FRUITS AND TREES.

The Agricultural College of Utah Experiment Station.

The News has received a copy of bulletin No. 37 of the Utah Experiment station. It treats on "Fruits and Fruit Trees; Ornamental, Forest and Shade Trees." Experiments with different varieties of strawberries, grapes, peaches, apricots, cherries, plums, pears, apples. It also contains a short chapter on "mushroom culture," and one on ornamental, forest and shade trees. The bulletin is summed up as follows:

1. Parker Earle, Sharpless and Thompson's No. 2, are recommended as promising strawberries.

2. The following varieties of grapes are recommended for trial: Concord, Delaware, Early Victor and Massasoit, the Early Victor being especially recommended for places subject to early frosts.

3. Only the peaches generally classed as early or mid-season should be planted in Utah county and localities with a similar climate.

4. Russian apricots are specially recommended where the later kinds will not thrive on account of severe winters.

5. Sour cherries, such as Mt. Large and Early Richmond, should be planted where the sweet cherry does not thrive.

6. Bowing berry, liberty or clover in a young orchard should be discouraged.

7. Poplar trees are shown to be the most promising for general forestry purposes.

8. The growing of some of the hardwood trees, such as black and white walnuts and ash, can probably be made profitable.

This bulletin should be studied by the horticulturists of the Territory.

THE BANKERS' CONVENTION.

The Denver "News" Hartily Endorses the Conference of Western Financiers to Meet in Salt Lake.

While the date of the proposed West ern bankers' convention of Salt Lake has not been definitely fixed, it is now practically certain that the conference will be held. The local committee of Salt Lake bankers are now considering the replies which have been received to their invitations. These responses are generally satisfactory. The most of them are favorable to an increased use of silver, and many of them are outspoken for free coinage.

From California little sympathy is expressed in the movement. That state is apparently in the new extinction, "a kingdom to itself," in matters financial. Montana and Idaho are favorable to the conference. Nebraska and Texas bankers are clamoring up the silver question, but are not united as to any plan for the restoration of the currency. Colorado is indeed so especially enthusiastic, and so depended on for a large representation. In writing to the committee in approval of the conference, President Woodbury of the Union National of this city asserts "that all the banks of the Western states and territories that are favorable to a bimetallic basis should promptly make their opinions known." He also argues that Western bankers should rally as one to the support of the bimetallic views of President St. John, of New York.

The News again takes the opportunity of warmly approving the purposes of the conference, believing that its actions will have a favorable influence on financial legislation by Congress. The Carlisle bill has been practically repudiated and cannot pass in its present form. But some kind of a currency bill is declared absolutely necessary by the conditions of the national treasury, and in shaping such legislation to a favorable end it cannot be doubted that the conclusions of a conference of Western bankers would exercise an unbridled influence. There is time in which to bring it arrangements to not too long delayed.

WILLIAM GILLESPIE DEAD.

Died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Noble, in Provo City, Utah county, of old age, on December 25, 1894, William Gillespie, born in Kirkcudbright, Scotland, in 1809, a village called Tonn, in Southwick, England, in being aged 85 years and 10 months when he passed away. He was married three times. His first wife, Eliza Bowers, the daughter of James Bowers, of Provo. Mrs. Elizabeth Noble, of Provo, and Mrs. Hannah Buckley, of American Fork, survived by his second wife, Mrs. Mary Ann Bowers, of American Fork, and Joseph W. Dunn, of Provo, Board member. Third to Mrs. Emma Bennett, who survives him. He leaves three sons and two daughters, 31 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren.

Father Dunn was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on July 7, 1844, by his brother, John Dunn; was ordained an Elder in May, 1847, by Elder M. Norton; in Manchester, England. He presided over Cambria, Wisconsin, and Cedar City, Utah, and Cedar City, Utah, organized a branch of the Church at Mosby Hollow, Wasatch county, Utah, with John Green, John Sims, Richard Greenhalgh, William Sims and William Mary as Priests and Teachers, and baptizing among others William Greenhalgh, John Page and Elizabeth Cass. He baptized Mr. Mary Hunter, of American Fork, and he died on March 4th, 1884, and he buried in Mosby Hollow, in the following September. Besides many others whose names have gone.

In 1850 he emigrated to Utah, leaving Liverpool on the 11 of November, 1850, and arrived in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1851 having driven a team of two mules for Charles A. Chase from Independence, Mo., to Salt Lake City, which he always remembered spoke a year for one who had never before attempted anything of the kind. Soon after arriving in Salt Lake City he was called to go with President Brigham Young and company on an expedition to the southern country to look out and locate places of settlement for the Saints who were called to make homes in the south. He was one of the first settlers of Provo, Utah county, Utah, and lived. The company left Salt Lake City in March, 1851, and returned on the 21st day of May, having traveled as far south as Cedar City, in Iron county, and laying out the principal streets and settlements in Utah south of Salt Lake City.

Father Dunn always spoke of that trip as one of the most pleasant, and, indeed, as one of his life, for he was daily in the company of such men as President Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Geo. A. Smith, Orson Pratt, Wilford Woodruff and others, and heard daily a continual feast of good things pertaining to the gospel and plan of salvation, and the kingdom to come and the people pertaining to their temporal welfare.

He was a member of the old Nauvoo brass band, with William Pitt, James Sheridan, Hyrum Whitney, Phil Margetts, Reuben Fielding, Sons Hight and others, was an orderly sergeant in a regiment of cavalry in the Nauvoo Legion. In 1856 he moved to American Fork and has resided there up to within a short time of his death. In 1866 he organized a brass band in American Fork and was an active member for some years. Since coming to Utah he has been engaged in farming, but was somewhat economical, being in turn a mason, a ledger and director, an adobe maker, clerk and farmer.

Father Dunn suffered most intensely for about a month before his death from kidney trouble, and at last succumbed and expressed a desire to go to rest. He died in full faith, believing in the eternal love and justice of the Creator, and looked forward to the great day when all will be required to give an account of the deeds done in the body.

He wished the sorrow over his departure to be quiet and simple, and desired that no alcohol involve on his behalf, as the following lines:

I want no cold morals, and no sell;
Let no tear dare to come down;
