A CLOUDBURST.

Great Damage Done, but No Lives Lost.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 15.—At Kenmawville, Green county, Saturday, a cloudburst did great damage. The place is remote from railroad and telegraph. The fall of water was terrible. The storehouse, residences and outbuildings of F. N. King were swept away. The postoffice was kept in his store and everything was lost. A number of other houses were carried away and all crops along the creek bottom lands were destroyed. Considerable stock was drowned, but no person lost. The damage to property will amount to a large sum.

London Panaganda.

LONDON, June 15.—The idea of an autumn session has been abandoned. Parliament will reassemble in January.

The Primitive Methodist conference to session at Northampton has passed a resolution commiting the Prince of Wales for his connection with the baccarat scandal.

The census of England and Wales shows a population of 29,001,018, an increase of 3,000,000 during the last decade.

In response to the protests of the foreign diplomatic representatives at Pekin, the Emperor of China has ordered the Chinese authorities to protect all foreigners and to punish the natives who took part in the recent riots.

The British consul at Odessa, in a dispatch to Lord Salisbury, is denying the truth of the reports of an exodus of Russian Jews to England. He says the bulk of the emigrants go to Constantinople.

The natives belonging to the Touareg tribes of North Africa have been compelled to leave the Sahara region on account of the ravages of the locusts, and they threaten to raid Tunis.

Killed in the Mountenstein Disaster.

BASLE, June 15.—The first-class passengers killed here include Dubech, director of the Jura and Simplon railroad; Dr. Vogelo, of Basle, and family; Professor Dubeck and other well-known persons of Basle.

A Citizens' Candidate Elected.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15.—At the municipal election yesterday W. S. Mason, the citizen's candidate for mayor was elected by a majority of more than two thousand.

The Knights of Labor and Secretary Foster.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Much interest is manifested in regard to the recent action of the secretary of the treasury in the matter of the charges against the chief of the bureau of engraving and printing, for discharging seven plate printers, made by the executive committee of the Knights of Labor.

The investigation by Secretary Foster showed that the men were dropped from the rolls by his predecessor. He is of the opinion that it would be unfair and inexpedient to reinstate discharged men to their old places and thus displace the men holding them. However, he promised, in view of the fact that within the next six weeks a large number of printers would be required, that the men within that time should be given preference. The proposition was rejected by the Knights of Labor representatives who ask that the men be given their old places.

High Prices Continue.

BERLIN, June 16.—The high price of cereals is being maintained on account of bad weather in the grain growing districts, especially in the Danube monarchies and Tyrol, where snow recently fell.

Grain Free of Duty.

PARIS, June 16.—The chamber of deputies voted the approval of a duty of three francs on maize with provision for the temporary admission of grain, if to be used in the manufacture of alcohol for export.

Extravagance Denied.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—Warner Miller, president of the Nicaragua Canal company, denies the charge of extravagance made against the officers of the company.

World's Fair Matters.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—State Comptroller Colgan has announced that he will refuse to sign the warrants granting $100,000 to the California World's Fair commission for State exhibits. He bases his action on the provision of the State constitution which says that no money shall be appropriated for the benefit of any association or institution not under the exclusive control of the State. He claims that the commission is not exclusively under State control. The case will be tested in the courts.

THE IRRIGATION CONVENTION.

Barber, acting governor of Wyoming, Governor Sylvester Pennoyer of Oregon and Governor Jim K. Colcord of Nevada.

FROM THE SOUTH.

What the People are Doing in Garfield County.

Editor Deseret News:

On Saturday, May 30th, I traveled thirty miles from Circleville to Panguitch with Brother Willis Johnson, of the first named place. After leaving Circleville we passed through a canyon thirteen miles long, in which the road crosses the Sevier river twice. At the head of the canyon, where massive rock walls rise to a majestic height on the west and present a great variety of beautiful scenery, the traveler enters a fine valley, through which the south branch of the Sevier takes a meandering course in a northwesterly direction. There is a number of ranches located here and there on the bench, or on the creeks pouring into the river. Passing along we reach a ranch called Tushville, on the west side of the river, nearly opposite the spot where Fort Sanford of Blackhawk war fame once stood on the east side. Traveling eight miles further we reach Panguitch, the headquarters of the Panguitch Stake and the county seat of Garfield county.

At Panguitch I met Apostle Lyman, who since last Sunday has been traveling in the Sevier and Panguitch Stakes, holding meetings with the Saints in Kosharem, where he organized the Grass Valley ward, and at Cannonville, where an entire new Bishopric was installed. Yesterday and today the fifty-third quarterly conference of the Panguitch Stake has been held at Panguitch. All the meetings were well attended, excellent instructions were given, and we had a time of rejoicing.

It will be interesting for such readers of the News who dwell in warmer climes to note the fact that while we today the 1st of June, were engaged in divine worship inside a commodious and comfortable meeting house, snow flakes were falling fast on the outside, and for a short time the ground was covered. But the residents of Panguitch secure in that fact that such weather on the first of June every year; in fact old settlers have told us that it has never snowed before so late in the season while they have dwelt in this upper country.

Tomorrow morning Apostle Lyman will leave for Beaver and Salt Lake City. I am to remain and write history, and for this purpose must visit every ward and settlement in the Panguitch and Sevier Stakes of Zion.

Panguitch is, in my estimation, a fine place; it is in some respects unlike any settlement of the Saints I have visited so far. Nestling pleasantly at the foot of gently sloping mountains on the south end of a broad valley, its fine brick buildings present themselves to the gaze of the traveler in bold relief as he approaches from the north, there being no shade trees or orchards to obstruct the view, save a few scattered cottonwood trees and a pretty thrifty growth of willows which fringe the Panguitch creek to the right and the Sevier river on the left, the town being situated in what may be called the forks of the two streams.

There is an air of comfort about Panguitch that one feels at once after settling there, notwithstanding the absence of fine gardens like those met with in a lower altitude; the homes are generally well furnished, and most of the modern conveniences met with in the older settlements of the Saints are also found here. Three stores doing a good business are located in the central part of town and a modern roller flouring mill situated on the Sevier river, 11 miles east of the town, is patronized by the people who live within a radius of nearly seventy-five miles.

The Panguitch ward, presided over by Bishop Allen Miller, embraces all of Panguitch valley, and also the country lying south of the ranches on the head waters of the south fork of the Sevier, clear to the rim of the basin. This southern part of the country once had a separate ward organized called Hillsdale, but is now a branch of the Panguitch ward, known as the Mammoth Branch.

The people of Panguitch as a rule appear to be happy, healthy and God-fearing, and are also hospitable to strangers who are friends to their interests. A school is here and receives some patronage but not from Latter-day Saints. Saints don't upple. Judging from the healthy and robust appearance of most of those who attended the conference, we should think them exemplary in their habits, but if they have not been so hitherto they surely will be hereafter, if they follow the advice given during the meetings just held. It would be inconsistent to think that the brave sons and noble daughters of Zion, who have every opportunity placed before them to become men and women of the first rank, would cut themselves off from the blessings of health, strengthening life, intelligence, wisdom and grace by contracting habits of intemperance and impurity. Oh, no. Let us hope that the sons and daughters of Zion will be exemplary in their habits, that they will guard virtue and chastity as they guard their lives, and practice godliness to the Celestial World's Fair commission for State exhibits. He bases his action on the provision of the State constitution which says that no money shall be appropriated for the benefit of any association or institution not under the exclusive control of the State. He claims that the commission is not exclusively under State control. The case will be tested in the courts.

stockholders, but raise their own breadstuff, and some to spare. The sheep business is very profitable here, and perhaps one hundred thousand sheep, owned principally by the people of Garfield county, are grazing at the present time in the surrounding slopes and mountain pastures, mainly on the East Fork.

The Panguitch stake of Zion embraces all of Garfield county, a part of Piute county, and a small portion of Kane county, Utah; it embraces seven organized wards, of which Panguitch, with a membership of 502 souls, or 114 families, is the largest. Next in size is the Escalante ward, distant about seventy-five miles to the southeast, with 71 souls, or 108 families; then comes the Cannonville ward, the last thirty-five miles north, with 274 members or fifty families; then Junction ward, with a membership of 224 members or 41 families; after that Marion ward, in the lower end of Grass valley, partly in Piute and partly in Garfield county, and last Henrieville ward with 142 souls or 24 families. It will thus be seen that the Panguitch Stake of Zion has a total membership of 2,703 souls or 540 families. There are two Patriarchs (Joseph L. Heywood of Narrow fame, and James Hendrie, formerly President of the Stake, both highly respected and good and faithful men), 50 Seventies, 79 High Priests, 100 Elders, 12 Priests, 10 Teachers, 111 Deacons, 1298 laymembers and 1051 children under eight years of age. John W. Crosby, Jr., presides over the Stake, with Mahonri M. Steele and David Cameron as counselors, three good, faithful and full-hearted men, who appear to have the undivided confidence of the whole community. The Panguitch Stake was organized in 1877. The site of Panguitch was first settled in 1864, was vacated because of Indian troubles in 1866 and re-settled in 1871.

GRAPE CULTURE IN UTAH.

The Subject Interestingly Discussed by David Leicher, of Akron, Ohio.

A FERTILE GRAPE GROWING COUNTRY

That Possesses an Advantage Over California in Being Nearer to Eastern Markets.

The following is reproduced from the Akron Beacon and Republican, published in Summit county, Ohio, under date of May 29th, and will undoubtedly be interesting reading to Utah grape culturists:

Mr. David Leicher, of Akron, extensively interested in the Kelly island grape culture, and who has had wide experience in the cultivation of grapes, returned Saturday to his home at the corner of South Union and Forge streets, after a six months' trip through the West. While Mr. Leicher visited many friends and relatives during his trip, the principal object was an examination of California methods in the culture of a competitor with those followed in the Middle States. While absent he made a careful and critical examination of the soil and climate of Utah with a view of forming an opinion as to the future of the grape industry in that territory.

Mr. Leicher was today called upon by a reporter and in regard to his trip said: "I was very favorably impressed by the West and its marvelous growth, and especially with Utah. While in Salt Lake City I was the guest of my daughter, Mrs. Geo. Allengel, and during my long stay there made an exhaustive examination of the resources and possibilities of the Territory. Salt Lake City is a delightful city of 50,000 inhabitants and bids fair in five years to treble its population. Capital and trades are working great transformations in that old time city of the Mormons. Blocks are yearly going up, which in some instances cost $1,000,000. The great Mormon Temple, now in process of erection, will undoubtedly be the wonder of the West. It has already cost $1,000,000 and will cost much more by the time it is completed. The present tortoise shaped Tabernacle, in which the Mormon Church worships, is an immense structure and is crowded every Sunday.

"If you ever had an idea that Utah is a barren waste of sand, get rid of it at once, for it is one of the most fertile spots of the earth. In mineral wealth it is inferior to no State in the Union. I visited its immense silver mines and was astonished at the magnitude of their products. A large portion of its soil is suitable for cultivation, and the magnificent system of irrigation makes it nearly all fertile. But it is especially adapted to the growth of fruit, and that line will rapidly advance in the front. The beach lands are perfectly adapted to the growth of fruits of the temperate zone, and specially for the culture of grapes. Moreover, grapes require no irrigation. In fact, to a certain limit, the drier the better, and in this climate our great struggle is to prevent grapes from rotting on account of wet weather. The soil is very rich and I predict that in a few years the immense stretches covered at present with sagebrush will abound in fertile vineyards. The climate is pleasant, not too warm in the summer, for the most part, delightful. The rainy season is now about over and the dry season will last till fall, giving a magnificent opportunity to ripen. It is equally true, however, that the climate will not develope the more delicate and tropical varieties of California grapes, but for the hardier grapes the climate and surroundings could not be better. They are, of course, nearer the East than the California grape growers and would have an immense advantage there, while they could command the whole trade of the Northwest, where grapes cannot be grown to advantage.

"After my stay in Utah I went through the grape growing section of California. The grape crop is in fine condition and if no accident happens the yield will be immense. Southern California has the secret of grape culture on a large scale. All through the West, wherever I went, I found the spring backward. The season is about four weeks behind and will have to hurry in order to catch up."

During Mr. Leicher's stay in the West he also took a trip through Oregon, Washington and Montana, visiting with his son, Dr. C. B. Leicher, in Miles City, Mont.
