A Polander Disappears Under Very Mysterious Circumstances.

HORRIBLE DEATH OF A BOY.

The Embezzlement of a South Dakota Bank—Incidentally Killed with a Revolver.

Arrangements have been completed to resume work with a large force of men on the Rail-Collins tunnel between Jimtown and Upper Creek, Colorado.

Montana elected a lady, Ella L. Knowles, attorney general at the recent election, and North Dakota elected a lady, Laura J. Eisenhuth, state superintendent of schools.

Granville Stuart, state land agent, has so far selected 279,000 acres of land out of the grant to the state of Montana of 600,000 acres by Congress for school purposes. In Beaverhead — alfalfa lands, 60,000 acres of good wheat land.

A message received from Springfield, Ross county, Colorado, states that Will Keiss, a youth of 17, accidentally shot himself with a revolver while on a hunting trip, causing a wound from which he died in fifteen minutes.

The Carson Juno learns that the Mexican mill at Empire started up and an stamps last Thursday on rock that has been accumulating on the mill dump for the past two years. It will take five or six weeks to get through with the batch.

William I. Williams, for trade a blacksmith, committed suicide at Los Angeles on Saturday by swallowing an overdose of laudanum. Williams was well-to-do and leaves a widow and two children. He had written a pathetic note to his mother, telling her that the deed was prompted by drink.

President Graham of the board of trade has issued a notice for a public meeting of the citizens of Pueblo, Col., to be held in the interest of the proposed new railroad to El Paso, Texas. A deep interest is taken by the citizens over the proposed new line, owing to the vast amount of trade which it is sure to bring to Pueblo.

Rapid City, S. D., has fully recovered from the shock in financial circles by the temporary embarrassment of the Black Hills National bank. It is stated by reliable authority that the bank will resume business in a very few days. Bank Examiner Dawson is still in charge of the institution and expects soon to have matters adjusted. The sudden and unexpected demands for cash on several large certificates was the immediate cause of suspension. Chairman C. J. Buell of the board of directors states that as soon as large collections due the institution can be made the doors will be opened.

Henry Brilling, a boy of sixteen has been instantly killed in Crow's machine shop at Denver. He was caught in the shafting of the machine and whirled to death. Every bone in his young body was broken and both arms were torn, after death, from the body by the relentless iron wheels. Young Brilling had been directed to remove some boards at one end of the main shaft. He placed a ladder between two sets of shafting. To reach the number he was obliged to bend to one side and he put out the other hand to steady himself. The foot revolving hand caught hold of the sleeve of his coat and drew him into the machinery.

Thomas Logan, a Polander, who has for some time been employed at the Bimetallic smelter at Leadville, Colorado, is missing and his friends there are very anxious about his whereabouts. He had worked steadily up to and including the 6th, and that night he paid a small bill that he owed to one Zeller, the keeper of a second hand store, and also left some money for safe keeping. The next day, the 7th, he went back to Zeller and got the money, saying that he was going to try his luck on foot. He was not seen afterwards by any of his acquaintances, and it is believed that he has been foully dealt with. The sheriff's force and the police are doing everything in their power to ferret out this mystery.

The citizens of the coal mining camp of Williamsburg, near Florence, Colorado, are considerably worked up over a peculiar case that recently came up in the schools at that place. They charged that a teacher named Vorhise, who had control of the primary department of the school, resorted to unusual methods in punishing the scholars for the offense. It is claimed that he frequently resorted to teeth-pulling, having pulled from one boy no less than five teeth. The Williamsburg people further claim that when a punishment of this kind was inflicted, the teacher would threaten a worse punishment if the pupil told his parents. This thing went on for some time before it became known in the community, but when it did become known it spread like wildfire. There has indeed been no sense taken children among those punished. Their parents presented the case to the board. Professor Vorhise's resignation was demanded, and, at a meeting held the week, the teacher's resignation was forthwith given. By this time the community was becoming seriously stirred up over the matter that Vorhise left the town and his present whereabouts is unknown.

F. C. Clark, accompanied by his wife and three-year-old child arrived at the union depot, at Denver, from London, a few nights ago. Soon after their arrival the wife was informed that she would have to settle for herself and that he would have nothing more to do with her. He left her and their baby taking with him all the family funds. They were en route to Cheyenne, where they expected to settle. Mrs. Clark remained in the depot without food until said evening, when she was noticed crying and asked what was the matter. She told her pitiful story and the case was at once reported to the Helping Hand Institute. Superintendent Tuttle notified Chief Farley, and Officer Anderson was detailed to look into the case. He was provided with an order from the institute on a hotel for her temporary relief. Mrs. Clark says her child were found at the depot and relieved from their distressing situation. Officer Anderson started out on a still hunt after the heartless husband. He was successful, finding him in a saloon's office trying to sell the tickets. In the meantime, Mrs. Clark declared vehemently that she would never live with him again, but when the officer took him to the depot they both melted and, figuratively speaking, fell into each other's arms. The agent of the Helping Hand acted also by thanking the incorporation in the jail, and he apparently repented his unmanly conduct and started for the Union Central with his baby in his arms. Clark is a good-looking young new popular from the far south, apparently not more than 28 years of age. His wife is a pretty woman, not more than 19 or 20, with a virgin face and neat figure. Clark seemed deeply humiliated at his exposure and attributed his temporary insanity to an attack of the blues brought on by the fact that he was almost broke in a strange place. He had, it seems, plenty for their temporary wants, but was fearful of getting stuck so far from home and in Chicago.
