Labor Union Declares in Favor of Direct Political Action.

CONDEMN JAPANESE LABOR

J. H. Sovereign Denied a Seat in the Convention—Labor Union and Miners Will Fraternize.

The meetings of the Western Labor Union were in session today at 10 a. m. and at 2 p. m. The sessions were secret.

The time of the meetings was taken up mainly in the consideration of the constitution and by-laws to be adopted by the association. The full results of the discussions are not yet made public, but from what is already known, there are important matters under consideration.

LABOR RECORDS OF CANDIDATES.

In the preamble to the constitution one clause was adopted today of the highest political significance, as indicating the line along which the organization proposes to work. This clause is: . . . "and furthermore, it will be the duty of all local unions to look up the records of all members who are running for public office—national, state, or municipal—and give their full support to those who are working in our behalf, unless the unions have decided to place before the voters a complete labor ticket of their own. For it has been clearly demonstrated that we are to have just laws we must have our own people to from them."

This significant declaration needs no interpretation. The Labor Union may place a ticket in the field, or it may select the men favorable to the cause of labor who are on other tickets and cast its vote in favor of the friends of labor.

JAPANESE LABOR.

Another decided stand was taken on the subject of importation of Japanese laborers in the West and Northwest. The resolution is given below in full:

Salt Lake City, May 9, 1899.

Whereas, it has come to our knowledge that western railway corporations have been charged by the daily press with importing Japanese laborers from Japan and Honolulu Islands, in direct opposition to the United States laws, and compelling them to work on railroad construction for 11 per day, which would be a great existence, and leads to the degradation of American laborers, and realizing that if this practice be continued it will ultimately destroy the American laborer's God-given right of earning a livelihood; therefore be it

Resolved, By the Western Labor Union, in convention assembled, That we condemn in unmeasured terms this practice; also that the secretary be instructed to forward an open letter to the secretary of state at Washington, District of Columbia, complaining of this state of affairs and calling on him to use prompt action in suspending the importation of Japanese laborers.

It is understood that the resolutions were passed without dissent, indicating practical agreement among the members as to the evil of which they complain.

FRIENDLY RELATIONS.

The relations between the Labor Union and the Federation of Western Miners is extremely fraternal, as may be judged by the following communication from the latter organization, which was read and adopted by unanimous vote by the Labor Union:

Salt Lake, May 10, 1899.

To the Officers and Delegates of the Western Labor Union, in Convention Assembled, Greeting:

The Western Federation of Miners, in convention, are pleased to acknowledge your resolution, and in response, the following was adopted:

"Whereas, The Western Federation of Miners and the Western Labor Union are kindred organizations, their interests are practically the same, and the life of one depends largely on the success of the other, and we respectfully request a joint conference, at a date to be fixed later by both conventions; and we respectfully request that said conference be held in the hall that we are meeting in at the present time, at 1 o'clock p. m. on Thursday, May 11th, 1899."

SOVEREIGN'S EXCLUSION.

Former Master Workman J. H. Sovereign of the once powerful Knights of Labor, was rejected by the Western in this convention. Mr. Sovereign came down from Idaho with credentials from the Idaho Union, and was seated as the Labor Union. Arriving at the convention hall, the credentials were presented to the secretary of the convention, which finally reported that the credentials were regular, but with the report, a letter from Idaho was submitted in which Sovereign's loyalty to the order was brought into question, and the matter was then referred to executive committee. That committee presented a report recommending that Sovereign be seated. This report was rejected by an almost unanimous vote, and Mr. Sovereign was denied admission.

It is alleged that Sovereign had written attacks on members of the Union in the recent Idaho legislature elected from Shoshone county.

Mr. Sovereign asserts that his attitude was justified by the facts, while the organization claims that the attacks were made with a view of defeating the discredit of the union cause.

In the Improvement Era for May, previously briefly noticed under the "News," the readers will find an usual a varied and interesting list of contents. It opens with "The Story of a Philippine Crime," by Major Richard W. Young. Madsen contributes a paper on "Good Work for Improvement and Leadership." "The Rose of Islam" is the subject treated on by Mr. Mohammed Webb, the champion in this country of the doctrines of the Arabian prophet. The Wisdom of Haydelel Ah" is set forth by Geo. E. Hill. "The Creation of the Heavens" is a well written and thoughtful article by B. H. Roberts, on the influence of the Gospel on modern thought. Weston contributes some timely remarks on "The Necessity of a Change of Heart." Another letter from Oliver Cowdery appears in this number, which deals with a description of such Church officials as Elder Elias Kimball tells of some extensive interpositions of Providence in behalf of elders on a mission. This is a particularly valuable department of the Era. There are other features of the number which will be appreciated by the readers, and several good things are promised for the June number, among others a Life Sketch of President Lorenzo Snow. The Improvement Era is a magazine that can be recommended to all Saints and friends, at home and abroad.

Peter Anderson's Wife Says She Was Not Allowed to Eat Meal.

On One Occasion, When He Discovered Bones in the House, He Knocked His Sister Half Down.

Peter Anderson, as his wife says, is a vegetarian, and a conscientious one at that. He not only believes in abstaining from all kinds of meat himself, but insists that members of his family shall follow his example. Peter's dislike for animal food and his wife's fondness for it was made the bone of contention in the Anderson household, for a long time, and now neither one cares to speak to the other about it.

Some time ago Anderson commenced divorce proceedings against his wife. Ellen, alleging that in 1897 his better half (worse for Peter) deserted him, and had refused to return to his home. Now Mrs. Anderson comes into court with an answer, in which she not only denies her husband's allegation, but accuses him of cruel treatment, and one of cruelty in particular. One of the alleged acts of cruelty is Peter's refusal to permit his wife to eat roast of any description, whatever. In his complaint, the answer alleges, Anderson came home and found chicken bones in the house, and without stopping to inquire into the who and the wherefore, he knocked his wife down. Other acts of cruelty are complained of and Mrs. Anderson asks that her husband's suit be dismissed and that he be compelled to support her.

Anderson sets forth that she invested a pump in draw water from City creek canyon to Capitol hill. He wife says he sold the pump for $1,000, and she asks that he be restrained from spending the money as acquired, or from, if she may be adjudged of his property.

A temporary order was issued, returnable Saturday.

SANDY WOMAN COMMITTED.

Anna Sophia Nielson, of Sandy, aged 40 of this city, as stated in Tuesday's "News," was committed to the Asylum Assembly, Greeting:

Supreme Court Makes an Order in the Railroad Tax Case.

ANSWER RAISED AN ISSUE.

Question for Determination Is, Did State Board Make Proper Re-Apportionment of Rolling Stock?

The question as to whether the State board of equalization made a re-apportionment of the various railroad companies' rolling stock, operating in Salt Lake county, in accordance with the Supreme Court decision handed down last December will have to be passed on by a jury before the Supreme Court will decide the matter.

Last year Salt Lake county sought the aid of the Supreme Court to have all the rolling stock of the railroads with headquarters in Salt Lake county assessed in this county. It was contended by the county that the State board had apportioned the assessment among the counties in such a way that it operated as a bonus in Salt Lake, and having time to spare closed arrangements at Ogden to work in this town after the Short Line Dress will be seen at Victoria, after which the company jumps east.

REPORTED MURDER.

Patrol Makes a Record Run and Brings Back the Inscrutable Victim.

At 1:15 this afternoon a message was received from the residence of Hon. Geo. Q. Cannon on Rishon West and Eleventh South to the effect that a boy had rushed breathless to the house with the startling intelligence that a man driving a top-buggy drawn by a "red" horse had murdered a woman and blown out his brains with a pistol on the road just two blocks south of the Cannon residence.

The patrol wagon was hurried out on short order and Chief Dillon, Sergeant Burbidge and Detective Sheets piled in. The patrol made a record run for the place and the boys went sailing southward on the dead run. Mounted Officer Sperry was sent on ahead to notify the chief of the man driving the "red" horse, while Dark Sergeant Livingston and a mounted officer were ordered to further developments. The wagon made good time and arrived on the scene in short order. A small crowd had congregated around the inanimate form of a woman who was stretched out by the roadside. One of the bystanders shouted, "You are just in time, she is breathing her last." All hands climbed out of the patrol and hastened to the side of the victim. To their surprise the woman who was painfully groaning and lying all huddled up in the road was a young Chinaman, who was not used to scenes of horror, could not withhold an exclamation as they neared the scene. Lying by the side of the prone creature what they said would not make good Sunday reading, but it was true, lying there was a warrior taking her rest with a battered clock around her, unscathed and apparently dead to the world. Quite a crowd gathered at the patrol wagon, curiously viewing of a most scientific drama. Behind and her head were put into the wagon, that took all the back street home, and eventually the unknown was thoroughly smoked out by one to the dark door of the city hall.

The Salt Lake Team is in a slight quandary for lack of its nine, who are practically imported timber, are between arrows kicking up their heels and doing nothing, being without employment in this city. The men rightly argue that they cannot live by baseball alone. It is understood that several of the men have approached manager Hinckley of the R. G. W's on the subject of utilizing their allegiance, providing that a job is forthcoming.

St. Louis yesterday gave Cleveland a pretty hard time generally owing to the fact that their pitcher was in poor form in the seventh inning, consequently St. Louis still tops the list. Philadelphia lost the game, and both dentally some points, against Baltimore, the Orioles coming out victors in the tune of 4-3. From New York comes the intelligence that the Giants made four straights on their own ground against the Senators, with 20 hits to the latter's 10 credit.

Supreme Court Makes an Order in the Railroad Tax Case.

ANSWER RAISED AN ISSUE.

Question for Determination Is, Did State Board Make Proper Re-Apportionment of Rolling Stock?

The question as to whether the State board of equalization made a re-apportionment of the various railroad companies' rolling stock, operating in Salt Lake county, in accordance with the Supreme Court decision handed down last December will have to be passed on by a jury before the Supreme Court will decide the matter.

Last year Salt Lake county sought the aid of the Supreme Court to have all the rolling stock of the railroads with headquarters in Salt Lake county assessed in this county. It was contended by the county that the State board had apportioned the assessment among the counties in such a way that it operated as a bonus in Salt Lake, and having time to spare closed arrangements at Ogden to work in this town after the Short Line Dress will be seen at Victoria, after which the company jumps east.

THE BONE OF CONTENTION

Peter Anderson's Wife Says She Was Not Allowed to Eat Meal.

On One Occasion, When He Discovered Bones in the House, He Knocked His Sister Half Down.

Peter Anderson, as his wife says, is a vegetarian, and a conscientious one at that. He not only believes in abstaining from all kinds of meat himself, but insists that members of his family shall follow his example. Peter's dislike for animal food and his wife's fondness for it was made the bone of contention in the Anderson household, for a long time, and now neither one cares to speak to the other about it.

Some time ago Anderson commenced divorce proceedings against his wife. Ellen, alleging that in 1897 his better half (worse for Peter) deserted him, and had refused to return to his home. Now Mrs. Anderson comes into court with an answer, in which she not only denies her husband's allegation, but accuses him of cruel treatment, and one of cruelty in particular. One of the alleged acts of cruelty is Peter's refusal to permit his wife to eat roast of any description, whatever. In his complaint, the answer alleges, Anderson came home and found chicken bones in the house, and without stopping to inquire into the who and the wherefore, he knocked his wife down. Other acts of cruelty are complained of and Mrs. Anderson asks that her husband's suit be dismissed and that he be compelled to support her.

Anderson sets forth that she invested a pump in draw water from City creek canyon to Capitol hill. He wife says he sold the pump for $1,000, and she asks that he be restrained from spending the money as acquired, or from, if she may be adjudged of his property.

A temporary order was issued, returnable Saturday.
