NOT MORMON TEACHINGS.

In the St. Louis Post-Dispatch of Sunday, July 31, is an illustrated article with reference to the Mormons and their assumed peculiarities regarding that western portion of Missouri known as Jackson county. In the heading set to the body of the article is an assumed extensive misrepresentation regarding the Latter-day Saints and the Elders in Missouri, several of whom are named, one of the Elders is credited with remarks in which their are serious mistakes concerning the aims and enterprises of the Latter-day Saints.

The "News" will not assume that the Elder whose language is purported to be given in the interview has been correctly reported. From past observation and experience, both with the Post-Dispatch and other papers, it knows that Mormon Elders are misquoted, perhaps unintentionally. This matter is referred to, therefore, not with any intention to criticise either the Elder or our contemporary, but from a desire that facts that some of the mistakes mentioned be allowed to pass uncorrected, outside of the seriously erroneous impression they convey to the people. For instance, in the language attributed to an Elder, the statement of the interviewer is as follows:

"Missouri is to have within his boundaries the Zion of the Mormons.

"From all the sections of the world where they abide the members of the faith will come to Missouri.

"They will come over from the Salt City of Salt Lake and from all of Utah to come to the better culture and the productive pastures of this great state where they have settled.

"Independence, in Jackson county, is the chosen spot for assembling Israel.

"Independence will be the Jerusalem of Zion, which is to be a grand city and a community peopled by the favored children of God."

The assertion that the Mormon people will depart from this State is the chief mistake in the foregoing, and with it there are carried several erroneous impressions. In response, it may be stated emphatically, that the Latter-day Saints do not intend to abandon Utah. Some of them may leave this State for special purposes, and go to Mexico, but as now they are to make homes in Canada, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, and other places, but the Saints and the elders, and the reason in the interview about "the hope of the Mormons" are the permanent heritage of the Saints, and there is no popular word or sentiment among the Mormons of relocating in Missouri. This is as much the land of Zion, the home of latter-day Israel, as is Missouri or any part of it, or any part of the United States, America is the land of Zion.

It is the belief of the saints that the city Zion will be built in Jackson County, Missouri; but this will be brought about by the power of the Lord; that it will be accomplished in a perfectly righteous way, with the rights of all people to be respected to the utmost. The Saints do not all expect to crowd into the city, or into the county named, for habitation. In point fully justifiable here, the report is "against the land," whether within the city or outside of it, over the whole face of the country, according as circumstances come to them, in connection with their future citizens. The world called Mormondom is the land of the Lord, and every acre thereof belongs to us on the principles of equity and fairness to all men.

Another assertion to which we are constrained to give attention is that the members of the Church will have the "Pure doctrine" in their hands." This is incorrect, both as it relates to the law of the land and of the law of the Church. In regard to the law of the land, this government—the United States—was raised up by the power of the Almighty, that this nation, for the land of liberty and for the Heaven" the American Constitution is a divinely inspired instrument; and under it the laws of the land are made by the citizens of the nation, not by the members of any church, or church government, to the law of the Church, the members do not make this. It is revealed from the Almighty, who is immortal and forever. In this latter dispensation it is well to keep in mind the divine revelation, "Let no man think he is ruler."

Regarding the preaching and teaching of Elders it may be well to repeat the self-evident proposition that there is absolutely no people the free and all within of every nationality in treaties among the Revolutionary principles of the Government. That is the people be so not to be lost to the world, and it cannot a very broad fact. Methods of Church policy belong to certain elders and with certain missions which the Lord has set as authorities in the Church. Let every man stand in his own place in the Lord and in all social affairs in regard to the word of the Lord. People are liable to adhere to private opinions, which may or may not be correct, as other importance, and perhaps that willingness to an entirely wrong direction.

THE WAR IS OVER.

Spain has formally accepted the terms proposed by the United States as preliminary to peace.

This virtually ends the Hispano-American war. All that remains is the reversal out of the press and the completion of an agreement relating to the principles involved.

The principle has not stood a fair war from the other party. Spain is therefore in debt and is between Europe and the Spanish people, so she must seek to raise money enough to continue for a while which war is not the end, and the additional expense thus incurred a case of shoulder good cause after half, while the elderly and humiliation of her people would be sufficient enough to abide with. Then towards all the generation of Israel, on the part of the United States, which stole and if possesses nothing to continue the war to a different conclusion, it is made more willing to stop. The expense of continuing the war has been considerable from the start and on a steady growing scale. Everything of consequence that Spain has in the war of colonial possession is over or encumbered with the prospect of overall loss, and the United States could not be more that it has got, so that any additional expense would be so much more added to an already large indemnitable account. As against an expenditure of what has to at the Public Treasuries, the country will receive as its property Porto Rico with or without pick and a Ladrone island, worth altogether on a liberal estimate another of the above. Beside We will hold Cuba, but only in view for the Cubans until they are able to control it properly or by Only one another action rule it to the United States the same is more necessary as to the Philippines.

It is not to be inferred that with the close of hostilities there will be no longer need of armies and multitudes of war. Until the native settle down and become attached to the new order of things large police establishments will have to be maintained among them. The expense of this, however, may be partially if not entirely collected, as to the Philippines and Cuba, from the revenues of the islands to be taken under the protection under the guardianship of the United States. And there will be other expense relating to the civil administration that will of course be met in the same way.

Thus, for instance, reformation, pacification and the introduction of new and healthier ideal into the shrunken interior of the islands remains. What are energy, enthusiasm, long-enduring and without arrogant philanthropy, Christianlike labor this will not, it is to the lessening of order and of chaos, the dragging from the dark recesses of ignorance and superstition millions of human beings and placing them within the brightest points of human progress, the power, from the clutches of the monsters of islands and oppression of the venom whose venom has been poured to continue a hundred years after the sunlight of the new civilization began to break through the clouds of medieval barbarity; the establishment of schools, institutions of art, exposure of science, improved methods of labor, commerce upon terms of amity and equality with other peoples; the overthrow of bigotry, the warning out of hatred, the abolition of the, the information of evils, the establishment of laws and the civilization from tyrannic rule to government based on representation. A people work that are ever industrious and carried out by our nation, and leading in the hands of those that are willing and capable, who will labor on and people, not itself the great commercial, as exposure of science.

The American Republic has taken on a new party. It has shown how orderly it is in war, though but only little has proved it can be in peace. No other power in all the world would have shown so much self-control and patience in the face of provocation. Other nations would have rushed headlong into war and exclamation when holding within their the money and authority to be excited, have and everything. It says to equip before going to war "The same can be done in peace as well as off. We have equal patience and power, and in reference to our citizens and stand upon gold, or some people, money or of our work on a money and and work to 200 an, including American Union. You, the people, are responsible for the work and work, and you are both equal to and share the amount so that the value might be equated and passed unchanged. You are with to use to the Mormons. How go to Zion? The question is answered. The Lord has revealed it. The Lord has spoken. Israel is to be gathered in Zion. Israel will be gathered by the power of the Almighty, but this will be accomplished in a perfectly righteous way, with the rights of all people to be respected to the utmost. The Saints do not all expect to crowd into the city, or into the county named, for habitation. In point fully justifiable here, the report is "against the land," whether within the city or outside of it, over the whole face of the country, according as circumstances come to them, in connection with their future citizens. A JOURNALISTIC DOWNFALL.

Recently at Saratoga, a newspaper correspondent stuck its office in chief overboard of the area at that point. The act was one that right here and the condition for the, but he was lucky in dealing with a so-called people, so was simply expelled from the town and the country, so he is now to his home in disgrace and without employment. This is one of the incredible of the war that the people cannot afford to overlook. It teaches a great lesson that should be lost to our view all the time standing as a day-to-day lesson to our people, and it is a great value to us in other trying circumstances, and has many importance from the Saratoga little one incident.

The reporter, name is Prescott Breed and he commended the New York World. It is only fair to say that the World has been more fair and equable, possessing a high order of journalistic ability. Its standard, however, is an abundance of case sensationalism, a condition of things which by Spring, Sugar correspondent and everyday and disposed of the case. The reporter, in Breed's case, was very rapid. From Saratoga with delight upon one of the main Dispatches on the front page of the World that by means of good, alarting tribe had been organized many fold, so all at once was confronted by the news of the party in the land that I have given, in an interview, with Tom Talbot, Esq. H. C. D.

The disclosing of the home of Israel is, as we have stated, the beginning of the redemption of the house of Israel.

THE LADRONES.

The government power just exercised by the United States and Spain gives the former one of the Ladrone islands, most probably the one now occupied by Guam, on which is situated the port of San Luis D'Apra, which some of the Spanish ships of war have frequently visited. The occupancy took place by the first expedition of United States forces to Manila in the early part of June. They were accompanied by the great Portuguese navigator Magellan, in 1521. He was sailing under the flag of Spain at the time, and upon the authority (then unquestioned) of a Pontiff, took possession of them in the name of the national sovereign. He gave them the name of Las Islas de los Ladrones, the English interpretation of which is, the islands of the thieves, or robbers. Some of some eighteen small islands, in Spain they are called the Marianas in honor of Maria Anna, the queen of the fourth Philip.

The capital of the islands is San Ignacio de Agana, which is located upon the island of Guam. The present population, as described by a writer in the New York World, are "wanting in energy, of indifferent moral character, and tolerably poor." They are descended in part from the original inhabitants, called Chamorros, and from the Mexicans, a mixed race formed by the union of Spaniards with these natives. On the island called Guam a colony from the Caroline islands, which lie to the south of the Ladrones, was established some years ago. These have proved industrious and enterprising inhabitants of the Ladrones.

Spain is said to have derived no revenue from those islands, and has done little to civilize the people. At one time a few small schools were started, but they were soon abandoned. August and September are the hottest months, and the rainfall in the summer months is very heavy. The capital is well built of timber, and many of the houses have tiled roofs. There are altogether twenty small villages on the island.

The native men are an exceedingly primitive race. It is said of them that they live in about the same manner as characterized them when the Europeans first went there. In one thing they are known to excel the inhabitants of any of the Polynesian islands—they have had and still possess some craft with a sloop sail, with so much experience that they have shifted the administration of affairs for ten years.

Passing to islanders, it looks very much as if the largest that the United States has ever had have on the Ladrones. We will work here our hands full in that as well as other lines, sure enough.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION.

From a special to the New Orleans Times-Democrat of Aug. 4, it seems that the Yazoo county, Miss., people have prevented Roman Bishop from holding a confirmation meeting. Mr. Manning, discussing information received if the confirmation was said. Enter two Bish given to the representatives of the Times-Democrat a graphic description of the condition of the people. He says in part:

"As we were riding out through the country he Mississippi Delta we passed over all along the road, some of them having gone and want and of the Bishop that were assembled. Around the church employees, and said the parishioner was there, and he in these barrels, and has to these barrels and chairs. As we neared the place appeared that the Bishop was gone. Then there were two hundred people in front with shotguns and rifles. I asked them to stay with us, and they said they would. Then we went to the church. Only twelve and twenty-five people were there, and we made the Bishop to the church and the people were all gone. I said the commander that I would like to go down the road and talk to the Bishop and tell him that I was sorry, and I did not see that would affect and right to practice the religion guaranteed to us under the Constitution. The commander, however, seemed not to be and stuck to their, but some time more he hesitated, for some reason, and said he would go with me. Mr. Manning, the Bishop, then said he would be glad to go out of the state."

"The people having assembled, I went and searched to them for an hour, explaining the situation to them and telling them that no amount of the number of women and children concerned, then, I had to come to my home and would therefore withdraw."
