Theodore E. Laing, Patrick Quinn, William Morris and Willis Knapp filed complaint in the Third District Court today against Joseph Middlecome, William Bartlett, William Fox, H. Rockwell and others. The plaintiffs allege that in May, 1892, and for two years previously, they were owners of the Bismuth Lode, in the Tintic mining district, and that the defendants, with force entered said lode in May last, and ousted and ejected plaintiffs therefrom, holding possession thereof since, to the injury of plaintiffs to the amount of $1,000.

Restitution and recovery of said property is prayed for by the plaintiffs and also $1,000 damages. An injunction to restrain defendants from further operating said mine is also asked for. Powers & Hiles are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Death of a Venerable Lady.

Catherine Macewain Harrocks, widow of the late Peter Harrocks, died at 10:45 a.m. today, August 18th, at the residence of her son, Elder W. B. Dougall, 40 north West Temple street, of general weakness superinduced by old age. Deceased was born in Dumfriesshire, Perthshire, Scotland, October 5, 1808.

Sister Harrocks embraced the Gospel in 1855, in Aughton, Lancashire, England, and emigrated to Utah in 1855. She passed through the various trials and vicissitudes incidental to life in Utah in early times, with cheerfulness and unswerving integrity to the truth. She rejoiced in the principles of the Gospel when first heard and accepted them with a devoted and honest heart, cheerfully leaving friends and all former ties, to comply with the duty she felt resting upon her to gather to the body of the Church. She was an unobtrusive earnest worker, diffusing joy and content in the hearts of all who knew her, and was one of nature's truly noble women. Her unselfishness and her charity for the weaknesses of others were among her conspicuous characteristics. She has gone to join the Host of the pure and righteous who have preceded her and finally to enjoy the Celestial Kingdom of God. Sister Harrocks had been a widow for over 36 years. The funeral will be held on Sunday next at 1 p.m., at the residence of W. B. Dougall, 40 N. West Temple street.

Cupidity Triumphant.

A woman got on the car the other day and sat at the conductor's panel handed her fare up. He did not see her, and it was funny to watch proceedings as she struggled with her desire to be honest and the strange one to beat the road out of one fare. Cupidity triumphed, however, and with a smile of satisfaction on her face she put the money into her purse and thoroughly enjoyed that ride.—New York Recorder.

MAYOR HASKIS FORGIVES THEM.

Business Transacted at a Meeting of the City Council this Afternoon.

The City Council was to have met in special session this afternoon at 2 o'clock. At that time, however, only three or four members were present in the Council chamber. At 2:15, on motion of Folland, Horn was chosen chairman. The following members answered to roll call: Horn, Folland, Woodland, Hess, Evans.

NO QUORUM.

The chair announced that there was no quorum present and on informal recess was taken for fifteen minutes. Folland suggested that the chief of police be sent after the absent members and compel their attendance. Beardsley appeared on the scene at 2:30 closely followed by Jailer Hodge.

At 2:45 Bell, Lawson, Simmons and Moran and Harris entered and the City Council was again called to order.

PETITIONS

were read and referred as follows:

William Dunn and others asked that certain streets be graveled. Committee on streets.

A. Pitkind and others asked for a new road grade on Tenth East between Fifth and Sixth South streets. Committee on streets.

John W. Donnellan and others asked that J. S. Stewart be made police desk sergeant. Committee on police.

Duncan McAllister and others protested against Center street being cut down to level of grade on west side of street. Committee on streets.

THE MAYOR'S REPARTEE.

The Mayor sent the following:

Gentlemen—Since my former communication on the subject of the issuance of a retail liquor license to Carter & Merritt, I have received from them the enclosed letter which I ask be placed on file for future reference. In view of the fact that Carter & Merritt in this letter solemnly promise that of their license be renewed they will in the future obey the liquor ordinance in all respects, I will appoint the bond and withdraw my recommendation that you therefore your action in granting this firm a renewal of their license.

THE PENITENT PLEADERS.

Carter and Merritt's letter reads:

To H. N. Haskis, Mayor:

Received and filed.

WILLING TO COMPLY.

FOUR ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Contractor Bowman asked that four electric arc lights be placed on the big derricks of the joint city and county building so that the Eighth Ward square might be sufficiently illuminated to protect the finished work on the building. Rejected.

CONSERVATION FOLK PROTEST.

The Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company sent in the following, addressed to the city recorder:

We are in receipt of your notice of a resolution passed by the City Council August 10th, 1892, which reads: "That the Bamberger railway company, the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company and the Salt Lake Light, Power and Heating company be notified to use conservation poles in the centre of the streets on Main street, Fifth and second South street" and therefore we respectfully are in favor of this plan so far as practicable. However, we wish to call the attention of the Council to some difficulties to be overcome and ask that the resolution be changed accordingly.

We would recommend that the resolution be changed to read: "That the telephone company, the street railway companies and the telegraph companies be compelled to use conservation poles in the center of the streets in the paving districts."

AN OBJECTION.

Reporting on the same proposition the Salt Lake Light, Power and Heating company asked that the resolution, passed on August 10th, be amended, and that it be relieved from complying with its requirements in so much as the arrangement was cumbersome and full of irregularities and difficulties. Filed.

WILL THEY DO IT?

It was rumored about the Council chamber this afternoon that Mayor's eight-point ordinance would come up before the meeting adjourned and be passed over the mayor's veto.

The Council was in session when the News went to press.

HOW IT WAS PLAYED ON DAD.

He Thought He Was Getting the Worth of the Tin Pattens, but he Didn't.

You know how a pig is in the corn when confined to a pen—always wanting to get somewhere else. The day one of our pigs got into the stable and was kicked by a horse—one eye was put out and his jaw broken, and though he got well his jaw was turned to the right and his snout needed fixin. It would set one laughing just to look at him. He had only fairly recovered from this misfortune when he got caught in a rail fence and needed his spines mild he was bent almost double.

When he got out of bed while he was the oddest looking pig in four states. When he walked he had to go broadsides, and he never knew which pair of legs was in front or behind. One day a tin pedler happened to come along and followed the animal and quietly asked the "old man" how much he'd take for that pig.

"Well," replied father, winking at Tom and I, "hogs is up, you know."

"Yes, I know that pork has advanced."

"Guess that pig ought to bring three dollars."

"I'll give you two."

"He's worth a dollar more, but bein it's you I'll take it," said father.

For the next two weeks we concocted a good many jokes at that tin peddler's expense, as father would have given the pig to anybody for the asking. About a month after the sale Fourth of July came around and we all went to town—out of us. Among the curiosities was a side show, and its chief sign was a painting of a curious sort of animal, and underneath the information:

THE ONLY HOGRAH

Were exhibited in America. Transported at great expense from the Sandwich Islands on this here is the uncle. The only man eating hog in the world.

ADMISSION BUT TEN CENTS.

If you do not pay your respects to us like as you do, the hograh will be sent to England next week.

Father put on his spectacles and read that sign twice over, and then turned to mother and said:

"Guess we'd better go in. Pers seen skunks and lions and possums and hyenas by the earthquake, but I never saw a hoglag."

"There's six of us, and that's $1.50," replied mother.

"Oh, well, it won't hurt us. If our neighbors see the consumed thing and we don't, they'll be crowin about it for a year. I guess we'll take in the hoglag. I'll be mortifin for the children to ponder over." Father paidout up $1.20 and in we went. The cage was at the opposite end of the tent, and as we went in a lecturer was saying:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we have the assurance of no less than five well known naturalists that this is the only specimen of the hoglag now in existence. He was captured in a hyena trap in South Africa and was brought over here at a cost of $5,000. Come and gaze on this wonder of the Nineteenth century."

We crowded up to gaze. Next minute the four children of us were hunting for the split, while mother was somewhere else had to sit down.

"What in creation has struck you folks?" demanded father, as he wiped off his glasses.

We laughed all the harder, and he adjusted his glasses in a solemn manner, and turned to inspect the greatest living curiosity. One look was enough. His jaw fell, the color fled from his face, and he made for the door with the five of us following. Not a word was said until we were clear of the tent. Then father stopped and looked at each one of our grinning faces in rotation and exclaimed:

"Look not my shows if that sick the crippled hog we sold to the tin pedler, but I want to say to you right here and now that if any one of you ever says 'hoglag' in my hearin I'll turn you outdoors without a second shirt to your back!"—New York Herald.

A Cowboy Story.

Said one of Buffalo Bill's cowboys: "I bought a pony in a hurry, and jumped on his back, and he turned out to be a bucker. Why, he kept on bucking for six weeks days and nights.

"But how then did you get your mount" inquired the listener.

"Oh," said the cowboy, "that was easy enough. The boys kept shying bricks at me, and I caught them on the fly."

"You but how did you get any thing to drink, my lad?"

"Well," replied the cowboy, "the fact was we had the good luck to be close to a little brook, and every time the horse bucked I snapped up a little water in my hand and drank it that way. See?"—London Tit-Bits.

On Air.

Fond Mother—And so you think the Elgin marbles the best, Mr. Brush?

Our Artist—Oh yes, decidedly so.

Fond Mother—I should be so much obliged to you if you would get a few for my Johnny next time you're in town, Mr. Brush, if they're not too expensive. The dear child's always fond of his—Yuh.

A Word to Fast Horses.

I do not believe in slow driving. There is no more virtue in driving slow than in drinking, and, say more, that a freight train along ten miles an hour is better than an express train going fifty. There is a difference abroad in the world that a thing must necessarily be good and Christian if it is slow and dull and plodding. There are very good people who seem to laugh at a humorous joke to drive a worried, jaded, chastened, spring halted, blind, stagger gait. There is not so much virtue in a Hannibal as there is in a Hospitaller. At the pace some people drive, Elijah, with his horses of fire, wouldn't have taken three weeks to get into heaven.

We want swifter horses and swifter men and swifter enterprises, and the church of God needs to get off its jog trot. Quick transports, quick lightnings, quick atoms, why not quick horses? In time of war the cavalry are not the most exhausted, and in the battles of the world are probably not all just our Christian institutions demands that we be interested in equipping cavalry. We might as well have poorer guns in our arsenals and clumsier ships in our navy yards than other nations are to have under soft cavalry soldiers and lifeless men. Society shows horses.—T. De Witt Talmage in Ladies' Home Journal.

The two crops in Bavaria and France have been so severely damaged by hot fronts and cold rains that there is scarcely enough to supply the demands of the potable manufacturers.

ONE CENT

How Much will you Risk for One Cent?

THE difference in price between the PUTNAM NAIL and cheaper brands amounts to just one cent per pound.

Are you willing to run the risking said cent and spend much more time and money, besides, in order to have your machine disabled for a day or more?

The expense of these disappointments is serious. The cost of repairing the machine and repairs is no large as to leave no margin. If the nail fails to hold the shoe, the horse is a cripple, and the cost of his keep is a considerable item. The cost of the nail is a trifle. Now this is just how far the difference in price between the PUTNAM NAIL and other nails, has you should risk money on.

Use the Putnam Nail.

It is Manufactured from the best Swedish iron, which at a welding heat, is as tough as Hammered iron, and then Hammered Polished.

Thus, the old hand process is followed, with no but forging nails under hammers, and hammering them by the sheer, cold, without welding, or shearing sinews.

AND THE NAIL CANNOT BREAK.

But it will wear you out sooner than it will have to do.

The whole difference is longer and your money will be clearly saved.
