

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH.

Salt Lake City—On Tuesday, President Kingsbury and Chairman W. W. Rutter of the board of regents, went to Cedar City to attend the commencement exercises of the branch normal. They will return to the city this evening.

Professor Levi E. Young went to Provo on Thursday to address the graduates of the Provo city schools.

J. Fred Anderson '02 N., visited the university on Wednesday. Mr. Anderson is now in the employ of Prof. H. S. Clark of Chicago university. Next week he will go to Montana to arrange dates for Professor Clark's lectures and recitals.

Charles Keels, David Howell, Mac Adams, and Mrs. Sadie Holt Robinson all graduates of the normal school were visitors during the week.

On Monday afternoon the faculty will give a reception to the graduates in the museum building.

Last Thursday evening Prof. and Mrs. Robert at their home in Centerville all the graduates of the branch normal that are attending the university.

Among the college graduates this year is Mr. Isaac Russell. Mr. Russell did part of his work at Stanford university.

Mr. Will Faresberg has succeeded Instructor James A. Strum as foreman of the machine shops. Mr. G. W. Pfeiffer has been appointed instructor in the machine shops.

Next week will be devoted to the regular commencement program as per recent announcement.

This evening the graduates of the branch normal, who are staying at the university, will entertain President Kingsbury, Professor Stewart, and all former teachers of the branch normal.

Philemon Kelly of American Fork visited the University on Thursday. He spent most of his time in the department of biology. Mr. Kelly expects to study medicine and says he thinks he will do the first two years of his work at the University.

Prof. Chamberlain of the department of biology has just completed an exhaustive study of a corollary tumor submitted to him some time ago by one of the practicing physicians of the state. He reports it to be an unusual growth of a variety in some regards quite rare. The pathological collection is being added to continually.

Estimates have been received for full lines of equipment and supplies for work in clinical pathology and pharmacology.

Work toward completing the furnishing of the physiological laboratory there will be a special room for incubation, sterilizers, paraffin ovens and instruments of constant temperature.

Among the graduates of the normal school recently published the names of Ruby Gamet and John L. Christensen were omitted.

On Wednesday Professor Roylance on behalf of the college class of 1895, presented the sophomore with a silver cup suitably engraved. This cup was given as a trophy of the interclass championship in football last fall. Dale Pitt received the gift for the class.

On Thursday the faculty decided to report the standing of students through the registrar's office. No instructor will give his students their marks as has been the custom in the museum building.

John Z. Brown went to Park City yesterday to address the graduates of the Summit county schools.

SALT LAKE CITY SCHOOLS.

The conservatism which has characterized the Salt Lake public school administration in the past has been duly honored by the present superintendent and board of education during the past year. Plans of former years have witnessed this year their consummation. Recommendations, their practicality, and needed innovations, their introduction. As a result, the termination of the present year marks the end of an unprecedented epoch in local school work. To the inquiry, "What has been accomplished?" comes a response that should convince the spirit of the schools. The kindergarten department is a permanent factor of the schools. Next year will find these such schools in the city. High schools will be included under the manual and training supervision. Every building, where physical conditions favor such an introduction, will be equipped with manual training apparatus.

At the present a four-years' course is being offered in sewing for the girls, and wood-work for the boys in nearly every building throughout the city. In both these lines, a successful experiment has been in operation during the past year at the Washington I. C. of activity in manual training, throughout the entire school. The demand for more school room is augmented by the sale of certain school property. The Whittier population necessitates the furnishing of rooms at the Union and additions at the Hamilton. At this juncture the superintendent is able to state with unqualified confidence that the eight year course is from every view point commendable and feasible.

Figures, heretofore unbreached, are presented this year to the school patrons, they are those of the number of graduates, whose lists show 290 at the mid year, and 600 at the end of the year. This unprecedented showing, together with the fact that the University of Utah now closes the doors of its preparatory department to all eighth grade graduates, increases the responsibilities and strength of the high schools. A class of 88 students passed out of the West Side High school this year, as graduates from the English, normal and scientific courses, while 27 have received diplomas from the commercial department of the same institution.

An average approaching 95 per cent is the standard reached by the recent graduating classes of the eighth grade in spelling. The prominence given to reading has been found to reflect creditably upon all other branches of the curriculum. Thus, the point maintained by the superintendent, that a failure to interpret the printed page accounts for unsatisfactory work in all branches, has produced its own defense. The scrutinizing eye of the teacher is no longer confined to observing the doings of boys and girls while they are within the four walls of the school room, since even games and sports on the grounds are to be supervised. In short, callisthenics, athletics, and all other forms of physical training are to be chosen and conducted with a view of securing harmonious development of the physical and intellectual. Accordingly, a special committee has been vigilant throughout the year to secure data for a report, which will specify means and ways for reaching the above mentioned results.

The vigorous discussions on local social features, by members of the principal corps, account, in a high degree, for the establishing of the juvenile court. The moral influence which this adjunct to the judicial system has effected in certain quarters of the city, has convinced the school officials that it has already become an indispensable factor in school discipline.

A simple yet pleasing occurrence is the daily salute to the flag, by the entire student body. The young American now sees the national emblem displayed in his own class room, and in the singing of the national air, its reverence to the flag has been made entirely unnecessary through the present system of instruction.

FREDERICK WILLIAM REYNOLDS.

Progressive Young Utah Educator Invited to Become a Member of the Harvard Faculty.

Few Utah educators have had their ability recognized by parties disconnected with the state, in a more substantial manner than has Frederick William Reynolds, associate professor of English at the University of Utah, who is in receipt of an invitation from the department of English of Harvard university to come to Cambridge this summer. His prospective duties at Harvard are not to continue studying in the exceptional libraries, but to become a member of the Harvard faculty and deliver a series of lectures in the Harvard summer school. Prof. Reynolds has accepted the invitation and will leave for Cambridge to undertake his new work, near the end of the present month. He is not a stranger to the Harvard campus, having taken out his B. A. degree and M. A. degree there after graduating from the University of Utah in 1895.

As an undergraduate at the University of Utah he achieved a reputation as one of the hardest working students in the institution and one intelligently range of appeal. They are: "The Sources of English Literature," "The Development of the English National Character," "The Birth and Youth of English Literary Forms," "The Breaking up of Literary Forms in the Early Seventeenth Century," "Milton and Puritanism," "Society and Literature in the Age of Queen Anne," "Dr. Johnson and His Friends," "The English Romantic Movement," "Lamb and De Quincey," "Early and Modern English Thought."

Another important course during the coming summer school has just been arranged for. It is to be given by Thomas D. Seymour, L. L. D., head of the department of Greek at Yale university. Dr. Seymour is considered to be the greatest living authority on Homer and the Homeric cycle, and two of his lectures are upon this subject. His third lecture is upon archaeological work. Dr. Seymour is president of the Archaeological Institute of America, and will have interesting news to give out as to the future plans of the society. The field of Western America. The three lectures are to be given in Barrett hall, and will be free to the public.

If in a kind of billious mood,
You wish an aid to digest food,
No other pill is half so good
As DeWitt's Little Early Risers.
When ever you feel impending ill,
And need a magic little pill,
No other one will fill the bill
Like DeWitt's Little Early Risers.

Saltair tonight, keen appetite, new cure, please right.
