AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The Fast Mail, the mule-drama that comes to the Theater tomorrow evening, for one night only, is said to go with a rush, from a river view to murder and retribution. Splendid scenic effects are among the promised features of the piece.

DE WOLF HOPPER.

The engagement of De Wolf Hopper opens company commences at the Theater on Thursday evening with the presentation of Wang. Friday and Saturday evenings Mr. Hopper will hold the boards and Wang will be repeated Saturday matinee.

De Wolf Hopper of late has been much complimented as an actor in other lines than comic opera. During the early summer he was selected to play the comedy part of Dave, in the production of The Rivals, with the All Star cast for the benefit of the veteran Couldock, at 14 Fifth avenue theater, New York City. At the conclusion of the performance Mr. Joseph Jefferson warmly complimented Mr. Hopper, saying that he was the best Dave he ever saw. Later in the summer Mr. Hopper was selected to play Sir John Falstaff, at the open air performance at Saratoga Springs. Again he was the recipient of flattering remarks, probably the most prized being those of Mrs. John Drew, who said that she had played with the Falstaff, including Hackett, and never could she assign the part to be played so well before. Later on while shopping at the Manhattan Beach hotel, he was, out of compliment to his friend Rose, and accompanied by the celebrated Rose hat, the Two Grenadiers. Mr. Rose's criticism of the act: "You have a gold mine in your voice."

THE GRAND.

School was given its initial performance at the Grand last evening to a large audience, if the unfavorable weather is considered, and the numerous members of the company similarly quieted themselves for an excellent work as usual. The piece is very entertaining and should draw a full house.

THE LYCEUM.

The performances of the minstrel company commence at the Lyceum tomorrow evening.

Another Veteran Gone.

AMERICAN FORK, Nov. 4, 1895.—The funeral services of our esteemed Brother W. W. Jackson, one of the seven presidents of the Sixty-seventh quorum of Seventy, were held in the American Fork meeting house on Monday, the 4th inst., at 11 o'clock a.m. The remains were carried to the meeting house by twelve of his young brethren belonging to the Seventy's quorum; also followed by the remainder of the quorum and many others. Services were presided over by Elder Thomas Barratt. The speakers were Bros. Joseph Hall, George Goddard, C. D. Evans, Thomas Wright, Joseph Hall Jr., Noah Packard and Bishop William D. Robinson. All spoke highly of our departed brother. The services were comforting and impressive. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather a large concourse of people assembled to pay their last respects to our deceased brother and friend. Services being over, the remains were borne to their last resting place. The deceased came to Utah in 1852, first locating in Salt Lake City, and later moving to American Fork. He was highly esteemed.

FIFTEEN MILES OF HAIR.

The Wonderful Growth on the Top of Paderewski's Head.

Again has Paderewski, the great pianist, come to enthrall us with his wonderful playing and his no less wonderful hair.

"But the very hairs of your head are all numbered," says the Bible. The Sunday World proposes to examine the task which the recording angel who is assigned to monitor Mr. Paderewski's hair finds heaps to do.

A representative of the paper who has devoted much profound thought and study to phrenology, physiognomy and allied subjects visited Mr. Paderewski for the purpose of studying his head and his hair. The great pianist is not less amiable than he is gifted. He told his visitor the American audiences are the warmest and most sympathetic he has ever known, and that their enthusiasm encouraged him to better work. Musicians say the same thing, so he was evidently sincere. While he spoke the listener observed Mr. Paderewski's prime lion glory, exhibited its weight, length, quantity and quality.

M. Paderewski will not touch pen to his mind's is to a personal detail. Many learned critics will write about his playing, but they will not give serious attention to his hair. It is frequently seen the subject of world fame, but the Sunday World for the first time treats it in the interest of scientific research and in a spirit of reverence. He possesses a head of hair which any American family, from a specialist of twelve years down to the youngest, would be proud to call their own. Those interested should carefully read the book or visit the library.

welcome this information. That glorious aureole of hair is already enshrined in their hearts. Now they will keep its memory fresh by cutting out this article and pasting it in their scrapbooks.

To begin with, this hair is an ideal one in color. Nothing at all like it was ever seen by the writer. The prevailing tint is a light orange yellow, but there are many shades gently paling into one another. You catch glimpses of all gold and of a shade like the color of a Westmoreland hot fire.

It grows down low over the forehead, and the line where the hair ends is artistically curved here. The temples take two deep and sudden curves inward over the temples. These have spaces mark the beginning of baldness in most men. It is therefore possible that Paderewski will some day lose his hair. The thought is disheartening, but it will be a long time yet.

The quantity and arrangement of the hair come next in importance to its color. It stands straight up from the forehead and bends backward at the top. Every hair has half a dozen curves in it. The effect can only be compared to that of a fine, wide shock, fierce, light-colored flames chasing one another wildly upward.

The greater part of it appears to grow to a length of eight inches, and it reaches down the back of his neck to the collar, where it is as long as anywhere else. As a consequence portions of the hair is always in a state of growth, a reasonable calculation of its average length would be five inches.

Paderewski has a very large square head. The average human head has a circumference of 120 square inches. His head has an area of 160 inches.

There are 600 hairs follicles to a square inch of a dark person's scalp and 700 in a blond person's scalp. The blond, of course, has finer hair than the other. This would give a total of 80,000 hair follicles to a head with 120 inches of scalp; but as many follicles exist upon more than, the total should be greatly increased, say, to 120,000 in a conservative estimate.

Accepting these calculations, Paderewski, who is a blond with very fine hair and an unusually large head, would have about 200,000 hairs. That is at the rate of 1,250 to the square inch.

The average length of them is five inches, and their total length, if placed end to end, would be 1,000,000 inches, or approximately, 15½ miles. It would therefore make a hair long enough to reach from here to Yonkers. That sounds of astonishing, because similarly it would produce a line that would reach to the moon, but only cold facts are stated in here.

The weight of Paderewski's hair may also be astonishing. A woman's head of hair seldom weighs more than five or six ounces, and rarely ounces is a liberal allowance for it.

The strength of the hair is a most astonishing one. An average dark of hair can lift a single hair will bear a strain equivalent to four ounces. Paderewski's 200,000 hairs should therefore be able to withstand a strain of 50,000 pounds.

Paderewski's hair grows at the rate of seven inches a year. It would require ten years' accumulation to stuff a cushion of reasonable size, and such a souvenir is hardly to be hoped for.

The question of market value is not great. It might cost one dollar and a quarter cents an ounce, while thirty-six inch lock sells for $7 or more. The market value of Paderewski's hair is probably increased by its rare color, but apart from that it would be of inestimable value as a souvenir. If the pianist should ever be bald up, of which intimately there is no present prospect, he has only to offer his hair for sale. Many an American woman would give a fortune for it.—New York World.

PLEASANT GROVE.

PLEASANT GROVE, - Nov 4, 1895

Pleasant Grove Notes.

Elder Wm. W. Jackson, one of the presidents of Seventies of the quorum named here, died at his home Saturday night. Brother Jackson has taken an active part in all that tended for the building up of this town and his demise will be regretted by a host of relatives and friends in this county as well as throughout the Territory. He was a progressive man with nobility of character.

The "Josephite" chapel of this place was dedicated yesterday. Elder W. W. Blair preached a sermon, after which Elder Hyrum O. Smith, of the "Reorganized" church, made the dedicatory prayer. The building is a neat little brick structure well fitted and seated with chairs. At the rear of the stand, painted in a recess, are these words: "A free pulpit and a open Bible—Prove all things and hold fast that which is good."

Miss Maude Briggs, a normal student of the Utah University, has so far recovered from an attack of fever to return to school.

A great many persons who have been away are returning home to vote.

CANCER CURED

—AND A—

LIFE SAVED

By the Persistent Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore began to disappear and my general health improve. I persisted in this treatment, until the sore was entirely healed. Since then, I use Ayer's Sarsaparilla occasionally as a tonic and blood-purifier, and, indeed, it seems as though I could not keep house without it."—Mrs. S. A. Fields, Bloomfield, Ia.
