Garden City Notes.

Many of our politicians have business in Salt Lake these days, "assisting the senatorial contest." Yesterday a client called at the office of one of them over the First National bank building, where several of the fraternity have offices. On the door he saw a card bearing the following inscription, to wit, and he called, "Gone to Salt Lake; see ——." He wended his way to the office of the gentleman whose name is indicated by the dash, and found a similar card directing him to another flight of the law. It followed his directions also, and at the third place the same information was in the case, but with a direction to see a gentleman in another building. Hence is a hurry he did not try to find time—he took the next train for Salt Lake.

The subjects of Dr. Talmage's lecture tomorrow, before the Utah County Teachers' Association are Lake Bonneville in the forenoon, commencing at 10:30 o'clock, in the Farnham school. In the evening the doctor will lecture in the meeting house on Ice, Snow and Glacier, illustrating the lecture by stereopticon views. Views illustrating the morning lecture will also be shown. Both lectures are free to the public.

Sheriff Storrs went to Salt Lake yesterday and obtained the commitment of Harry Hayes from the attorney general. This morning he took Hayes to the State prison. Jim Hayes was here Wednesday to see her husband. He was very irritable and found a great deal of fault with her for not having secured the services of Judge Powers in the case at the start.

Miss Jennie Wilkins has resigned as teacher in the public schools. She will go to Payson to accept a position as teacher at an advance salary.

A ball will be given this evening in the Second ward meeting house by the Scandinavians, for the benefit of the Chicago Scandinavian mission.

Martin Christensen of the Second ward has sold his farm and moves for the state of Washington next week, where he intends to try his luck.

A marriage license has been issued to Arthur F. Harwood, age 26, and Mary Batten, aged 19, both of Provo.

Joseph Greenwald, late at Grant Junction, has commenced the mercantile business at Eight Mile.

County Clerk Orson Harrisonp went to Salt Lake yesterday.

FUN AND PROFIT.

A Well Known Farmer Who Successfully Combines Both.

Mr. C. E. Howell of Elmira, N. Y., the well known breeder of single comb Brown Leghorns and Buff Wyandottes, is a farmer from pure love of the business, but he makes it pay nevertheless. It has been reported in [illegible]—that every dollar he gets from poultry goes into his—but this is an error. He keeps an account of every penny he spends, even to a postage stamp, and strikes a trial balance once every year. His yearly net profit has never been less than $200 and runs up usually to $300 or $400, depending upon the season. He is much more interested in these prizes and he one of a number who are the already prepared by bringing to market any and all eggs he may collect. Table market man no egg is an egg; inner price hardly enters into the matter at all. In the hatch and brooding period he gives his egg to the care and he should have no other. Let him once establish a reputation for hatching sturdy fowl eggs, and he will find he can sell more eggs profitably at a distance than in the local market.

A pumpkin quality should not cost and the low than 30 cents in summer and at least 50 in cold weather. Let eggs now are in the harvest for eggs by the system of periodically calling for their boxes, so that which they produce an egg can be sent for on today and that day they will find no difficulty in getting customers willing to pay the better price.

In London fresh eggs are never cheap. Ten shillings (or twenty) is about the usual price per dozen, though merely sold by weight, and it does not vary much the year round.

To Prevent Scaly Leg.

The unpleasant condition known as scaly leg comes from a parasite which gets under the scales of the fowl's shanks. Once form of treatment, to which it appears, is given by A. Francis Clark of Decatur, Ind., in Farm Poultry: "Take a quart can full of lard, and oil and crude carbolic acid and set the can in a tub of hot water, filling not with the mixture of lard and carbolic. Then with a swab, dipped in warm soap suds, wash the shanks of the fowl. I present to the house, and, holding each leg over the barrel, dipping it along as I go, I completely fill every crack and crevice with the mixture. Two or three days of this, by hurting the parts very greasy, and the legs of fowls roosting on such perches look bright and clean. It serves a twofold purpose—killing the parasites of lice and preventing scaly leg. I keep just a quart of it among my fowls. This work can be done in very cold weather, as the grease will keep hot, and it is less troublesome than treating one fowl after another.
