Last week E. P. Erickson, Joe Orrock, Will Orrock, and Pete Peterson came home to Richfield from a freight-trip west. They were four of the party of eleven teamsters who drove loads of grain and supplies to Milford and Nevada mining camps. The other seven were G. W. Blomquist, Jim Brown, Jim Christensen, Tenis Christensen, Pete Jorgensen, Pete Larsen and John Orrock. Along with this this crowd also went Niels Anderson and Chris Peterson, who took with them a guitar and mandolin, hoping to be retained as musicians at mining camp dances. One of the Gurr boys also accompanied the outfit, bound for DeLamar to work in the mines.

Four of the teamsters in the main gang drove four horses each. A day behind them were Will Gurr, Alfred Peterson and Hy Riley, all loaded with freight, in their van August Nielson drove a wagon heavily burdened.

The trip of the Richfield boys was eventful, full of varied and thrilling experiences. As they crossed the divide in Clear Creek canyon, August Nielsen's wagon tipped over. Nielsen was thrown violently down the embankment and so crippled as to have been helpless for the next few days. At the same place Pete Larsen was thrown from his wagon and his horses ran away. They were stopped, however, by teamsters in front, and no serious damage resulted. Just the other side of the canyon divide, where the road is a dugway skirting a steep mountain, Tenis Brown's wagon tipped, Brown fell off the load and his horses started to run. The driver narrowly escaped falling under the heavy load, which would have meant almost certain death. As the wagon slid down the mountain, pulling with it the struggling team, one horse kept constantly falling against a wheel and was badly cut. If he had once fallen under, the wheel would have broken his leg. The other horse broke loose and was plunged down over the dugway, twenty-five yards, towards the bottom of the canyon. It strangely happened that when the wagon had been righted and the horses recovered there was found nothing damaged.

On Monday, January 10, the freightmen reached Antelope ridge, about twenty miles miles this side of Milford. That night a blinding blizzard overtook them. The snow piled up hub deep on the wagons and drifted in piles and ridges that it was impossible to surmount. The men in the party were four days and four nights plowing through the beautiful from Antelope to Milford, only twenty miles. The thermometer ranged from 20 to 26 degrees below zero, and some of the boys were badly frost-bitten. Those of the drivers who had but one team apiece had to double up, hitching four horses to one load, and that made the work slow.

All the freight had been landed safe at Milford on Friday, January 14, when Erickson, Peterson and the two Orrocks left for home. They say there is much suffering from cold among sheep and shepherds on the desert.—Richfield Advocate.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY, JANUARY 20.

Hiram Meyrick was the victim of an accident in one of the ice-bound gorges of Pleasant creek on Tuesday of this week, by which he was submerged breast-deep in the freezing water of the creek for more than thirty minutes, with a heavy load of wood across him, pining him helplessly down.

In company with his brother, Jim Meyrick, Hiram had been on the mountain after wood, and on the return trip, the rack tipped from the sled, throwing both persons from the load, Jim fortunately alighting all right. Hiram was thrown into the creek, and the entire load of wood fell across his legs. He was able to keep his head erect and above water, until his brother, after a half hour's hard work with the wood, succeeded in extricating him from his perilous position. It was necessary to cut his frozen garments off and, clad only in a pair of boots and an overcoat, a walk of two miles to the nearest house was taken. He is able to be around again and no serious results are expected.—Mt. Pleasant Pyramid.

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY, JANUARY 21.

Brigham Bugler: few days ago Leman Johnson received word that his brother, Jarvis Johnson, was lying at the point of death at his home in Beaver Dam. So Wednesday he hitched up, apparently in his usual health, and drove up there, it being some twenty-five miles from Brigham. He found his brother, who is one of Boxelder county's oldest and most respected citizens, a Mormon Battalion boy in days gone by, lying unconscious, in which state he is at last reports and not expected to live. About 1 o'clock next day Leman was sitting by the stove warming his feet, having removed his stockings for that purpose. Suddenly without any warning he dropped over dead. The cause must have been heart disease. It was a great shock to the household, whose fears were entirely centered on the other brother. Word was at once sent to the greatly shocked family at Brigham and the body conveyed here Wednesday evening. It is understood the funeral will be held at 1 o'clock today.

Leman Johnson was 64 years of age. He is one Brigham's oldest residents, and is the father of a large family, who live on their old homestead just south of town. Mrs. Johnson and family have many relatives and friends in these parts who sympathize with the mourners in the loss of a good husband and father.

County Clerk Dunbar has issued a circular to physicians and professional midwives calling attention to the revised statutes relative to births and deaths. Mr. Dunbar says he is prepared to furnish registers of births and deaths, together with necessary blanks for reports, to persons directed by law to keep the same.

Following are the sections of the revised statutes:

2029. "Births. Who must keep register. All physicians and professional midwives must keep a register of the time of each birth at which they assist professionally, the sex, race, and color of the child, and the names and residence of the parents.

2030. "Id. Parents to report, when. If at any birth no physician or midwife attends, the parents must make the report.

2031. Deaths. Who must keep register. Physicians who attend deceased persons in their last sickness, clergyman who officiate at funerals, justice of the peace who hold inquests, and sextons and undertakers who bury deceased persons, must each keep a register of the name, age, residence, and time of death of such person.

2032. "Quarterly reports. All persons registering births or deaths must file quarterly with the county clerk a certified copy of their register."

2036. Penalties. Any person on whom a duty is imposed by this title who fails, neglects, or refuses to perform the same as herein required, is liable to a penalty of not more than fifty dollars, to be recovered by the county attorney of the proper county for the use of the general fund of such county."

Scofield, Jan. 28th, 1898.—Four accidents have occurred at No. 1 mine, Winter Quarters, this month. The first two were B. Trevier, with four ribs broken, and Willie Ayre, three fingers crushed, as stated in the "News." Last Tuesday a Finlander had a leg broken and was taken to the hospital; and today James Neilson was the unfortunate being taken out of the mine in a very critical condition. Doctor Smith did not make a thorough examination, as he thought it best to send him to the hospital at once. It is thought that one leg is broken near the hip. The patient was taken on a special train this evening. Brother Neilson is from Richfield, where he has a large family. Most of the accidents are caused by bad roof in the mine. As the coal is taken out, the rock becomes broken and is very dangerous.

The district school at Winter Quarters closed today with an entertainment. The children were treated to nuts and candy, and a dance, given by the trustees and the teachers. The closing is only temporary and school will be taken up again about April 1st. This is a wise plan, as these two months of vacation are the ones in which we have the most inclement weather.

Wm. H. Griffin will return with his bride to his home in Cache Junction, and Miss Hannah S. Johnson, the assistant teacher, to her home in Provo. Both teachers have become very popular with the people as well as the children of Winter Quarters.

Mr. John Hood gave an entertainment with the children of Scofield on Friday night in the school house, entitled King Winter.

FROM TUESDAY'S DAILY, FEBRUARY 19

Elder Amos Cook Jr. of East Bountiful reached home on the 21st inst. from a mission to South Alabama, which was his field of labor during the period of his absence, about one year. He reports the work there in good condition.

Elder Cook was released on account of ill-health and has been quite unwell since his return, though he is able to be about.

Nephi Juab county, Utah,

Jan. 29, 1898.

A golden wedding was celebrated here on November 5, 1897. It was held at the residence of Sister Bessie Kendall in honor of Brother William Knight and his wife, Sister Harriet Knight. Owing to their having no children living, neighbors and friends, including Mrs. Samuel Kendall and others of the Kendall family, determined to give them a welcome reception. So, according to arrangements, friends and guests met at the home of Sister Bessie Kendall where a bounteous supply of the good things of this life was spread upon the tables. Full justice was done to the many eatables by the assembled guests, who numbered forty, one of them being Mrs. McMaster of the Eleventh ward of Salt Lake City. The evening was spent in speech-making and pleasant conversation.

Brother and Sister Knight are in their 74th year. They are both natives of England. They were baptized into the Church fifty years ago last August, by Elder George Kendall, and emigrated thirty years ago. They are both faithful members of the Church, and, as such, have won the esteem and friendship of all those they have come in contact with.
