WASHINGTON, D.C., March 1.—The accumulation in the Senate chamber at night left many in the proceedings dry. The session is groups discussed the dramatic scenes of the night. The three chief figures in last night's conflict, Chandler, Hill and Gorman, were early in their seats. Several vacant Democratic leaders—Harris, Gordon and others—endeavored and in some cases succeeded in keeping the passage of the appropriation bills. On the whole the Senate behaved well considering the unusual severity. The final vote yesterday, 39 to 26, marks only January 19, 1897, of the time which Gorman might be made to retain hands was discussed at length and passed.

Hoar, chairman of the committee to inquire into the conduct of the Sterling contest, offered a resolution providing for payment of the Sterling contestant. He received attention to the honors to the foreign relations committee of the Democratic caucuses concerning the Behring sea and Nicaragua matters. Morgan said an inquiry was most desirable for the protection of the United States.

Tarpie Dawes, Ind., objected to the unusual consideration of the resolution and it went over.

THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1.—When the House met today fifty members who applied much were counted in attendance, but all by the consent of the unanimous report of the Indian appropriation bill which was agreed to.

It is believed the plan will include the assessment of $1 a share on the stock and the issue of $1,000,000 bonds, the bonds to go to the stockholders or put to represent money paid in on the stock assessment. The $1,000,000 bonds will by the company be transferred and Morris at so are to be redeemed at the same rate, and the remaining $500,000 paid out from assessment will be held for working capital of the company. The stock was a little higher this morning.

The Cuban Uprising.

MADRID, March 1.—The government of Spain believes that the rising in Cuba will be quelled without much difficulty. There are 45,000 Spanish troops there. The rising is said to be lacking the support of the union of the constitutional, autonomist and reformist parties in Cuba, politics, which groups, represented in Cuba, united to pass the Cuban reforms bill of February 15.

SEVERAL ENGAGEMENTS REPORTED.

ST. LOUIS, March 1.—A special telegram from Havana says the insurgents have defeated a force of 2,000 Spanish troops, but no doubt are given. It is reported that Vicente Garcia, a brother of Manuel Garcia, also was killed in the engagement near Aguacate. Another battalion of government troops has left Havana for the east. Many encounters are reported in Santiago. One thousand Chinese men have left Havana in the last sixty days, a few at a time, so as to discern suspicion. Several of the former Cuban officers are among them. The insurgent band led by Maceo, near Jiguey Grande in the province of Santiago, has been disposed of by regular troops.

SPANISH TROOPS SENT TO CUBA.

LONDON, March 1.—A dispatch received this morning from Madrid confirms the Associated Press report of last night announcing that the Spanish government was prepared to send large reinforcement of troops to Cuba if such a step should be found necessary. It is stated the Spanish government has issued definite orders for the immediate transportation of seven thousand of troops, each composed of 600 men, to Havana. Another battalion has been ordered to Havana from Porto Rico, making over 7,000 men dispatched to Cuba to Cuba.

Broke His Neck.

Anton Saxel Sick.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Anton Seidel, who was called by business to return to New York from a tour with his orchestra, is not seriously ill though a severe cold has developed into a grippe, and today he is confined to his bed.

A SILVER PARTY.

The Probable Result of the Labors of the Bimetallic Leagues.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1.—The silver meeting of the executive committee of the Bimetallic Leagues, which has been in progress for nearly two weeks may be continued until after the adjournment of Congress. During this week the conferences have been swelling by the presence of representatives of left Bimetallic. Few Republicans have been part in the discussion and the representation has been confined mostly to the Democratic and Populists. A prominent Democrat says the probable result of the meeting will be a declaration looking to a new party. The people have not been really settled upon, but that seems to be the decision of most of the old war horses. They advocate independent action on the silver question and will compel an issue by 1896 unless the conference agrees on a platform.

Mediterranean Packing Carnival.

CANNES, March 1.—The Mediterranean packing carnival opened this morning with perfect packing weather.

All a clock Prince of Wales's cutter Britannia, E. W. L. Papadopulo's Corsair, Count Pipitz's Valkyrie I, formerly the property of Lord Dunraven, started in the first event. The course for the larger classes of yachts was a distance of about 67 miles. At 11 Britannia had a long lead.

The Dakota was to her place after an exciting race, and the Britannia was in her wake by two and a half minutes. The Valkyrie I would have beaten the Britannia on time allowance, but she was finally handed in the Corsair. The Corsair was disabled.

For Stay-Long.

PARIS, March 1.—The Mayday committee decided last evening to appeal to all societies to show work on May-day.

Bad For Ludwig Low.

Ludwig Low is the name of a blacksmith's helper arrested by the police last night on the serious charge of committing criminal assault on Emma Olson, a 15-year-old domestic employed at his home. The complaining witness is the young girl herself, who is said to be in a critical condition. Low declares innocence of the crime alleged and says that Miss Olson has no regard for truth.

Failed to Comply.

A complaint has been sworn out in Commissioner Pratt's court by J. G. McAllister, previous inspector for Salt Lake, charging the Utah Smelting company with having not the necessary of Mine charge on February 25th, the same not being stamped and tagged as required by law to indicate that they were Wholesome or not. The hearing is set for March 8th.

ROAD MUST BE BUILT

That is the Cry Going Up From the People of Los Angeles.

THIS NO TIME FOR LAGGARDS.

Must Go Forward and Not Backward—The Committee All Ready For Work.

Now that Los Angeles has decided to build the long proposed railroad to Salt Lake, says the Times, it must take hold of the project with energy and push it to completion. It has begun an undertaking of that character and to have failed, it never had not to have begun at all. There is no question of success if the undertaking is properly handled. But Los Angeles must show that she is really able to do it. Cities of six times the population and six times the resources have failed in the enterprise, and it is not to be made light of, and never does need to be a good deal of work done.

The news in the state north of California has not exactly been flattering. Stockton has decided to build the road if it can, and Sacramento is said to be in earnest. The Sacramento Bee says that Sacramento should be ready before either of Stockton or Los Angeles. The result is that Stockton is comparing footings for a population not large greater than that of Southern California, and while nothing like the amount of time is spent in talking about it, there is nothing like the enthusiasm of Los Angeles, which has not yet on a financial subject as close as it ever may come to the country, raised $100,000 cash and gave Lilly a clear lead in the convention to provide the latest substitute to consider its action yesterday.

Tuesday could have a great deal more money than some of its citizens seem to think, if the people will decide the Salt Lake road a success.

Before subscribing it called for some energy must be shown. Los Angeles must show that she herself believes the road will pay. The time has arrived when we must go forward or backwards; we can no longer stand still. If San Francisco builds a road and via Bakersfield, this section will be cut off in a manner as badly as San Diego is now. Connection will be made with the Santa Fe, and the road to San Diego will be from Santa Ana a branch road. There are things that any one can see may come—say, will come—unless Los Angeles makes these impossible by building her own railroads as well as San Francisco. In the present day worth of a competitor, great commercial gravity and a couple of every point for success, the community as well as the individual which remains quiet and rests on property to come to it, will find itself well in the background in no time. San Francisco is a notable example of this. Unprincipled has confirmed it in commercial superiority, yet half its trade was lost and thousands of empty houses were to be seen during the crisis. Los Angeles must profit by the experience and example of other towns which have commanded success by their own indomitable energy and enterprise.

A Fortunate dispatch under date of Tuesday last says: "Assemblyman Hall today introduced the bill to allow Los Angeles to vote for the Salt Lake railroad. By minute of order one to one, was passed by the Senate Monday, and as today is the last bill day there is no possibility of introducing a bill in the Senate now. Possibly the Mathews bill might be amended to meet the requirements of the measure, which would give a better chance of passing it."

Super Hall was shown in the above dispatch Monday afternoon. He said the proposition of trying to get the consent of Senator Mathews to substitute the measure sent up from here for his railroad bill, has already been fully discussed, and every effort will be made to that end. It is not known here yet whether Senator Mathews will agree, but there is every hope that he will, and this would put the bill for the Commission plan in excellent shape, with prospects of early passage.

The Committee of Twenty will continue work in favor of the measure to-day, to-morrow and Saturday and Sunday Tuesday or Wednesday.

Irrigation in Utah.

The last edition of Irrigation in Utah is just from the press and like those which have preceded it, it is sure to attract the attention of thoughtful men engaged in reclaiming arid lands throughout the country.

The irrigation agitation has had cause to be proud of its efforts up to date, for splendid results are being seen in numerous directions. In the matter of advertisements, however, the committee feels that real business men might patronize them more liberally than they have done, for on such revenue the success of the enterprise almost entirely depends.

IN THE COUNTY'S HALF.

The Constitutional Convention Delegates Will Be Its Guests.

Probate Judge McNally and the county attorney visited Territorial penitentiary officials at his office today and invited the use of the civil court chamber in the county's half of the joint building, to the members of the Constitutional Convention.

The invitation was accepted subject to the approval of the convention which will continue meet there at 10 o'clock next on Monday next.

The city's offer to furnish a hall in the convention on the opposite side of the building in the same building was declined with thanks as it was not in accordance with that of the county is ready for immediate use.

Elder W. J. Kelly Dead.

It was a sad and sudden ending of Elder W. J. Kelly, for many years a resident of the seventh ward of this city, to learn that he died unexpectedly from his home in the Twelfth ward last evening after a brief but severe illness. The immediate cause of death was heart failure superinduced by the Sunday Tribune. Elder Kelly returned from a mission to England about a year ago. His health was not the best while away from home and on his return it did not improve to any great extent. He was seriously afflicted with a cough, which other ailments, he was not able to shake off during. He was over 60 years of age.

Funeral services will be held in the Seventh ward meeting house on Sunday next, at 1 p.m.

NEW MILITIA OFFICERS.

Lieutenant Naylor Elected Captain of Troop C and Lieutenant Allred Captain of Company B.

There were two vacancies in National Guard officers in the city last night. At the troop C election a captain and a lieutenant were elected, by the 19 members (Lieut. Q. Cannon in the chair) present.

There were four candidates for the captaincy. They were Lieutenants Smith and Naylor and Privates A. M. Lewis and F. M. L. Swanson. On the first ballot Smith received seven votes, Lieutenant Naylor and Private Cannon each six votes and Private Lewis one. The contest resulting in the latter going to Lieut. Smith. Naylor. This left a vacancy in the second lieutenancy and on the first ballot there were candidates Lieut. Ford and Private Hodgson and E. V. Taylor. Ballots were cast.

Company D's election resulted in Lieutenant Allred being made Captain and in Second Lieutenant Mylton being made 1st lieutenant. Corporal Keeling was elected second lieutenant.

Runaway and Collision.

A vicious, wild eyed, bald kicking runaway mustang harnessed to a top less buggy made matters very lively on East Temple street about 11 o'clock this forenoon. The beast was nearly frightened and as was the young man who was tugging away at the lines as he tried to keep his seat in the vehicle which was wrecked by coming in contact with a millionaire's outfit near the Templeton corner. The team was moving north and west and the horses in both vehicles found themselves unhitched in a twinkling, with no harm to them the other for half a block. The damage was confined to the vehicles and harness.

NO ACTION TAKEN.
