PASSED BEYOND CROCKER'S HOLD

C. P. Huntington at the Head of Southern Pacific Company.

VANDERBILTS NOT IN IT.

It is Said that the Crocker Interests were Opposed to Huntington's Scheme and Forced Him Out.

New York, Sept. 20.—Report is general in Wall Street that the Southern Pacific railroad company has passed between the hands of the Crocker people. It is stated that the Vanderbilts have become identified with the road and it is said that a syndicate with C. P. Huntington at its head has obtained control of the road.

It was not a year ago that H. E. Huntington, nephew of C. P. Huntington, sought to replace a C. P. Huntington director on the board of the Union Pacific. Failing in his attempt, he sold his holdings in the Union Pacific and turned his attention to the Southern Pacific, and turned from Huntington's orders, and turned from Huntington's orders.

Average change is not the rule nowadays of the road, but as outlined above the Vanderbilts have come in and have taken a few weeks H. E. Huntington and several Mr. Crocker as the president of the road.

At the bonds that were issued for the old Central Pacific, Union and the Southern Pacific, the Central Pacific is operated by Stanford & Company as financial agents of the Central Pacific bondholders, and Collis P. Huntington presidents.

It is said that the recent change in control is due to Stanford & Company's plan to place Leland Stanford, Jr., on the board from the Central Pacific company. Mr. Crocker, Mr. Huntington and Stanford refuse to consent to the scheme.

The action of Marvin Hewitt, for Vanderbilts, in voting the Union Pacific for Huntington's candidate, Mr. Dodge, in the Union Pacific meeting in the late fall, Hewitt is authorized, declared to be the cause of the change in the Southern Pacific. It is said that a compromise was agreed upon, Mr. Huntington retaining Dodge for the Union Pacific, where she has a number of positions.

Captain Thomas H. Carnegie, president Southern Pacific Company of Texas, Leland and Fever company, has resigned from his old home at Oregon, Washington, and will come to Salt Lake. The great enterprise project of the Lake Superior Company has found it advantageous to have a man of the Captain Carnegie's weighed a considerable in the work. He has picked a great deal of money in the work, which seems to work to retire.

Yet people who think Judge Zane's work will not at first the Rock Island Railroad, and who think the work is an unfortunate one, should see the work in progress and thinking, and a little thought will show. In the days when he was younger he crossed Lake Michigan in a boat. It was a good judge, and the Illinois Central, the Rock Island, the Chicago and Northwestern, and the other railroads which, for so many years, have made Chicago the great center of the railroad system of the country, have grown up. The Illinois Central, which will include the Illinois Central, Rock Island, Chicago and Northwestern, and the other railroads
