Out of the total of 135 prisoners confined in the territorial prison at Yuma, Arizona, but two of them have a trade. One is a carpenter and another a blacksmith.

The oranges in the orchards in the Salt River valley, says an exchange, will be ready for picking inside of a month, while in the most favored spots in California they can not be gathered for two months.

Joseph Reynolds, a colored youth, of 15 years, stole a bunch of crapes from a railroad car at San Francisco on Monday. He was arrested and locked at the police station on a charge of burglary. The boy claimed he was hungry.

We hear there is a deal of the spring clip of wool held back in the settlements north of us, says the Redfield Journal. Sheepmen hope to get a better price somewhere in the near future, but some of them are getting faithless and are pushing their wool into the markets.

The body of Fred Winderbiffe was found in the Boise river yesterday about one mile below Boise, Idaho. He was a miner in the Neal district and disappeared a few weeks ago, having accumulated some $600, he went to Boise for a spree. When his money was all gone he thought life not be tolerable to kill himself. Nothing more was seen of him. It is thought that he committed suicide.

Seven weeks ago Attorney General Hart, of San Francisco, left for Washington to file before the Supreme Court of the United States an original information in equity, in the name of the state of California, against the Southern Pacific company to determine title, in the court of last resort, once and for all of the Oakland water front. Permission to file this information has been granted and subpoenas are made returnable by March 1st, 1894.

General T. F. Wilder has sent for seeds of the "tagasta," a new forage plant which is described as of great value in arid regions. It will produce abundantly without irrigation, and makes very rich and fattening feed for stock. It is stated that in regions of the old world precisely similar to Arizona, heavy crops are cut and fed, and that is a great source of wealth. The general has sent for the seeds to two experiment stations in Arizona, and the agricultural department at Washington.—Arizona Gazette.

Says the Butte (Mont.) Inter-Mountain: Jack Conley, deputy sheriff of Deer Lodge has called at the morgue of the Butte Undertaking company and positively identified the body there as that of Thomas Burns. Mr. Conley was guard to the penitentiary two years ago while Burns was confined there. He says there can be no doubt that it is Burns, who committed suicide in jail about two weeks ago, and who has been variously identified as eight different persons.

Dr. Herbert, of Richfield, says the Advocate, is shipping well-boring machinery from Mount Pleasant to his ranch in Iron county, where he will prospect for water. It is a 4-horse power machine. The doctor makes the offer to have the machine stay over 30 days here in Richfield and sink for water on Main street, if the city authorities will pay expenses. The machinery will be here in about ten days. This seems to be a good chance to make a trial to provide artesian water in town, and should not be overlooked.

The notorious Rev. Mr. Beame, who eloped with Lucy Hacker, a prominent member of his flock, and was arrested at Vancouver about two months ago, afterwards escaping from the officers, is said to have been living at Seattle, W. T., since he disappeared from Vancouver. He came there about eight weeks ago and passed himself off as a painter. Under the assumed name of Alberts he became conspicuous in church work. Last Saturday a sailor who had seen Beame at Vancouver came to town and exposed him. Beame left town suddenly and his present whereabouts are unknown.

Within the past few weeks, remarks the Helena (Mont.) Herald, surveys for the Missouri river dam above Canyon Ferry have been advanced to completion, and the engineer's report will soon be prepared and submitted to the projectors of the important undertaking. Carried to a successful conclusion, the enterprise will result in the transmission of electric power to Helena sufficient for all the needs of street railway operation, with a vast surplus to be applied to motor uses in all sorts and kinds of industrial plants. A number of ranches bordering the river, which the tack-water will overflow, will become part of the property of the power company.

A painful uncertainty exists as to the actual state of the health of that popular songstress, Rosina Vokes, says a special from Denver to the San Francisco Chronicle. For some time past it has been feared that she might have contracted pulmonary disease. Occasionally a startling symptom of radical character has displayed itself. The large audiences which greeted her reappearance at the Tabor Opera House last night was shocked by the contrast between her present worn and wan features and the ruddy embonpoint of vigorous health which she was recalled in connection with her former engagement at Denver. There seemed no escape from the conclusion that she is in failing health. She was frequently compelled to turn her back to the auditorium to conceal the distress she suffered from a racking cough. Her weakened body shook with the effort to restore the system and she is a mere shadow of her former self.

A Mr. Louis Webster, in her complaint for a divorce, from William Webster filed in the superior court of Alameda county, Cal., relates a tale of cruelty seldom heard of. The couple were married in San Francisco in 1885. It is related that on one occasion Webster declined to give his wife a great shock. When she came home after an outing he sprinkled her, and drawing a knife, stabbed himself in the neck several times. The blood ran down his shirt in torrents from the deep wounds. The couple had nearly concluded after this and home was very unpleasant for everybody. Webster's conduct to his children, and her daughter determined to give her a decent burial. While on the way to the cemetery Webster took his wife to task for hiring a mourner to preach over the remains. "Why, my lass, she did not die as she lived, without a minister," is the language attributed to the husband. The complaint says that the defendant, in a fit of jealousy, killing a valued tiger belonging to a society circus, which he had taken to glass in a window. Through the fire he threw a tea kettle, through the window pane of bread, through the door a poker and through the door he threw a hot dish. After this exercise he threatened to kill her next day. Among other things, when he could not find anything else to do to annoy his wife he used to throw pitchforks at her pet canary birds.
