THE POLICE STATION.

A Question as to Where Future Headquarters Shall Be.

THE NEW OR OLD HALL—WHICH?

Public Sentiment Apparently Against the Joint City and County Building—The Reasons.

The joint city and county building is rapidly nearing completion. The interior is being transformed from a crude and unenviting appearance to a condition of comfort and finish as fast as skilled labor and a committee, which in the main is energetic and capable, can bring that result about.

With the completion of this great structure will come numerous changes in the operation of various municipal departments. While it is not seriously believed that any of them will be abolished, it is thought, and an effort to that end is now being made—that is, the consolidation for economic reasons, of the clerical forces of different branches of the city government.

These matters are already being agitated and are receiving the serious consideration of those most interested. It is positively known that in a very short time the business at the city within principally transacted at the joint city and county building. All heads of departments but two are hearty enough to move their offices. They will be entirely prepared before the word of command is given. The exceptions are Chief Devine and Chief Pratt. Of course it has never been intended that the location of the fire department should be changed. But it has been, and doubtless is now, a part of the program, at least so far as new offices are concerned, to have the headquarters of the police transferred during the exodus of officials to the joint city and county building.

The indications are, however, that there will be overwhelming opposition to this particular part of the schedule as outlined above. The reasons urged are numerous and separate. First it is argued that the chief of police should not be so remotely located from the jail. Second, that it is desirable that headquarters be as close to the haunts of the criminal classes as possible—a condition which is true with reference to the present hall. Third, that men and women hanging to the avenues of sin and shame should not under the escort of officers or otherwise be allowed to stock the consciousness of the people of the beautiful approaches to or corridors or other appointments of the new hall. Men, women and children infested and delouse in their manner and living will in large numbers be daily visitors there. Desperate, lawless, drunken men and fallen women are not pictures that they will care to look upon. By keeping the police station where it is and turning over the present city hall from Commercial to gutter in the department it is believed that ample headquarters for years to come may be had.

A NEWS representative heard considerable discussion on the subject this afternoon and public opinion seemed to be that the police department should continue to do business at the old stand.

POLITICAL MATTERS.

Frank Y. Taylor Resigns as a Constitutional Convention Nominee—Meetings.

Frank Y. Taylor, who was recently nominated by the Democratic party of this county for Constitutional convention delegates, has tendered his resignation as such nominee, giving as a reason that he has also received the nomination for county assessor, and that he will not make the race for both offices.

The county committee will meet on Saturday and fill the vacancy. Just who will be named to succeed Mr. Taylor, who resides in Sugar House ward, is not known.

The Republican rally at the Eighteenth ward Independent school house tomorrow evening, it is claimed, will be a large one. Arrangements looking to that end have been made, and the ladies are expected to turn out in force. The Republican glee club will furnish the musical selections.

Mrs. F. S. Richards will be one of the speakers at the Democratic rally in the Eleventh ward this evening. The meeting will commence at 7:30, and it is announced that a numerous attendance of ladies is expected.

There will be another big rally at the Continental Market hall on Monday night next under the auspices of the Democratic Military club, of which Prof. Anton Pedersen is the director. Judge King, of Provo, is announced as one of the speakers for that occasion.

There was an enthusiastic rally of the Republican Workingmen's Central club at the Grand Pacific hotel last night. The speakers were Charles Stanton, Harvey Harry, J. L. Franks, and H. E. Booth. The Republican Glee club rendered several lively campaign songs.

There was a large turnout of Populists at the meeting of that party in the old Federal court room last night. H. G. Snyder acted as chairman, and speeches were made by Warren Foster of Kansas, and a Mr. Boddington of Washington.

Hon. B. H. Roberts addressed a very large and enthusiastic gathering of citizens at the Continental Market hall last night on Democratic doctrine. There was also an overflow meeting on the outside at which D. C. Dunbar, H. W. Stout, J. B. Rawlings and others spoke.

A committee of county Republicans met at Hayden's hall, Murray, last night, and made preliminary arrangements for a big rally at that point on Thursday afternoon, one week from today. The principal speaker will be Hon. F. J. Cannon.

First precinct Republicans will hold forth at the Exposition building on Tuesday next. This evening a meeting of the members of the same party and locality will be held at Conway's hall.

Colonel Allen Miller and A. S. Gedes, will speak at the Central school house, Sugar Creek, Saturday next, at 8 p. m.

IN THE TETON COUNTRY.

City, Parks and Peaks Described by an Eloquent Observer.

Game of the Region—Elk an Exhibition to Winter—Railroad to National Park Wanted.

TETON CITY, Idaho, Oct. 22.—If it were not included in the same and would scarcely realize that we were in a city at all when he finds himself within the borders of this pretty little place. It is as rambling in general construction as most other places in Fremont county, but has a homelike, inviting sort of appearance with it all, also as elsewhere, the people are hospitable and enterprising. There are not to exceed 500 of them in the place, and these are spread over several square miles, becoming more and more gregarious as the central point is reached, so here they are quite neighborly but not in any sense crowded; within a radius of half a mile are probably three dozen restaurants surrounding a couple of stores, a post office and boarding house. This latter is also an amusement hall where dancing and theatricals and concerts are given during the long winter nights, and on occasions like these it is said, not quite generally tardy, it has been the boarding house which have succeeded modern "philippics" of the western variety on the question of party politics. The building is of wooden logs and is not very capacious or elegant, but it has been found equal to the demands upon it up to date; next year the town, if all goes right, will have a more pretentious structure of brick, the same foundation for which is already laid fronting the Yellowstone avenue. Bishop John E. Parsons informs me that a move from schoolhouse point, but is always an hour when wanted, and looks after the people's welfare on practical business principles, correct principles and upright below only can. He is the Democratic candidate for probate judge, and it is only fair to say that his popularity does not begin nor end with his own party.

Several miles east of here are the Teton peaks, the most needle-like and towering eminences in this part of the world. The bright of the principal one, which looks down upon the city associates, themselves in bold relief against the eastern sky, on silver side from a sharp-pointed summit a thousand feet or more nearer the zenithan does than these are, has never been scaled and never will be with neither earth nor another greater convenience and the physical aspects in the condemnation between entering a marked and wonderful range. They are the objective points of eastern Idaho and Yellowstone and are really the most unique and majestic stand all the attractive determinants wrought by the navigation hand of nature. They seem at a great distance somewhat like the Rights of a Tibetan land or like the index pointing to immortality. By a special process known chiefly to poets and professors we might fancy that upon their summit had to the characters the cherubim, as the of cherubim would be so fitting, you know, to a place where middle and general imaginative period. These "fingers" look (if fancy can be said to look) down upon the Yellowstone National Park on the northeast, and if they could only be swung off their base and placed horizontally might constitute a symbol toward to the great reservation whose fitness and appropriateness to surroundings would be recognized by those who have only common everyday vitality in their spheres as well as those whose immortal part is tinged with the golden tints of poesy.

Several miles westward from Teton peaks and the mountain range of which they form a part is an independent outcast of a range of mountains running nearly parallel with the coast for a considerable distance, and between the ranges is what is called Teton basin, a tolerably populous and naturally productive strip of the public domain. I know there exists in that section Snake river valley and the snow falls deeper and stays longer. The mountains to the east abound with elk and these rapidly diminishing creatures are in the fall are driven out of their fastnesses by the great depths of snow which cut off their food supply altogether. They are then forced into the haunts of civilization and all winter long, like the poor politician who changes on to his party in spite of ill usage and continued disappointment, live on such stray morsels as drift outside the certain waste the more favored are feeding. They are too poor to kill and the laws of the state do not permit any one to place them in durance vile for fattening or any other purpose; so the people have a surprising zoological exhibit free of charge, albeit a most pathetic one. The elk, like the buffalo, will soon exist only as a memory of the frontier except in very rare cases and unusual places; and yet the former when driven by necessity will seek the haunts of his hereditary enemy—his destroyer—by the surfeiting of a window which that destroyer alone can give, and give it only with the hope that just on for may have an opportunity to take the life as gives, but to another way. Perhaps sentiment has of Hawk's lines on seeing a woman so have dropping away to find of security from the house who had married—but let that pass.

The majority of tourists to the national park pass through this county, and this gives rise to the suggestion that a railway connecting with the Union Pacific at Market Lake would be a fine thing for the city there and the traveling public also. It would be a source supported by the people of a wealthy growing, agricultural and stock raising district recent in production, because to some, and during a summer season would be in vogue with passenger traffic. It is only about 60 miles between the points named, and the country is reasonably level and easy to work through. A great deal of the stock to once an enterprise would be taken by the people of the county and everything made as easy as possible. Herein is a suggestion worthy the attention of capitalists and men of enterprise generally, perhaps the U. P. itself might be induced to give the subject consideration. It is worthwhile to the two and to the people that may flow from such therein, which would surely be conservative, and the company need not pay for a road for having "not been on." I am no cozy observer to take hold of the scheme myself, and therefore leave the field open to others.

They are still taking gold from the sands and dust from the waters of Snake river hereabout. One pound of that which has been spoken of as being more powerful than one and more creative than genius was recently secured on the bank of a river run by one primitive mountain two miles from where I write, by the sheep men for their (sheep) authorities are grazing deposition last night—Lyman. This reminds me that those who are unknowing as severely on the Populists because of the latter's weakness for flat money, might to have seen in the mining a short time ago and seen the wife of a man who is engaged in gold mining trying in vain to exchange nuggets for goods. She told that whom with the government stamp,—or flat—so it is pronounced good money up all and the only money by not a new; it has been the cause of more crime, misery, corruption, war, oppression, villainy and trickery than all the other agencies of Satan combined—and yet was not in this instance powerful enough to obtain for its owner a few articles of ordinary merchandise, because the fool was wanting! Having done something by way of suggestion for the Populists, the writer is responding to requests for the Sunbeam for their (Populists) consideration. As for the time—well, I have caught quite a number and only pass ten venues found for them. Earlier in the season I met at Lewisville (twenty miles west of here) caught one that weighed twenty-seven pounds avoirdupois, and at another time one that weighed two pounds nor. A several of his neighbors been witness to this, perhaps it will have to be identified; but it is an oral strain or one who sings no grievance with a certain quantity of originality.

PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, OCT. 23, 1894.

The $10,000 Damage Case.

After further cross-examination of Mr. Caldwell in the case of Powers vs Caldwell, Lorenzo Hatch was called. He testified that Mr. Crouse had offered a Mr. Whitaker $75 if he would poison Mr. Caldwell's horse. Whitaker had considered the proposition and after a time went to Crouse and told him he would take the money and stop. Crouse had said that it was to make it would arouse suspicion to go to the drug store and buy the necessary drugs.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Hollopeter testified that he had advised Caldwell to swear out a complaint against Powers, after hearing the evidence.

Prosecuting Attorney Camp testified to a similar manner.

Mr. Powers was called by the defense and asked if he had made a proposition, about a week ago, to compromise the case for $250. The question was objected to, objection sustained and an exception taken. He testified to repeated that he had not gone near the Caldwell house on the day of the case, with a bottle or without one. Neither had he told Hatch that he could "slipp" a horse on the track and that that was the place to do it. The jury received their instructions this morning from Judge King and retired to determine upon the verdict.

The jury was out two hours and returned a verdict for plaintiff awarding him damages in the sum of five hundred dollars.

OTHER BUSINESS.

E. C. M. I. has commenced a suit of replevin against James Dunn and Jas. F. Dunn, to foreclose a mortgage on certain real estate in this county, mortgaged to secure the payment of a promissory note of $1,000.

Dennis Sullivan has commenced suit against Henry Kohl to recover $300.75, being one-half of money received by plaintiff in defendant, for the purpose of obtaining a United States patent to the Rosebud and American star mining claims.

Attorney Worlenston moved that the order to resubmit the case against Wm. Twelves (indictment) to the next grand jury, be set aside. The case was here referred by two grand juries, and an indictment was returned by a third grand jury and several witnesses on account of a name of one of the witnesses, who had testified before the grand jury, not appearing on the indictment. The court overruled the motion, on the request of the district attorney, to have the case resubmitted. This order Mr. Worlenston held to be wrong under the statutes. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Thurman opposed the motion; he did not know if this was the same case that the previous grand juries had acted on. If it was it turn out that it was the same case that would prejudice a good defense when the case came to trial, but he did not consider that the motion is not so do the order should be granted. They will look the matter under advisement.

Notes.

The Provo street railway is now being taken up, the rails will be used on the new railway from Fairfield to Mercur.

Yesterday afternoon Arthur Wilde, a boy about twelve years of age, the son of Abraham Wilde, had his left wrist caught in the cogs of a wheel in the Provo Woolen mills, where he is employed. The flesh was badly torn, but no bones were broken.

Benjamin Kirkham, aged 57, Ellen Molen, aged 52, both of Provo, have taken out a marriage license.

John Mellarty and Minnie West, both of Clear Creek, were united in marriage this evening by U. S. Commissioner Dudley.

Captain Cannon's company of the National Guards of Utah have received their uniforms, and the boys present a fine appearance. Last evening another company night the captaincy of J. H. Dunbaker would have mustered in, but as insufficient number of members appeared. The delay is only temporary. Uniforms and other equipments have been ordered for the new company.

College Chums was presented to a good house by the Lyceum company at the Opera house last evening. The play was hearty, subject to the speculation, and would doubtless draw a good house if repeated.
