LAST OF THE LEGISLATURE.

It Became Functus Officio at 5:23 Saturday P. M.

CORRECTED APPROPRIATION BILL.

Published for the First Time.—The Closing Scenes in the Two Houses.

COUNCIL.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

After a recess of three hours, the Council was called to order at 3:10 and a resolution appropriating the sum of $100, one half to be paid the chief clerk of the Council and the other half to the chief clerk of the House, for comparing and proof reading the journal of the Thirtieth session, was adopted.

At 4 p. m. the Governor announced the nomination of Geo. A. Lowe, R. C. Chambers and James Glendenning as bank commissioners.

Jonah Barrett, as territorial treasurer, was confirmed.

Evans moved to take the World's Fair bill from the table. McCallum raised the point of order that the bill was dead and could not be revived except by a re-introduction.

The chair sustained the point of order.

Evans said he had been informed by the Governor that no name would be sent in to replace that of C. E. Allen, rejected.

At 5 p. m. the Governor announced that he had no further communication to make and wished them a pleasant return to their homes.

The House sent to the Council the communication received from the Governor accompanying the appropriation bill.

Evans said he desired to say a few words before adjournment. He believed that every member of the Council had endeavored to do what he believed to be the right thing. There had been some spirited debates, but the differences had been friendly, they had been honest, and the resolutions he would have of each member of the Council would be of the most pleasing nature. He thanked the members of the Council for their kindness and forbearance.

The chaplain pronounced the benediction and the Thirtieth session of the Legislative Council came to an end amid general handshaking and good wishes for each other's future welfare by the members.

HOUSE.

At 3:30 order was called and Olson made a quiet speech in presenting a gift to the chaplain of the House. He wanted to say for the members that they had high esteem for him, and he hoped that the members when they reached the age of the worthy chaplain would be fully as strong in body and mind and as pure as he. The book was presented with the kindest of feeling towards the recipient.

Chaplain in response, said that it often supposed that the compliment was what came to me. He had arisen from a lowly origin, but he had tried to do his duty. He referred feelingly to the most precious gift he had received as being a bible from his old mother. He had been associated with the people in this Territory forty years ago and was happy to be permitted to greet so many of them as he had during the session, and to hope that each one would back back to his work in this session with pleasure. He thanked them for the gift.

At 3:40 Sargent and Montgomery were appointed as a committee to wait on his Excellency the Governor, that legislature is ready and any further communications to make to the Assembly.

At 3:45 p. m. the following message was received from the Governor:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH,
March 12, 1892.

W. H. Dee (speaker), President of the House, Salt Lake City, Utah:

Sir—I have received H. B. 70, entitled "An act making appropriations for general purposes," I notice an amount appropriation affixed to the appropriation for an addition to the Agricultural College. It is provided that the money shall be expended under the direction of the persons named. It is true, when some public work is undertaken, and there are no properly appointed and qualified officers to do the work, to name an agent of the State in the matter at hand. But in the case of the Agricultural College there was no such necessity or excuse. I have no doubt that the chief clerk of the Council an official notification of the confirmation without any dissenting vote from the majority of the persons who were nominated to be trustees of the agricultural college, irrespective of party or creed. They are men of excellent character and capacity. It has been the uniform practice of the Legislature to make the appropriations for the money appropriated to the use of the public in the supervision of the boards in charge of their affairs. For the last time in our history an exception to make the Honorable system is departed from, and it seems to me that a great injustice might be done both. The gentlemen which have prompted this unusual action are wholly partisan. If this action was exercised in a fair way by itself I should vote it as it deserves, but it is included in the bill which makes appropriations for the use of the public institutions and for other public purposes.

I am, therefore, constrained to waive my objections in the public interests, which on mature reflection, I am satisfied on the side of party or personal favor. I am, very respectfully,

ARTHUR L. THOMAS,
Governor.

The Governor also messaged that he had no further communications to make.

The table was now clear. The moment been "tired feeling" appearance had insensibly given way to one of relief, each looking as though the only thing now to be done in an official way was to sign the secretary's roll of receipts and receive his money. Pretty soon after the minutes had been approved and dispensed with in order, Sargent made a motion for adjournment sine die, which met with no opposition. Chaplain Mathieson offered his closing prayer, the six Republicans arrayed their attire and shortly separated. At 5:23 the Thirty-first Legislature was recorded with its predecessors among the institutions of Utah that have been but are no longer.

Following is the appropriation bill designed and filed:
