Is Superior for Hydraulic Mining, City Water Works, and all other purposes for which iron or wood is used to any pipe now manufactured. It combines

LIGHTNESS WITH STRENGTH,
(Being from ⅓ to ½ the weight of iron,) and

CHEAPNESS WITH DURABILITY.

It is Made of the Best Oregon Pine, and is spirally Bound with Wrought Iron of Suitable Strength to Sustain any Required Pressure. The whole Exterior is Completely Protected from Rust or Decay by a Thick Coating of Asphaltum, while the Interior being Constantly in contact with the water

WILL LAST FOR 50 YEARS.

It is from 50 to 75 per cent. Cheaper than the Iron Pipe, and will sustain a gravity head of 700 feet, or over 300 pounds pressure to the square inch.

It is already in use in many of the leading Cities of the Pacific Coast, and is rapidly taking the place of iron pipe along the lines of Western Railroads. It is used for Gas, Oil and Water. For full particulars, prices, Etc., address,

THE NEW VICTOR.

SIMPLICITY SIMPLIFIED!

Improvements September, 1878.

Notwithstanding the VICTOR has long been the peer of any Sewing Machine in the market—a fact supported by a host of volunteer witnesses—we now confidently claim for it greater simplicity, a wonderful reduction of friction and a rare combination of desirable qualities. Its shuttle is a beautiful specimen of mechanism, and takes rank with the highest achievements of inventive genius. Note.—We do not lease or consign Machines, therefore, have no old ones to patch up and re-varnish for our customers.

EVENING NEWS.

Saturday, - - April 10, 1880.

BY TELEGRAPH.

PER WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH LINE.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, 9.—The Senate decided to adjourn to Monday.

Logan submitted a resolution directing the Secretary of War to furnish the Senate any facts respecting the mutilation of Cadet Whittaker. He subsequently modified it so that the President was requested to transmit the facts. Logan characterized the reports respecting the outrage as extraordinary.

Voorhees, Bruce and Hoar supported the resolution, and denounced the practice of hazing at West Point.

The resolution went over and the Ute bill was taken up. Vest addressed the Senate, and said the bill would prevent a terrible and inglorious war.

Teller said the education of the Indians had proved a failure. He therefore opposed Dawes's amendment.

Plumb denied that frontiersmen originated all the outrages against the Indians.

Blaine would favor the bill to prevent war.

Dawes' amendment was adopted 44 to 8. It gives the President discretion to devote $10,000 to the education of young Indians of both sexes who are judged best qualified therefor.

On motion of Price, the amount paid Mrs. Meeker, Miss Meeker and Mrs. Price was made $500 each, instead of $400 annually; and on motion of Teller Mrs. Post's amount was raised to $300.

On motion of Plumb the clause binding the Indians to give up the men implicated in the Meeker murder was made to include those who committed the outrages also.

Morgan moved an amendment providing that nothing contained in this act or agreement shall be construed so as to compel any Ute Indian to remove from lands claimed by him in severalty, or to deprive any such Indian who shall refuse to sign the agreement of his right to select a tract of land for agricultural purposes within two years from the passage of the act, under the stipulation of an existing treaty in any part of the Ute Reservation.

In the debate on this amendment, Edmunds agreed with Morgan's view that this bill was unconstitutional as infringing upon the treaty making power.

Ingalls said it was too late in the day to question the right of Indians to hold lands. England, France, Holland and Spain, in colonizing America, had all proceeded on the idea that Indians owned the soil, and it must be procured from them by voluntary cession for a consideration. It was immaterial whether there was an agreement or a treaty, we were obliged to, in some way, bargain with them for a cession of the lands rightfully held by them.

Thurman—Congress could undoubtedly authorize the Secretary of the Interior to purchase lands of any individual corporation, association, tribe or nation, and was essentially the purpose of the bill.

McMillan pointed out some legal objections to the bill. The first part of Morgan's amendment ending with the word "severalty," was accepted by the committee and adopted; the remainder of the amendment was rejected; yeas 69, nays 45. After a discussion it was unanimously agreed that the general debate on the bill shall cease at 3 p. m. on Monday, and that the debate on the amendments shall then proceed under the five minute rule, and that the bill shall be finally voted on adjournment on Monday. The Senate adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, 9.—Wilson, from the foreign affairs committee reported back the joint resolution thanking Mexico for her hearty support of the industrial mission of American merchants and manufacturers. Placed on the calendar.

De la Matyr introduced a bill establishing a temporary government for Alaska; referred.

Reports of a private nature were called.

Newberry introduced a bill, which was referred to the committee on ways and means respecting imported goods, making it unlawful to transport such merchandise in bond, or with duty paid from one port or place in the United States when any portion of such transportation is made through any foreign country bordering on the Gulf of Mexico or on the Carribean Sea, except as the same are permitted by treaties with such countries.

After a long debate on the bill for the relief of L. Madison Day, of Louisiana, a vote was taken and showed no quorum present. Adjourned.

AMERICAN.

Senatorial Caucus.

WASHINGTON, 9.—The Democratic Senatorial Caucus met again today and favored leaving the Spofford-Kellogg case until next session, if the Geneva award bill and the appropriation bills are ready.

Jones demanded that Lousiana be no further misrepresented in the Senate, and that the case be considered regardless of politics.

Senators Jones and Hill, of Georgia, Saulsbury, Vance and Vest took the ground that the Spofford-Kellogg case could not properly be postponed. They were opposed to any evasion of the issue, and wanted the democratic party to have and show the courage of its convictions. They insisted that it was plain that Senator Kellogg had not a right to his seat, and the majority should not hesitate to seat Spofford.

Garland spoke in favor of going on with more important public business. The Kellogg case was not a pressing matter, and it should await the Senate's action upon the pending appropriation bills and other necessary general legislation. Garland expressed his decided opinion that the Kellogg matter ought to be laid over until next season.

Thurman thought the Geneva award bill of a great deal more consequence than the Kellogg case, and urged it be given the preference.

Considerable feeling was manifested by Senators, who argued in favor of immediate action on the Louisiana case, and some intimated that they would make the question a personal matter, and retaliate upon those who would bring about a postponement.

Senators Hill, Saulsbury and Vance, of the elections committee, held an investigation. The case was ordered with the understanding that it should be disposed of as soon as all the facts could be learned, and they, therefore, thought it would not be treating fairly the committee to postpone the matter, the investigation of the matter having been entrusted to the committee, and the labor having been faithfully performed, the majority of the Senate ought to stand by the committee's conclusions.

Senator Bayard and some others thereupon remarked that their understanding was that the committee were to inquire whether or not the case was res adjudicata, and that the question whether Kellogg's title was open to dispute was thereafter to be determined by the Senate at its convenience, and upon its own judgment.

Although, as above stated, the majority of those present at the caucus were evidently giving other business precedence over this case, the minority who insist upon its prompt consideration are so urgent, that it is still very possible that they may carry their point.

The Inhumanity at West Point.

In the debate to-day respecting the Whittaker matter at West Point, Voorhees said he wondered that the graduates at West Point survived its brutality and the uncivilized conduct on the part of the students, and he favored every kind of investigation, to harmonize and civilize. If not possible to Christianize West Point, the government ought even to abolish the institution. If this inhuman outrage was really perpetrated, he did not know whether the instructors were to blame or whether their being educated to war was the cause; but these young men seemed inspired with brutality. He took no stock in the assertion that Whittaker cut his own ears off; he had known other outrages similar to this.

Hoar said this was not a case of hazing, which would come in the first year of the students, but was an outrage against the colored people, such as was common at West Point in respect of colored members of that institution, and unless it could be ended, it ought to result in the abolition of the institution. The colored boy at West Point is a solitary Robinson Crusoe. He is absolutely without associates or sympathy in sickness or sorrow. He feared the instructors there had not impressed the classes that the basest thing they can do is to treat a young colored youth as an exile on account of the color of his skin. This American republic with its 4,000,000 colored citizens equal before the Constitution and law, will grind that institution to powder unless this abuse is cured.

Naval Suit.

The suit of Lieutenant Wetmore against Admiral Porter, to recover $2,615 alleged to have been illegally retained from plaintiff's pay by defendant's order and sent to the divorced wife of the former, was continued to-day. Several letters were placed in evidence. Among them was the following:

NEW LONDON,
July 20, 1879.

Dear Sir.—I enclose your pay account, and shall depend on your honor to send Mrs. W. $69. I do not know how that affair has progressed, but if it ended this month, it is the last payment I will expect from you. When I arrived in Philadelphia I found her in arrears for Kate's schooling, all of which I paid off and you can do no less than send her $69. Let me hear from you about the affair and speak of it carefully so that no one will understand it if it should be opened.

Yours truly,
THE ADMIRAL.

Judge Cox decided that Admiral Porter was not the superior officer of Wetmore and there was no legal duress exercised by Porter in requiring Wetmore to pay over to his divorced wife and her daughter the sums stated in the declaration. The plaintiff submitted to a non-suit. Porter's counsel announced that if another suit was brought he would plead the statute of limitations.

Grant Doomed.

NEW YORK, 9.—Thurlow Weed, in the Tribune, to-day, says: Six months ago Grant's nomination was a foregone conclusion; there was a general belief that the country needed him. But the circumstances and conditions bearing legitimately upon the question have entirely changed. I think the nomination of either of the other principal candidates preferrable to Grant, because he has been honored sufficiently already, and because the anti-third term sentiment will imperil his chances.

Weed claims to have been the leading organizer of the movement securing his first nomination and naming those who participated. He says of those original supporters of Grant: "Though now as then truly his friends, not more than one believes his nomination expedient. If called on to express an opinion, they would probably say that in their judgment the course recently pursued by the republicans of Connecticut in the State convention was practical and patriotic."

Western Feeling Regarding the Canal.

The Evening Post has the following: The Board of Trade of San Francisco have lost no time after the departure of De Lesseps, in publishing the report just made by their committee into the subject of Isthmian Canals. The most conspicuous member of the board took pains to treat De Lesseps with distinguished hospitality while he was in that city, and the famous engineer has now another opportunity to measure the difference between social courtesy and business alliance.

Democratic Division.

The committee of Irving Hall democracy appointed for the purpose met to-day and sent to the Democratic Union, who were trying to harmonize the factions of the democracy in answer to a communication from the Democratic Union, declining their proposition and also a copy of a resolution, adopted by the committee, declaring that they disapproved of any arrangement that necessarily involved the responsibility of introducing into the National or State Conventions, delegates from any organization which threatened to dispute their authority and repudiate their candidates, and that whenever such organization consented to unite with the regular democracy in unreserved support of the National and State candidate, this committee will be prepared cordially to make terms and conditions upon which democratic co-operation and harmony could be secured and perpetuated.

Fire and Explosion.

CHICAGO, 9.—The Inter-Ocean's Dixon, Ill., special says: The loss of life in this morning's fire was occasioned by a terrific explosion which occurred at 2 o'clock and threw down the east wall, scattering fire in every direction, and hurling several firemen, who were upon the roof of the Beckers' mill into the mill race. Ezra Beckers and Wm. Sehem escaped as by a miracle. The others who were assisting the firemen were burned, bruised and terribly mutilated by the falling walls at the same time. The loss will reach fully $300,000.

Indian Troubles.

SANTA FE, 9.—Information received at military headquarters says: Gen. Hatch, with a part of his command, attacked 300 Indians in camp in Samandres mountains. The fight lasted six hours. The Indians retreated, leaving their dead behind. Captain Henry Carrol, of the Ninth Cavalry, and seven soldiers, were severely wounded. A large amount of stock was captured from the Indians, who are supposed to be Mescalero Apaches, as they retreated towards the Mescalero Apache Agency. Hatch with his command is in hot pursuit.
