AN unknown person with much chief proclivities stabbed a horse on the premises of J. W. Summerhays & Company last midnight and experienced half of a double harness to blow on him. He failed to leave any trace as to his identity. Should he conclude to call for the other half he will not only find it Yours with warmly welcomed by the night watchman, who was unused last night.

LAST evening, six "knights of the green cloth," commonly called gamblers, were politely taken in tow by Detective Hugh L. Gibson and in a dignified manner escorted to police headquarters, where the regular semi-annual assessment and collection of $50 each were made. They unceremoniously dropped their money into the slot of the city's treasure box and took their departure to their old haunts of licensed and remunerative speculation.

Must Attend.

Members of the Tabernacle choir who desire to take part in the Temple baptisms service must attend rehearsal next Thursday evening.

EVAN STEPHENS, Conductor.

Died Yesterday.

Sister Julia Roslyn Woolley died at her residence, at Centerville, yesterday morning at 6 o'clock, after an illness of two weeks. The deceased was the wife of Captain John W. Woolley and was a most estimable woman. She came to Utah in an early day and has resided here ever since.

Funeral services will be held in the Centerville meeting house at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

GENERAL ALGER.

The Distinguished Soldier and Statesman, in the City.

General Alger, wife, two daughters and son arrived in Salt Lake at 10:15 today. The party were met at Ogden by a reception committee from this city, consisting of Judge Bennett, chairman of the Republican Territorial Committee; S. J. Kenyon, chairman of the City Committee; Arthur Brown, president of the Republican Club League, and Judges Zane and Bartch. The party were accompanied here by Judge Miner, and the Messrs. Rogers and Painter of Ogden.

Immediately on arrival here carriages were provided and, under the guidance of the reception committee, the Fort and other places of interest were visited. Mrs. A. Brown and Mrs. Hoyt Sherman took the ladies of the party in charge. At 12 o'clock the visitors returned to the house of the Union Club at the Templeton, where a general reception took place.

General Alger was surrounded by a strong guard of local stalwart Republicans, among whom were noticed Darlow Ferguson, Sam. Hill, James Sheridan, Frank Williams, of Provo, Attorney Stevens, Joe Geoghegan, Heber M. Wells and many others.

At 2 p. m. a grand banquet was served at which many of the prominent Republicans of the Territory participated, including Governor Thomas and others who have not yet allied themselves with the local organization here. The banquet was in progress at the time the News went to press. General Alger appears to be enjoying the hospitality extended to him. The distinguished guest leaves for the East this evening.

AMUSEMENTS.

Joseph Jefferson and Mrs. John Drew at the Theater Last Night.—Marie Wainwright.

The Theatre was filled to overflowing last night at the presentation by the Jefferson Comedy Company of the old, delightful comedy, "The Rivals." The admirers of dramatic art met en masse to pay their tribute of admiration to the king and queen of genuine comedians. It would be impossible by a mere verbal description to give an adequate idea of the perfect manner in which Joseph Jefferson impersonated Bob Acres. His graceful, quiet movements, every one of which was in perfect harmony with his words or his supposed feelings, his facial expressions, reflecting vividly his every emotion; the dance which was a characteristic of even the minutest details of his play, must be seen to be understood and appreciated.

Almost equal to the acting of Mr. Jefferson was that of Mrs. John Drew. Her Mrs. Malaprop was a constant merriment and laughter. The lofty airs and pompous manners of an individual whose consent and signature are guaranteed by wealth—these main features of the character were given by the great actress with a skillfulness only possible to Mrs. Drew. She can not be excelled. Of the company as a whole it is only necessary to say that it consists of accomplished artists. Mac Allen was, perhaps, not what one would expect a young novelwriter of the past century to be, but she is nevertheless a talented and charming actress, and Miss Bender's Lucy was as pretty as a rosebud. Mr. Owen's Sir Anthony was a perfect pattern of a certain class of fathers, and the actor was frequently complimented for his skilful acting. Mr. Denham's David was a conspicuous figure who contributed much to the merriment of the evening.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT.

Julius Magnus, manager for Miss Marie Wainwright, is here making preparations for that favorite actress' three nights' engagement at the Salt Lake Theatre, which begins next Wednesday. Miss Wainwright appears Wednesday and Thursday evenings her superb production of "Amy Robsart," and on Friday Shakespeare's jollest comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew." She brings two carloads of scenery which are said by all the Eastern critics to be the most elaborate and artistic ever seen in this country. Her company includes Barton Hill, Blanche Walsh, William Ingersoll, Wallace Bruce, F. Y. Backus and Edward Elsner, all of whom will be pleasantly remembered as having been conspicuous figures in "Twelfth Night" last year.

THE CONCERT.

In the Fourteenth ward assembly hall last evening was an affair very much enjoyed by the audience. The chief feature of the entertainment was the violin solo by Prof. W. C. Clive. Mrs. Louise Poulton's recitation and Miss Louise Poulton's singing received well deserved applause.

Probate Court.

The following business was transacted before Judge Bartch today:

Estate of James Glade deceased; final account and petition for distribution came on regularly. Decree of due and legal notice to creditors made. Elias M. Glade and Mrs. J. Glade sworn and examined. Account allowed; decree of distribution made.

Estate of Christina M. Brixen, deceased; account and petition for distribution came on regularly. Proof of posting under statute of 1890 appeared, and C. Brixen sworn and examined. Account allowed. Decree of distribution made.

Estate of Thomas Fenton, deceased; annual expense account came on regularly. Proof of posting appeared. Arthur B. W. Brown sworn and examined. Order made allowing account; executor's commission to apply on compensation allowed by estate.

Estate of Richard B. Margetts, deceased; final account and petition for distribution came on regularly. G. H. Hardy and Richard A. Margetts sworn and examined. Continued to April 14th.

THE COUNTERFEITERS.

Their Trial Began this Morning Before Judge Anderson.

MRS. GAGNON ON THE WITNESS STAND.

The Charge Against Crook First Taken Up.—Olaf Gagnon Will be Called in Testify.

The trial of the five counterfeiters was fixed to begin in Judge Anderson's court at 10 o'clock this morning. It had been arranged that each of the accused men should be tried separately, and the case of P. D. Sprague, indicted for uttering a portion of the spurious coin manufactured by Gagnon was to have been called on first; but Judge Powers, the defendant's counsel, produced a certificate from Dr. Marshall stating that Mr. Sprague, his only witness for the defense, was suffering from a severe affection of the heart, and unable to be present today. Judge Powers asserted therefore that Sprague's case be postponed for the present. This request was granted.

It was then decided that the trial of Wm. Crook should be proceeded with, and the empaneling of a jury was taken up. United States District Attorney Varian prosecuted.

The accused, who is defended by Attorney Williamson, is also indicted for uttering counterfeit money.

When a jury had been secured—and this occupied some considerable time—District Attorney Varian called his first witness, without making any opening statement. This was John A. Perry, a poulterer, of Aberdeen place, to whom Crook gave a $20 gold piece in payment for a turkey, the defendant receiving the change. As soon as he got title he hurried off, and a few minutes later the coin, which here date 1891, was discovered to be counterfeit.

Officer J. D. O'Reilly, who went to arrest the defendant at his house, at 2 in the morning, said that when he asked Crook if he should read the warrant to him, the defendant replied no—that he "knew what it was." Subsequently he remarked, "That's the money I was trying to utilize; we are kind of people." He also said that he received the coin from a man named Gibson, and that if he passed it so a counterfeit the act was unintentional on his part.

Guy Willis, paying teller at the Utah National bank, testified that the $20 "gold" piece handed to him was a counterfeit.

Detective Hugh L. Gibson, who took part in Crook's arrest, said that the defendant admitted having passed two coins, one to the poulterer and one at a second hand store.

In cross-examination, the witness said he denied Crook's to say that he got one of the two coins from Gibson, a sick man, for sitting up with him in the Singer building, and not from Gagnon.

Officer McCarty gave formal testimony as to receiving the $20 coin from the witness Perry.

Mrs. Jessie Gagnon was the next witness. She related her previous statement in Commissioner Greene's court as to herself and brother Olaf having apartments in the Singer building in November last. Her husband was engaged in "making money" in one of the rooms there, and witness saw the work going on.

Attorney Varian, District Attorney Varian obtained an order from the Court to have the witness Gagnon brought down from the penitentiary forthwith, in order to testify.

A battery and other paraphernalia used in the manufacture of coin was then introduced, and Mrs. Gagnon identified the articles as a part of the mining plant used by her husband. Crook, she said, was the man who was in the habit of visiting him. A number of finished and unfinished coins were handed up to the Court for inspection. She did not know her husband supply Crook with any of the money.

Cross-examined, witness said she understood that Crook attempted upon a single occasion to pass Gibson, in the Singer building. She did not hear the conversation between her husband and Crook.

Mr. Whittemore moved that all the evidence with reference to Gagnon manufacturing counterfeit coin, as given by the last witness, and also with reference to the articles just introduced, be stricken out, for the reason that it did not bind in any way to connect Crook with the matter.

Mr. Varian—Well, I will make it connect; but I cannot do it all at once.

Mr. Whittemore—We want our objection to go in, at any rate.

Mrs. Jessie Gagnon said he was present at Crook's arrest and heard him say that "that was what one got by mixing with bad men."

At twelve o'clock District Attorney Varian asked that a recess be taken until two o'clock, by which time, he said, Gagnon would have arrived from the penitentiary; but Judge Anderson, having another engagement to fill, adjourned court until 2 p.m.

The Ogden Gas Well.

The pipe necessary to carry on the sinking of the Ogden gas well arrived from Denver yesterday, and boring operations have resumed. The epidermal stratum has been passed and slow formation struck. It is expected that gas will be reached in a few days.

Improvements at Garfield.

Last evening General Agent Barclay, Superintendent Jas. Young, manager Wasatoure and L. M. Bartell, returned from Garfield Beach, where they spent a good portion of the day in inspecting the improvements now in progress at that famous resort. A large force of men are at work and the number of bath houses are being greatly increased. The old buildings are being tastefully repainted, paths are laid out and the resort begins to present a very pretty appearance.

Safe Crackers at Corinne.

A large safe in the Union Pacific depot at Corinne was blown open by crackers on Sunday night last. It contained about at the time, the crackers were frightened away before they could reach it. No coin.

THE BIG MINING SUIT.

Important Testimony Introduced at This Morning's Hearing.

The trial of the Northland-Mayflower mining suit, involving property worth a million dollars, was resumed in the improvised court room at the City Hall today. Robert Gottlieb was the first witness called by the plaintiffs, and he testified to surveying the Lief Erickson claim in July 1889. Some changes in the lines were made to make them parallel. The end tie the ground was extended in Bonstone. There was mineral rock at the discovery, but not enough to vein.

The plaintiffs then offered in evidence the location notice of the property in order to show title, but the defense objected because, first, the location was not valid, not having been made on a vein, and second because the notice was defective in that it set the end line at the claim had been projected so as to parallel with the other end of the line, and was a trespass on the Northland, so that the plaintiff's could not sweep the country north of their open cut location. A long discussion among the attorneys followed, and finally the point of the objection was a new one, counsel had invested and ruled suddenly, he was disposed to allow the location to go in, for the reason that the defendants expected to file the same there. He added, however, that this might result in a reversal of the case.

Judge Bogle, for the plaintiffs, once more tried to get in evidence the location of the entire three claims, but Judge Zane promptly ruled this out. An effort to introduce the deed to the first claim by the plaintiffs was failed, Judge Zane declining to admit it.

The plaintiffs then opened their case in earnest by calling Stuart Stevenson, who testified as an expert that the vein in controversy did at various points and in different localities vary the quantity, but he did not consider the quantity the footwall of the vein. As a rule, he found the footwall to be limestone. The witness did not positively make the spot, but mentioned several places where the vein was stripped.

On cross-examination the defense brought out the fact that this witness was a party plaintiff, and was interested in the result of the suit. Mr. Stevenson's experience was that the vein did not always go to the wall, in limestone. The walls were the limits beyond which the vein did not pass, but with limestone it was not so. The vein in question was to width all the way from a very few inches to over twenty feet. The witness considered the strongest evidence of extralateral claim that the foot wall was in quartzite by stating that in the Tecumseh bonanza, the Big Incline and at other points along the vein, it could not be quartzite, although he admitted that the real foot wall was in limestone.

When the court adjourned at 5 o'clock the evidence indicated up to that point by the plaintiffs had not materially weakened the defendants' case.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

The Boring Operations.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Senator Sherman and Congressman John W. Foster of the State department held a conference with the President this morning on the subject of present negotiations to the Bering sea fishing sea correspondence, passed between this country and Great Britain since the 15th inst. The correspondence consists of a number of notes, the first being Lord Salisbury's cabled note of the 15th and the reply from the United States dated yesterday. It is broadly intimated that the implied assertion on the part of Great Britain to assert our interference by this government with vessels flying the flags, both that, engaged in seaside sealing in Bering sea, would undoubtedly result in the rejection of the treaty in its present form.

The Canadian Pacific Strike.

TORONTO, Ont., March 23.—The Canadian Pacific authorities of this city have been notified that they are paying men to take charge of the trains left unmanned by the strikers. Ten train crews and fifty special constables have been sworn in. The constables are armed and have a supply of handcuffs. Superintendent Tait denied that there was any intention of the strike extending to the Ontario and Quebec division.

The Trial of Deeming.

PERTH, West Australia, March 23.—The hearing in the case of Deeming, the wife murderer, was resumed this morning. Counsel is trying by all legal means in his power to keep his client in Melbourne and also prevent his extradition to England for the murdering of his first wife and four children. However, the chances of this seem very slight, and Deeming will be sent to Melbourne for trial. It is not thought that he will have to go to England, as the police of Melbourne claim to have evidence that will, beyond doubt, result in conviction and execution, there.

The Rioting at Holbeorn.

LONDON, March 23.—The rioting at Holbeorn colliery, Durham, was owing to the miners not intending to join the strikers. The miners stoned the engineman, injuring several, and afterward attacked their houses. If the pumping is stopped, the mines will be flooded.

The New Orleans Elections.

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—The election was very quiet and very quietly. New Orleans gives McEnery over 11,000 majority. The Times-Democrat estimates that, contrary to expectations, the white will not decrease in much and may increase it. The estimate for the state vary from nine to twelve thousand.

Absolutelies Sure.

LONDON, March 23.—The Lincolnshire handicap was won by Gretney. Another account: Irish Boy third in starters.

Judges in Jail.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—If developments continue that the three Cass county judges, serving a term of imprisonment, here for contempt of court, will mysteriously disappear from jail for night, as they did on first parole of honor. They returned to jail this morning.

The Chinese Immigration Act.

OTTAWA, March 23.—Gordon, of British Columbia, has given notice of his intention of introducing a bill amending the Chinese immigration act by increasing the poll tax on Chinese immigrants from $50 to $100 per head. The bill recites that when the expiration of four months of the passage of the act, the Chinese immigration into Canada shall be prohibited altogether.

A Fire in Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM, March 23.—Four houses on Oudezijdsvalkt canal were damaged by fire. Five persons killed and twenty injured, seven of which are likely to die. The fire was caused by an explosion of gas.

Extradition Treaty with the United States.

PARIS, March 23.—M. Ribot, minister of foreign affairs, and M. Rivard, minister of justice, have submitted to the Cabinet the text of the extradition treaty with the United States.

The Failure of the Paige Bank.

PAINESVILLE, Ohio, March 23.—The excitement caused by the failure of Paige bank has not abated. The depositors are not satisfied with the statements, and the banks are doing a big business. The assignee estimates the bank's assets to be $80,000 and R. K. Paige's to $25,000. The liabilities are $300,000 to date.

Bayton not Bounce.

New York, March 23.—The steamship Gallia, which left Liverpool, with Messrs Drayton and Burness aboard, has not been sighted up to noon. The club men all over the city are inclined to the opinion that the principals most most of things all claims to receipts at any club in the country. The decision of the French boxer to forfeit his money to Burness, thinking been made on parts and on a hypothesis which assumed as a fact a matter material and disputed. It is to be hoped that a quarrel may be precipitated that the agents of the White Star line will put a strong guard of detectives on board the steamer this earlier moment. A lawyer of the Astor family applied to the collector yesterday for permission to take aboard a passenger whom he believed to be Drayton.

About twenty logs containing the friends of the parties are already at quarantine awaiting the arrival of the steamer.

The Great Northern Dividend.

New York, March 23.—The directors of the Great Northern railway have declared the usual quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, payable on May 1st.

STOCK MARKET.

The stock market at noon was dull and quiet, generally, at insignificant changes from the opening prices.

Edward Field Sent to a Hospital.

New York, March 23.—Judge Van Brunt decided this morning to send Edward M. Field to Bellvue State Hospital.

NARCOTIC HEALTH IN 1873.

The Two Conditions of the Emperor's Trouble Was Not Known in Himself.

The Count Clemenceau has added some very interesting information regarding the circumstances under which the condition of Napoleon III was kept secret at the moment of the declaration of war with Germany in 1870. He says that being summoned to attendance on the emperor on June 20 of that year he soon divined the true cause of the illness. The ministers never felt the fear that their fear in the course of conversation he asked his patient to give him some idea of his health since 1865, and that the emperor replied at once that he had felt the mark, as it was to the accident which occurred in that year at Sedan that he attributed his ill-health.

He had gone to visit the tomb of his mother in company with the empress, Princess Anna Murat, and Count Cornier, when the horses bolted and the carriage was upset. Even that day he was never the same man. Professor Germain See has expressed the opinion that, contrary to the opinion of the doctors who had attended Napoleon III, and they all assembled on the morning of July 1 at the house of Dr. Conneau, he started his colleagues by giving them his candid opinion of his case, but although hitherto they had entertained different views, they yielded finally to his arguments. They came the questions as to whether an operation should take place immediately.

Professor Germain See spoke strongly in its favor, but some of his medical friends—remarking that they could not treat the emperor like a simple patient—advocated delay. Still Professor Germain See pressed his point, eventually winning over Dr. Ricord to his side, but the dread of responsibility was so great that their colleagues asked to be allowed to wait until the summer was over. In September they finally decided that they should do. Finally the surgeon had to wait for a repeat pressment of energetic remonstrances. The professor was requested to drop operations, and on July 2 he handed it to Dr. Conneau, being under the impression that it would be signed by all his colleagues.

It was not until that that he ascertained that they had not signed it, and he learned this fact under very peculiar circumstances. M. Jules Favre had obtained possession of the document, and learnt the secretary—who is now prefect of Rouen—to inquire what it all meant. Professor Germain See affirms that all the professors of the memorable consultation had been withheld from the surgeon by Dr. Conneau, and adds that Napoleon III himself was not acquainted with the details until a mentionable afterward.

All the evidence seems to establish conclusively the fact that the emperor's illness and all their consequences, with the exception of the disease had no bearing on any serious character of the illness from which Napoleon III was suffering, and justifies clearly the inference that if they had known the bitter truth, the declaration of war with Germany would have been delayed, perhaps, indefinitely, if not prevented. The chief of staff especially in a report said can then let to send for great
