SALT LAKE CITY'S WATER SUPPLY.

Report of City Engineer Is the Cause of Much Discussion.

WORK IS ORDERED STOPPED

Statement by Robertson Contradicted over the Purchase of a Typewriter—To Licence Fortune Tellers.

It will cost Salt Lake City in the neighborhood of $1,000 for preliminary work done on the proposed plan for securing an adequate water supply from Mill Creek and Big Cottonwood is current one. This estimate was given by City Engineer Rohrer in a joint submitted at last night's Council meeting, called for in a resolution introduced by Councilman Fennemore a week ago. The use the city is put in a condition financially to admore the obligation is plainly evident, if the sentiment of Councilman Rooney, chairman of the finance committee, counts for aught. Already there has been expended the sum of $1,000 for instruments, materials, putting in weirs, making surveys, stream measurements, maps, plans, profiles, calculations, collecting data and investigating water rights; and the estimated cost of completing the work, ordered by the Council, means an additional outlay of $2,500. In his report Mr. Kelsey says the greater part of the field work is already done and the office work is now well under way.

Strange to say the Council ordered the city engineer to proceed with the work without first finding out what the probable cost would be. Although members felt, after the survey had commenced, go to Mr. Kelsey and ask for an estimate, it was not until Rohrer told it would be about $5,000. Among those who took the trouble to ascertain was Councilman Fernemore. The figures given by the city engineer almost staggered him and to order that the other members might know "what they were about" he introduced a resolution which requested a report from Mr. Kelsey, at the start to date and the estimated cost of completing the work. In his report Mr. Kelsey said:

"At the time this work was ordered the City Council did not ask for or estimate of the probable cost of the work. Some of the Council who did ask were told that the probable cost would be about $1,000; this amount is not adequate for the work necessary to be done.

"The past recommendations of the city engineers have been followed and their reports for authority to make surveys and other measurements have been denied, so that it was necessary before reporting to secure data which should have been obtained and placed on record in the city engineer's office, where it properly belongs, and make surveys which should have been made years ago. There were no records of the location, grade or capacity of the canal from Utah Lake, or of the volume of water that has been delivered through it, and a complete re-survey of the canal was necessary. The city ordinances make it the duty of the officer who has charge of the city's irrigation system to keep a full and complete record of the city's water rights and the location, size, capacity of the waterways and measurements and records of the water to which the city is entitled; yet there are no records of these matters in that department and the city's rights are infringed upon with impunity.

"The work is not yet far enough advanced to make an estimate and I have made no estimate of the cost of procuring an adequate supply of water by one of the proposed plans which I was instructed to investigate; but in making the necessary changes in the direction of the system which will have to be made in the near future, it will approximate $10,000, and an expenditure of one per cent of this amount in securing the data necessary for a thorough understanding of the water question is certainly a reasonable one. Before deciding on any plan for securing the water supply, the city should secure all of the information to be obtained and investigate other sources of supply."

DISCUSSION FOLLOWED.

At the conclusion of the reading of the report Dodd moved that it be referred to the committee on waterworks. Much debate followed.

Rooney said the city engineer had already gone too far in expending the city's money, and thought the work should be stopped at once.

Fennemore expressed surprise, too, and severely condemned spending hundreds more.

Callister favored limiting the expenditures to some definite amount and suggested that the waterworks committee report at the next meeting.

Rowe said the work should be stopped at once.

Patrick expressed similar views.

Robertson favored going on with the work and said the city would otherwise derive considerable revenue in water rates. He regarded it as a necessity and as necessity was the mother of invention there was no doubt but there would be ingenuity in the city to devise a water scheme and proceed with it.

Robertson said from a personal standpoint, if he could be relieved of the annoyance he had been and was, in the matter of the water supply, he would be happier. He contended that if the necessary data had been kept in the proper place, much time would have been saved. The statement is as follows:

Amount expended for salaries, surveys, engineering, city ditch work, etc., paid in 1898 ..... $12,357.19
Balance paid in 1899 ..... 2,581.50
Total $14,938.69

Water from drive wells has utilized except small part of it for irrigation. Recommendations not carried out. Recommended that the canal from Utah Lake be enlarged, and storage reservoir at a cost of 20,000 acre feet.

Expense on Jordan canal in 1897 ..... $17,258.49
Amount expended by the waterworks company for Utah county in 1898 ..... 4,325.12
Could not utilize the water effectively owing to wills. The city was sued by Alfred on account of the wells draining his springs—judgment paid in 1898 ..... 2,000.00
Total $23,583.61
Exceeding Thirteenth East street survey $15,793.79

Reservoir not completed and used.

The amount expended on the above investigation, surveys and experimental work in 1898 was $21,138, and the work did not result in any increase of the city's available water supply.

Amount expended by report water commission of 1897 for surveys and subscriptions paid H. J. Mack and C. L. Herrick, $1,622.21.

Investigations outlined in the statement for the city, No direct benefit. No record of data collected by the commission of any value and the only recommendation carried out was those made by the city engineer.

Work done in 1898, the present work authorized by the City Council October 4, 1898, for instruments, materials, surveys, stream measurements, maps, plans, and investigating water rights and records, to January 1st, $2,581.50. Estimated cost of completing work now contemplated, $2,500.

After further discussion the report was referred to the waterworks committee and the work ordered stopped until further notice.

HOW OVER A TYPEWRITER.

The early stage of the proceedings were marked somewhat by a row between Councilmen Dodds and Rooney and Mr. Harkness, over a book transaction in which the latter claimed he is indebted to the office. The recorded row is a commonplace from himself, accompanied by the president and members of the Council, who had to be told over and over that he expected an answer and hence another, at a cost of $10. It was also stated that Councilman Jeffries owed a similar amount.

Councilman Rooney moved the report be adopted, but this was not and even stop it seemed the Council was in the humor to do, he did not with a second.

I expect," he said, "to this cry and dilly-dally policy.

A number of the members stared in view another introduced, particularly the mover of the resolution.

Rooney said to Councilman Mr. Dodds: "Go fetch Hardy and in saying what I am about to say I only hold somebody's tongue. I am the man who has to pay anyway to the tune, since I desire to call attention to the very strange way of operating of the city's affairs, and I hope the press will see it. I do that it is the custom to note requests of this office to be answered promptly. Why hasn't it been done in the case of the typewriter? I was told yes, it is because of an implied understanding between the city recorder and certain members of this Council that the typewriter has already been bought by the Council, and I want to know if it is the custom for the Council to act on this bill."

Mr. Dodds further stated that he had been approached by the recorder's office to vote for the appropriation, but that he had refused because it had not come up in the regular way. The Councilmen also charged the recorder with having talked with the Council members here at last Thursday night's committee meeting.

Councilman Rooney approved sarcastic, and what had been said and asked of Recorder Harkness as to the truth of Councilman Dodds's statement.

Mr. Harkness said there was not a word of truth in what had been said. It was true he had presented the bill to Mr. Dodds, Mr. E. Ries and already and it on the records. It was not the one he desired, however, for that would have to be taken up by some member of the Council and referred to committee.

Mr. Harkness further stated that the person for which he required the typewriter was present. He was in the habit of acquiring matters in the records of his office. This the Council members should be as much interested in as any one. However, if the Council was desirous of having the recorder hunt up knowledge that was their property, he would. He was a matter of perfect indifference.

Dodds then intimated that the recorder had taken advantage of the absence of Councilman Wallace, chairman of the committee on enrollment, for the purpose of "railroading" the bill through. This was again denied by Mr. Harkness.

Councilman Wallace said he had been reproached about the middle of last December, by the recorder, who told him he was in need of a typewriter.

Fennemore said: "This is a great tempest in a teapot." Dodds's talk was all nonsense. If there had been an irregularity the Council could rectify it. The question with him was: Does the recorder need a typewriter? He thought so.

Robertson asked Fennemore if he ever paid for a thing before he got it and received an equivocal answer.

Rooney said no person connected with the city government had a right to purchase anything without first receiving authority.

Dodds declared what had become of the bill for Fish which he was asked to approve last Thursday night.

Mr. Harkness said that the Council had frequently appropriated money for things before the goods were delivered, postage stamps and postal cards were among them.

Robinson said he was surprised that the bill for Fish should be cast on him for making the motion. So far as he was concerned there was neither "cut and dried" about it. All he did was to write to the recorder and if the Council wanted to vote the motion down all right.

Dodds: "Oh, the Council won't vote it down. It all right. You know what you're about, Jack."

The chairman said there was too much talk in regard to over the matter. Mr. Harkness had not approached him and he was present at last Thursday night's committee meeting.

Robertson—Well, he did see.

Continuing, Councilman Rowe said an injustice was being done the city officer, who was in no way to blame.

Dodds moved, as an amendment to Rooney's motion, that the communication be referred to the committee on enrollment.

Robertson had no particular objection to the expenditure of $10, everything it would be worth to the city. He believed, however, it should go to the committee.

Dodds's motion prevailing he saw that he stood up for principle, no matter whether the amount was large or small.

When he was interrupted by Fennemore, who rose to a point of order. Dodds had proposed his motion because it stood for principle. Fennemore and Dodds had already talked about it the matter. The point in the matter was principle.

Councilman Carth, 1896 vote was only.

There a heated look place between Dodds and the president, resulting in the former being assured to withdraw his remarks on a question of personal privilege.

Dodds said he desire the attention of the Council members, continued Dodds, to the bill of Jensen for $10. In a few days it will be presented to Council in the regular way and he, for, does not "let" Jensen's bill.

Jensen's bill, explained that Jeppe was known for the machine and asking permission to put it in, he requested the gentleman to make out his voucher in the form of a bill.

On motion the discussion and Dodds's resolution to refer carried by a vote of 11 to 1, Fennemore voting no.

TO LICENSE FORTUNE TELLING.

Councilman Rowe introduced an ordinance providing for the regulating and licensing of fortune tellers and prescribing penalties for violations thereof.

The ordinance makes it unlawful for anyone to engage in the business of fortune telling for hire, for gain or for gain or gain reading and reading, card reading, hand reading, clairvoyance, astrology or any other method or pretended art of telling fortunes, or for any person to receive the value of, or in the city treasurer for a license therefor. The fee for a license is also provided for.

The reading of the ordinance caused considerable laughter among the members. Councilman Rooney declared that if as a large city, the Councilman Jeffries proposed to make themselves fair game for the various and sundry fortune tellers, he was in favor of the ordinance. Some of the members said it would be a fine source for revenue. Dodds said he believed there was a demand for such a law among the electric boxes.

Dodds moved it referred to the licence committee. Parties stated that it was in the committee's opinion. It was finally referred to the committee on municipal laws.

AN OFFER TO COMPROMISE.

City Attorney Hall recommended that the Council compromise the $2,500 damage suit filed by B. F. Higgins, against Salt Lake City for $4,000, in accordance with a proposition made by Dewsnup. The damage complained of was an injury to property by reason of the construction of the gravity sewer, over Seventh North and Second West. Referred to committee on municipal laws.

Councilman Rooney approved action, and what had been said and asked of Recorder Harkness as to the truth of Councilman Dodds's statement.

Mr. Harkness said there was not a word of truth in what had been said. It was true he had presented the bill to Mr. E. Ries and already and it on the records. It was not the one he desired, however, for that would have to be taken up by some member of the Council and referred to committee.
