transactions in silver reached at 1 o'clock amounted to 42,000 ounces at 75c; it commercial for silver rose to 75¼c, closing dollars to 59½. The market was quiet, strong.

THE PARIS DISTURBANCES.

More Lawlessness Feared when the Evening Shadows Fall.

Origin of the Trouble.—Best Inquiry Thought to Be the Leaders.

PARIS, July 5.—There was a scene of uproar in the chamber of deputies over a motion to proceed to discuss the riots in the city, which the government opposed. The extremists precipitated a scene of utmost disorder over the matter and it was impossible to transact any business for some time. Finally the matter was postponed by a decided majority.

The men had been cowed by the determined front presented by the government calling out the military and all was quiet up to 5 o'clock this evening. It is feared, however, that trouble will be renewed after nightfall. The government will order the troops to fire into the crowds if necessary. The trouble originally rose from the fining of the manager of the students' ball, being fined for allowing girls to appear in a state little removed from nudity. The students, however, were disposed to think the jeaning or carrying things so far, and have withdrawn from the streets, and only the scum of Paris is concerned. They assure the government that they no longer have any sympathy with the rioters and have posted placards. It is believed the the Bonapartists are fostering the troubles for political ends.

THE PARIS RIOTS.

It is Said to Have Assumed a Serious Aspect.

PARIS, July 5.—It now appears that most of the rioting yesterday was not done by students, but by the riff raff, who took advantage of the occasion to raise a disturbance. This class resumed the rioting this morning and had numerous conflicts with the police and soldiers. Numbers on both sides were injured. The affair has assumed such a serious aspect that the authorities are determined to restore order at any cost. Almost the whole city is occupied by troops who have orders to repress any disorder with strong hand. The body of Nogent, a young man killed in yesterday's riots was conveyed by unfrequented streets to Lyons railway station this morning and sent home to his parents at Lyons, to avoid another uprising.

FARMERS NEED AID.

Western Kansas in a Deplorable Condition.

TOPEKA, Kans., June 5.—The gravity of the condition of the farmers of western Kansas continues to grow more serious. Unless they are soon provided with substantial aid the country will be deserted by those able to get away, while those compelled to remain will suffer for the necessaries of life. A call has been made for a convention of representatives throughout the stricken counties to meet at Scott, Wichita county, to discuss some plan for providing seed wheat.

THE GOVERNOR UNCONCERNED.

TOPEKA, July 5.—Governor Lewelling has been importuned to call an extra session of the legislature to take action for the relief of the farmers in the western parts who have no seed wheat on account of the drouth. He says the exigencies of the case are not great enough to warrant such a course. While the wheat is a failure the corn prospect was never better.

SEIZED BY LIGHTNING.

A Farmhouse Destroyed and Several Lives Lost.

GREENWOOD, Miss., July 5.—A farmhouse four miles northeast of this place was struck by lightning and burned early this morning. A man named Babcock, his wife and children and a man named Frost, of Fosbitts, and a child of R. Betts were burned to death. Roberts's daughter was badly hurt. Five slaves in the house escaped.

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Stocks opened dull and weak. The decline to 10 o'clock the past five minutes was 1 @ 1½ per cent. Western Union stood the greatest loss, silver opened strong, higher at 75c.

Stocks after opening became intensely dull but firmer. The early decline was due to the further advance of the sterling exchange to 489 @ 490, which will cause gold imports. Stock prices after the opening recovered fairly general decline. Sugar, however, jumped 1½ to 71½. At 11 o'clock the market was firm.

Stocks were quiet after 11 o'clock, with an upward tendency, but slight price changes. At noon the market was dull.

Stocks were distorted this afternoon by vague rumors of financial difficulties in London. The Associated Press London services say that no failures have occurred there. The reports are believed to be canards.

MORE FAILURES.

The Commercial Bank of Winnipeg on the List.

WINNIPEG, July 5.—The Commercial bank has gone into liquidation. The liabilities are $1,270,000 and the assets $1,204,000. The bulk of the bank goes under the Dominion law.

Justice Blatchford's Condition.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—Justice Blatchford is in a critical condition. He is reported as relishing everything except liquid food.

No Silver Purchase.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Five hundred and thirty thousand ounces of silver were offered to the treasury today. There were no purchases.

Acting Mint Director Preston did not purchase any silver today as he considers the offers too high. He did not, as he has done recently, make any counter offers and as a result no silver will be purchased by the government until Friday and not then if the offers are at figures higher than he thinks they should be. A small lot was offered at $0.75.45 per ounce but most of the prices ranged 76.9 to 80. The London price this morning was 75.9 and taking into consideration the exchange, the New York figure, it is said, should be about 75.5.

THE "NEWS" WAS RIGHT.

An Over-Certain Cotemporary Makes a Denial of a Fact.

On Monday evening the News announced in effect that the bricklayers on the joint city and county building had thrown down their trowels and quit work during that day, and that they refused to go to work.

An over-certain cotemporary yesterday morning hastened to call it a false report. The fact is there was nothing false or misleading about the statement whatever. The men quit work precisely as stated in the News. They did not return to work on Monday nor did they do so today. They are still off. They, however, were paid in full by the contractors who are responsible to them. The city is responsible to the contractors and will again be called upon to allow the estimate, tabled at a recent meeting.

Catchpenny Proceedings.

There was apparently something altogether wrong with either Calder's park or the Rapid Transit company yesterday. It was generally understood that those who patronized the railway would be admitted free to the grounds; but on arrival there those who sought admission in accordance with their understanding were denied and had to pay 25 cents or stay out. A great many, including some men of prominence, chose the latter course, not because they didn't have or couldn't afford the money, but because they didn't propose, as they said, to be made the victims of any such underhanded schemes. We are advised that contractors on the railway interested those who asked that it was free admission to the grounds, and by such means gained considerable business for their company that otherwise would have gone elsewhere. Somebody seems exactly to blame and ought to be made to explain.

BIG ROW AT TINTIC.

It Springs Out of Attachments on the Property of W. W. Dudley & Co.

DEPUTY MARSHALS SURPRISED.

Roman Cannon and His Colleagues Have An Unpleasant Experience.—Warrants of Arrest Issued.

The trouble which has arisen at Tintic between deputy marshals and Sheriff Sullivan and his merry men does not seem to be yet at an end, and the probabilities are that before the present week has expired there will be some further exciting developments. As stated in a previous issue of the News, the U. S. marshal has taken further action in the premises.

Recently an attachment was issued from the Third district court against Wm. W. Dudley and others, doing business as the Josie, Utah, Milling company, for a debt of $568.90, the plaintiffs being the Salt Lake Valley Loan and Trust company, and, again, on Saturday last, at the instance of Cunningham & company (Josie county), Judge Zane appointed A. E. Hyde receiver, under a bond of $500, to take charge of the defendants' mining property at Tintic. Under several writs of execution the property was virtually at that time in the hands of the U. S. marshal, and it was when Deputy Marshal Roman Cannon and two other deputies went to take possession last Saturday night that the row really began. For obvious reasons the deputies deemed it wisdom to keep their own counsel until the morning. When the following particulars, which are given in substantially the officer's own words, were gleaned from Deputy Cannon:

I went down to Tintic on Friday night last with a copy of the attachment from the Third district court, accompanied by Deputies Rush and Cassity. We intended to take charge of the property and remain there. We was about 3000 when we reached the mill, and upon entering found two men there. The one was Engineer Fitzgerald; the other I did not know. I notified them of the nature of our business; but we were immediately ordered to quit the premises. I made a similar request of them and said that the engine must at once be shut down, as we proposed to take possession of the works forthwith. Thereupon engineer suggested that I had better see Mr. Grier, the foreman, who was then at the boarding house about 100 yards distant. I preferred to remain on the spot, but sent Deputy Cassity to inform Mr. Grier of our presence there. In a short time afterwards Grier and a dozen other men came running up to the mill. One of the number was a man named Donoghue, who asked, "What are you doing in here?" I told him I had attached the mill property. "Well," he replied, "the sheriff is ahead of you—I've got possession of it myself, and you will have to get out of here." I told him I did not think so and appealed to Mr. Grier, telling him that I desired to serve a copy of the court's attachment upon him, as foreman. His answer was, "it won't do you any good to serve it on me, as the sheriff has taken hold of the property all ready," and he threw the paper on the ground when it was handed to him.

When I learned upon inquiry that it was Donoghue who was said to be in possession, as representing the sheriff, I said to him: "Then I notify you and everybody else around here that I now hold possession as a deputy U. S. marshal and intend to hold it."

"No you don't," exclaimed Donoghue, as he made a move to come inside. I grabbed him and put him away, and tried to talk quietly with him, explaining that he had better go and inform sheriff Sullivan how matters stood and let that official take what further steps he thought proper. "Let him if he likes," I said, "get out a warrant against me, and that will bring things to a head. If he comes with a warrant I would, of course, if necessary, submit to arrest; but I do not propose to leave here now to any other way.

Donoghue then began to get warm and shouted out at me, "G— d—, there's enough here to put you out, and I'm instructed to arrest anybody who comes in this place. There are three of us here who are deputy sheriffs." Again Donoghue repeated (using the same words as before) "We will put you out." To this I replied "I was invited to be here. I am here in the authority of the Third district court, and I don't propose to be interfered with.

After talking with him for about half an hour we got the mill to ourselves. I then locked the door, shut the engine down, got the engineer out, and let the other man who was with him remain to watch the boilers, so that there should be no possibility of their blowing up. Then when all danger of that was over I requested him to leave, which he did.

It was not very long after this that we heard a noise somewhere in the rear of the building and I called to Deputy Rush that it sounded like someone forcibly breaking in. A lantern was obtained, and it was then found that Donoghue and a dozen or more had gained ingress through the roof. I grabbed Donoghue and Donoghue grabbed me, he still threatening arrest. We had a scuffle, and while this was going on I heard a fellow who was standing near some little remark: "Whenever you say ready, I'll blow the s— of a b— to h—!" As I loosed my one of the smaller men had a gun drawn in Deputy Rush, while two others were coming the direction of me! After some little trouble we succeeded in getting down a little. I requested Rush and Cassity to remain in the mill while I drove over to Silver City—which is six or seven miles southwest of Tintic—and telegraphed to Mr. Critchlow of Salt Lake City, the plaintiff's attorney.

But no one in the town among those to whom I went would hire me a horse and buggy. However, I was determined not to be outdone, so at two o'clock in the morning I started to walk a Mr. Smith accompanying me a short distance. When we had gone about two miles we met Sullivan, the sheriff, and Scott, his deputy, who were driving. They pulled suddenly up. Sullivan jumped down, leveled his gun and called, "Hold, there! Who is that?" I answered "Hello, Sullivan, is that you?" "Yes," he said, "and who are you?" I told him, and then he asked, "What in h— are you fellows doing here?" I told him that I was going to the telegraph office to find out "what in thunder" we were doing.

"Well," replied Sullivan, "I tell you one thing: If any of your men are in the mill I'll blow the s— s of b——s out!" I told him that two of them were there and that I had instructed them to stay. He replied that he thinks and Scott added, "Yes, that's what we will do."

I then proceeded on my journey to Silver City and reached there a little after four o'clock. In the meantime the sheriff and the deputy had gone down to the mill, grabbed Rush and Cassity, jerked them out of there and pulled guns on them and put them under arrest. Rush was taken to Eureka and Cassity to Silver City. The latter said his condition, in a town, overtook me before I got there. I then consulted that instead of telegraphing I might return to Salt Lake and reached here at 10 o'clock the same morning. Rush and Cassity were released on their own recognizance till Saturday, a charge of trespassing and interfering with law officers having been preferred against them.

I instructed Cassity and Smith to remain on the ground and watch that the mill people did not haul any of the ore bin away, there being $4000 or $5000 worth stored there.

Mr. Cannon showed the reporter a telegram which he received from Smith on the Saturday afternoon, in which the latter stated that he could not succeed in getting better than $20 apiece so from the mill, and that he had beaten down the price of the rifle. Smith also mentioned that extra men, all armed, had been put on duty by the opposing force.

Attorney Critchlow prepared affidavits, wrote telegrams Judge Zane to day and obtained warrants for the arrest of John T. Sullivan, H. F. Grier, John Jones, John Doe Donoghue, W. L. Scott, and "John Doe."

At five o'clock this afternoon Deputy Marshals Dawson Cannon, Andrew J. Eurt and R. M. Jeanney will leave, by rail, for Tintic, arriving there about 10:30 p. m. They hope to return with their prisoners tomorrow morning. Whether any further disturbance will occur remains to be seen; but Mr. Cannon is very resolute and says he intends to carry out the legal obligation resting upon him at all hazards.

THE RECEIVER CAN'T GET IN.

On Saturday night, when Receiver Hyde went over to take possession of the property—which is now described as being held "under arms" by the opposing faction—he was unable to execute his commission, and this morning Attorney W. C. Hall went before Judge Zane, when an attachment for contempt was issued against the offending parties, returnable next Saturday.

This afternoon warrants were issued for the arrest of these persons also.

J. R. WALDEN ONE OF THEM.

The Utah Commission Have Now Appointed Registrars for Twenty-four Counties.

The members of the Utah Commission were in session again this morning and chose the following persons to serve as registrars for the eleven counties named. There are only two more counties to be looked after and then the list will be complete:

Kane—Fuller Broadbent.
Piute—L. G. Long.
Sevier—I. J. Stewart.
Uintah—Richard Ventman.
Wayne—H. L. Maxfield.
Cache—E. S. Kimball.
Davis—John G. M. Barnes.
Salt Lake—Joseph R. Walden.
Wasatch—Frederick Hayes.
Grand—Henry Cruse.
San Juan—Chas. E. Walton.

All the foregoing are Democrats until Wasatch county is reached, Mr. Hayes being a Republican, Mr. Walton, and Mr. Cruse have been reappointed. The politics of the last two named is stated "unknown." No recommendation was sent in either from Grand or San Juan, so the commission reappointed the old officers.

When the registrars are all selected the appointment of deputies will begin. These number upwards of three hundred.

A LITTLE GIRL BURNED.

Stella, the Seven-Year-Old Daughter of Charles B. Wilcken, Meets with a Severe Accident.

Stella, the seven-year-old daughter of Charles B. Wilcken, met with a very painful though fortunately not fatal accident at the corner of Sixth South and Seventh East streets last evening about 6 o'clock, within half a block from the home of her parents. She was playing with a number of children of the neighborhood, who were celebrating the Fourth by the discharge of firecrackers and miniature torpedoes, when her dress was accidentally ignited by a spark. Being of light material it burst into a blaze almost instantly. The child became terribly frightened and ran towards home. The rapid motion of her body fanned the flames into a blaze that almost enveloped her body.

The first person to reach her was Mr. Hugh J. Cannon, who on seeing her perilous situation hastily pretended him self with a baggy robe and wrapped it about her feet from time extinguishing the flames.

It was found on examination that the child was terribly burned about the arms, back and throat. Dr. Midgley attended to her injuries at once and all things considered she is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances. She passed a comfortable night and today is reported as being out of danger.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

The Glorious Fourth Was Given Up to Excursions and Infernal Enjoyments.

Another glorious Fourth has past. It will be chiefly memorable for the manner in which it was informally observed. It was a day of pleasure, though patriotism abounded everywhere, notwithstanding the neglect to celebrate it according to prescribed rules. Ballet and Garfield were thronged by thousands of picnickers, while the parks, groves and canyons fairly swarmed with happy sunseekers. A forest of not quite one half of the population of the city was beyond the borders of the municipality at one time.

THEY DID NOTHING.

The Joint City and County Building Committee Again Adjourn.

THIS TIME UNTIL FRIDAY NEXT.

They Are Sorely Puzzled and Feel Unequal to the Occasion.—More Time Wanted.

The joint city and county building committee met in executive session this morning to consider what was best to do in regard to the muddle arising out of the scarcity of funds in the municipal and county offices.

The committee are anxious that there shall be no delay in the matter of work on the building and are at their wits ends as to how to act. Although today's meeting was entirely secret it leaks out that nothing of a satisfactory character was done. In fact the Mayor was not present and an adjournment was taken until Friday next, when an attempt will be made to secure the attendance of the chief executive. The reason for his absence at today's session was wholly misunderstood by the committee.

Press Club Incorporation.

The Salt Lake City Press club will hold a special session tonight for the purpose of making final arrangements for incorporating, a step that has been contemplated for some time.

Editor Deseret News:

In regard to the question suggested by one of our friends, as to what ought to be or might be done by the Utah commission as to the disposition to be made of the building designated as above, and as to your comments thereon, I beg to suggest that, to my opinion, the subject has not been discussed to conclusion.

I can well believe when passing along the streets of Salt Lake City, that a very large amount of money has been expended in buildings to be rented by the owners; it may be that too many such buildings have been erected, that the supply exceeds the demand, and that if the United States should decide to economize by using the above building as offices for the governor, secretary, the surveyor-general, the register and receiver, the Utah commission, etc., etc., that that would tend to the injury of our own citizens who want tenants. Such might be the case, but it so, I cannot perceive that it would be just for the national treasury to be divided that our over-sanguine capitalists may be remunerated.

It occurs to me that economy on the part of the government is a duty due to the whole people, and especially do Democrats oppose protection of private interests at the public expense; on this account, if for no other reason, I believe it proper for the Utah commission to save to the treasury from six to ten thousand dollars per annum by ceasing to pay rent for offices for public use, when the government already owns a building suitable for such purposes.

No doubt many suggestions have been and other no doubt will be made on this subject. Some persons want the building for a high school. Our school board, which has been very liberal in borrowing and spending money for school houses, has built quite a number of large and expensive houses, from which, if a high school is a necessity, one suitable could be selected.

It has been suggested that the House is too far from the center of trade. It is in Salt Lake City, the present seat of government of Utah, and the offices which it is proposed to remove to it are mostly United States offices in which the people of Utah are interested. It may be but far from palaces and restaurants, if so, perhaps others may follow.

I do not understand that it is proposed to interfere with any leases now in existence. The post office and the court room, are leased I understand for a term, but not so with some other buildings now used by public officers.

A move and beyond all, let it be understood that under existing financial conditions, the true policy of all wise men is to "husband resources" and "Private individuals have the right to be extravagant or otherwise, but public officers have no discretion in spending this tide, and if the Utah commission and other government officers can save money to the government by ceasing to pay rent, it is their duty to do so, and they ought to do it, at least such is the opinion of H. D. J.

NOW THE OLD FOLKS.

Weber Stake Extends to Them an Invitation.

IT IS ACCEPTED FOR JULY 15TH.

The "Queen City of the Mountains" will Loyally Entertain the Visitors.

On two occasions previous to 1890 the old folks have cross their annual excursion to the capital of Weber county, and on each occasion have been grandly treated. The kindness conveyed in the following will be therefore gladly received by the veterans:

OGDEN CITY, July 1st, 1893.

WILLIAM H. PRESTON, Presiding Bishop:

Dear Brother—The matter of an excursion to the immediate future, of the "Old Folks" was today laid before the meeting of the Presidency of this stake, and a resolution passed to the effect that the people of Ogden and Weber county extend a hearty invitation to the aged veterans to come to the "Queen City of the Mountains" and be our guests; and that we give them—this invitation being accepted—a warm and loving reception and a generous entertainment.

Your brother in the Gospel,
L. W. SHURTLIFF,
President of Weber Stake.

JAMES TAYLOR, Clerk.

The Old Folks' committee, of which Bishop Wm. H. Preston is a member, took the matter in hand and promptly decided to accept the invitation. The question of date came up, and Tuesday, July 15th, was determined upon as the most available day.

For the convenience of the Old Folks, the Rio Grande Western has placed a train at the disposal of the committee on the 15th, and will convey them to and from Ogden free of charge. The details of the arrangement will be arranged at an early date. The invitation will be as usual, to old folks regardless of creed or color.

A BAD SCALP WOUND.

Mrs. Fred Hill Thrown From a Buggy With Serious Results.—A Dangerous Street Crossing.

Several accidents have occurred at the intersection of East Temple and First South streets during the last few weeks and that someone has not been killed seems almost incomprehensible. The intersection is made almost impossible by reason of the turn up condition of the street. It was the scene of a most serious accident last night, and one, it is said, that will involve the city in a heavy damage suit.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill were driving over the streets indicated when the latter, with her two months old baby, was thrown violently from the conveyance, her head striking one of the street car rails with such force as to lay open the scalp for several inches. She was carried into Parkinson's drug store, where considerable was administered to her by Dr. Joseph Richards, who sewed up the wound from which blood freely flowed. Twelve stitches were necessary.

Strange to relate, the baby was uninjured.

AN ENJOYABLE BANQUET.

Local Newspaper Men Legally Entertained by the Utah Britannica Company at the Manitou.

The News staff on Monday night was one of the guests with other local newspaper men of the Utah Britannica Company at the Manitou. The affair was a quiet one and of the most pleasant character. There were numerous toasts and responses at the banquet board, which was spread with an elegant repast.

Mr. Shumaker acted as master of ceremonies and performed his part with the grace and dignity of a Chauncey Depew. He found able assistants in the persons of Messrs. Middleton, Riley, Davis and Kimball, all Britannica men and gentlemen of culture. Long live Britannica and those whose mission it is to make it the educational monument in Utah that it is elsewhere.

LOST IN THE CANYON.

Ernest Hemsfler Wanders Away From His Parents and Cannot Be Found.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemsfler and family who reside at No. 618 south, Fourth East street, left home yesterday morning to spend the day on a picnicking expedition to the coal shanes and refreshing breezes of Parley's canyon. They made their stopping place in an inviting little nook, and soon after the meal was started out with reel and rod to catch a "mess" of trout for dinner. Later, Ernest, a little fellow of five years was missed, and it was supposed and followed his brother, but this conclusion was found to be incorrect. A general search, in which the mother who was unconscious, was instituted, but nowhere could the missing child be found. The searchers returned without leaving any trace behind him.
