A PRACTICAL JOKER

Causing Consternation at the Treasury Department.

SEWARD'S SILVER SPEECHES

Circulated in a Pamphlet Issued by Secretary Carlisle in the Financial Interest.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Some eccentricities have been exerted at the treasury department through the discovery that in some unexplained manner, the bureau officers have been guilty of circulating some of Senator Stewart's silver speech.

To answer conspicuously all the many questions relative to the subject upon that has been pouring in, Secretary Carlisle some time ago issued to private circular No. 113, a pamphlet of 32 printed pages, giving information concerning land issues, paper currency and the like. When application for information was received in the bureau to which could be found in this pamphlet, the bureau and receiving the letter would simply send one of these circulars to the applicant in the place of writing out an answer. This was been going on for at least a week and there is no telling how many circulars were sent out when a letter came to hand from one of the recipients calling attention to the fact that the department had sent him in answer to his question, a copy of a strong silver speech delivered by Senator Stewart in the Senate September 3 last, which is included in the pamphlet. An examination of the piles of circulars lying in the department showed that in some way the printed giving effect had reached in the error pertaining to the contents of the pamphlet, a number of the silver speeches. The officials say they have found only seventeen of the speeches so far, but there is no means of learning just how many of them have been sent out under the guise of financial statistics.

BUSINESSMEN'S CAMPAIGN.

That Term Explained to a Document Issued by Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Political affairs are quiet at several headquarters. The weather seems to affect the politicians.

At Republican headquarters letters from Kansas, Iowa and Missouri all spoke of improvement in the political outlook and said that all that was needed at this time was great quantities of financial literature.

The Democratic campaign committee issued a document today in the "businessmen's campaign." It says that the Republican's purpose can a mortgage and that the Democrats accept the issue. The document differ quotes Mr. Bryan's declaration that the interest of the mines employer is as much a business man as the owner of a factory or a farm, and that the interest of the number of persons employed in business, gainful pursuits, including agriculture, mining, manufacturing, transportation, the purpose being to show the small percentage comprised under the head of bankers, brokers and businessmen. The document comments on these figures, winding up with the assertion that from the Republican standpoint only the few bankers, brokers, wholesalers and corporation officers are businessmen, while from the Democratic standpoint the millions of farmers, producers and laborers of all classes are as much business men as the few who live, thrive and grow rich by trading in the products of labor.

Senator Jones, chairman of the national Democratic committee, Senator Faulkner, chairman of the congressional committee, and Lawrence Gardner, chairman of the committee have gone to New York to attend the meeting of the national committee to-day and to meet Mr. Bryan on his arrival tomorrow night.
