PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, - NOV. 8, 1894.

Barbarians Abroad.

Tuesday evening at 9:30 o'clock a fire was discovered in a barn belonging to Mrs. George A. Dennisberry in the First ward. The fire department arrived on the scene promptly, but not in time to prevent the building from being rendered totally useless from the effects of the flames, although a shell remains standing. An adjoining barn belonging to Joseph E. Dansie was damaged to the extent of about $100. The Dennisberry barn was used by Cashier Swan of the First National bank, to feed a horse and cow in the rear. The cow was not dead when rescued but had to be killed. The total loss is estimated at $600, no insurance is carried.

The fire was first noticed in the roof of the barn immediately over the horse, and there is no doubt as to its being the work of an incendiary.

First District Court.

After a number of the witnesses had testified in the case of Anna Marks and Wolf Marks vs Peter Lombard where plaintiffs sue for $5,000 damages for injuries inflicted on Mrs. Anna Marks with a shovel on the 7th of May, 1894, the case was signed and submitted to the jury.

The next case to come up was Eureka City vs Anna Marks and Wolf Marks. The case was appealed from Justice Weeks, of Eureka, and grows out of the same difficulty that caused the $5,000 damage suit, and the evidence is practically the same. Wolf Marks and Anna Marks were taken before Justice Weeks on a charge of fighting, after the affair with Mr. Lombard and fined $10 each, after a jury trial. Defendants appealed from the decision. Mrs. Marks said, while testifying in the case, that she submitted no evidence in the justice's court, because the officers were so prejudiced against her that it would be useless.

Following the case of Marks vs Lombard was the case of William Lewis vs James L. Hales. Plaintiff claims that defendant, who is justice of the peace in Spanish Fork, owes him $28.85 for plaintiff under a judgment given by the former justice of the peace and has failed and refuses to pay it to plaintiff.

The defense is that after the money had been collected Justice Hales discovered that the judgment under which he had issued the execution was not valid one, and had paid the money to another party on the order of the judgment debtor. Judge King instructed the jury to return a verdict for plaintiff for $28.85 and interest.

The jury in the case of Wolf Marks and Anna Marks vs Peter Lombard brought in a verdict for the defendant, finding "no cause of action." A stay of proceedings for thirty days was granted.

"Shoving the Queer."

A stranger giving the name of Edward Meyers was arrested last evening on a charge of drunkenness. This is not, however, the most serious charge against him. He had bought his "jag" with 50 cent and 5 cent counterfeit money. The first man discovered that the coin was spurious was Tom Jones, the hot tamale man. Meyers had over $5 of the counterfeit money, and about $30 in good money in his possession when he was arrested. The coins are very poor imitations of the genuine. Meyers is about 55 years of age, smooth shaved, with a light brown moustache sprinkled with grey. He is sharp featured and one furnished, dressed in a nearly new brown cutaway suit, and wears a light low crowned soft hat, and a pair of imitation kangaroo congress shoes.

Notes and Personals.

Judge Smith has come down to hold court for several days, to sit in cases wherein Judge King was interested before his appointment as judge. Judge King will go to Ogden.

The following Salt Lake attorneys attended the First district court this morning: J. L. Rawlins, Parley L. Williams, J. G. Sutherland and George Sutherland.

J. J. Knight, Frank Knight and George Taylor Jr. have returned from a trip to Mexico. The latter two gentlemen have shipped two carloads of horses from Peru to Houston, Texas, this summer and have been fairly successful in disposing of them. They may make other shipments. Mr. J. J. Knight, one of our rising young attorneys, went down to take a look at the country. He is perfectly satisfied with Utah as a place of residence, after his visit to the great Lone Star state.

The following marriage licenses have been issued: Edward A. Kilpack, aged 23, and Myra G. Perry, aged 19, both of Mapleton; Amos A. Brown, aged 21, and Emma L. Nelson, aged 21, both of Springville; James E. Jones, Jr., of Payson, aged 19, and Louisa L. Brimhall, aged 17, both of Payson; Samuel M. Wing, aged 24, of Heber City, and Cornelia Wilson, aged 20, of Spanish Fork.

A burglar visited the residence of Deputy Marshal Wilkins last night, between 12 and 1 o'clock. He struck a match, and was observed by Mrs. Ralph Poulton from an adjoining room. Mrs. Poulton is a daughter of Mr. Wilkins. She called to her father to the next room, but by the time he awoke and commenced to investigate the visitor had departed. The residence of Mr. Oscar Wilkins on the same block was also visited, but the burglar was frightened off before he succeeded in taking anything. Mrs. Poulton claims she can identify the prowler if she sees him again.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, - NOV. 8, 1894.

The Election in Cache.

The election returns from the county are all in, and show that the Democrats have carried the county by 41 majority. Democratic gain over last year, 21. A heavy vote was polled in all precincts except Logan, where about 200 persons registered failed to cast their ballots. Every Democratic candidate for the constitutional convention was elected; also every county officer on the same ticket. Fenton and Clinger precincts show Republican majorities. Interest was centered in the Logan returns, for it was known that young would be close. The total vote in Logan was 862, of which 452 were Democratic and 410 Republican.

Upon the morning session of Cassville's election in the township the Republicans had a great torchlight procession and jubilation last evening. Several thousand people were out to witness the parade, which wanted half a mile in length.

Returns received late last night from Preston and Franklin show that the former place was carried by Democrats by 24 majority, and the latter by a Democratic majority of 19 on the state ticket.

Judge Wm. Goodwin's Death.

A gloom was cast over the entire community Tuesday evening by the announcement that William Goodwin, who recently retired from the office of probate judge of Cache county, died at his residence in Logan at 9:30 o'clock. The judge has been suffering for two weeks with a severe attack of Bright's disease, but it was not thought to be dangerous, and things took a wonderful turn, and so we have given death another emphasis. Every man, woman and child who was acquainted with the judge deeply regret his demise, for he was a good honest, upright, charitable man, ever ready to help the unfortunate and to do his conscientious duty as a man and a citizen.

His funeral took place at Logan Tabernacle to-day at 1 p.m.

A Child's Death.

The little seven-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Thomas, the grandchild of Commissioner George W. Thatcher, died last Saturday evening of bronchitis, complicated with pneumonia.

Shot At in the Darkness.

Charles Shaw, of Paradise, was shot while going from Logan to his home Saturday night, by some unknown would-be assassin, at about 12 o'clock at night. Shaw and others had been quarreling over politics in a beer saloon in the county road, and it is surmised that one of his opponents followed him out of the hall, and after he got into his wagon and started in drive away fired a bullet after him. The ball struck Shaw just above the temple, and glancing off, did practically no harm.

Kept His Receipt.

[Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.]

An indignant citizen called on Postmaster Stayton of Allegheny, yesterday, and entered a complaint against the postal service. He said he had sent some money through the mails to a firm in Pittsburg, and to make sure of the getting it he had the letter registered. The letter was sent last October and has not gotten to the Pittsburg side of the river yet.

Postmaster Stayton admitted that a letter should go from Allegheny to Pittsburg in less than seven months, and said if the man would produce the receipt for the registered letter he would look the matter up.

The man said: "Oh I have the receipt and I am going to keep it, too."

"Well, let me see it," said Mr. Stayton, "and I will look the letter up."

The man fumbled through his pockets and produced a soiled piece of paper which he had been carrying for weeks in order, and, unfolding it, showed a money order. He had put the money into the Allegheny office, put the money order in his pocket and wondered why the creditor did not get the money.

Bodily Effect of Emotion.

Many serious maladies have been attributed to the action of moral influences. Bouchet believed that fear was capable of inducing erysipelas. Dr. H. Tuke laid especial stress on the influence of fear in the contagion of rabies and, in fact, there are innumerable cases on record of emotional patients who suffered all the pains and inconveniences of numerous maladies, imaginary solely by emotional disturbances. Depressing emotions frequently appear to play an important part in the development of tuberculosis. Puerperal fever is also encouraged by depressing mental emotions. "I have often," says M. Hervieux, "seen young women in a fair way of recovery hurried into mortal illness by expressions of mental agitation from whatever cause." This view finds very general support among the members of the profession.—Revue Scientifique.

Salmon Caught With the Hands.

Adam Englett, a Lockport young man, was lucky enough to catch a salmon in the sluice at the dam. Englett saw the big fish trying to make its way up the sluice, the water being very low on account of the conference having been put in several days ago, the young man jumped in and caught the salmon in his hands and landed it safely on dry land, and it weighed eleven pounds.

HOW TO CHOOSE A SPONGE.

DON'T BUY ONE OF THE BRIGHT YELLOW KIND, AND LOOK OUT FOR IMITATIONS.

Although the difference between a good and a bad sponge is very marked, but few people seem able to appreciate it. The first requisite of a good sponge is that it should be dark in color. The beautiful yellow sponges commonly seen in druggists' windows are a delusion and a snare. The natural color is a light to medium brown, and the yellow sponges have been bleached by a vitriol bath, which destroys their elasticity and makes them wear out much sooner.

The feel of a sponge should be velvety. It should compress into a very small bulk by squeezing, and it must be of a uniform color. The best and most expensive are Turkish sponges. They come from the eastern Mediterranean. The Dalmatian sponge is next in quality and price. There are very many others, however, known in the trade as horse sponges, Zanzibar sponges, yellows, velvets, sheepy, wool and glove sponges. The cheapest and at the same time the cheapest is the grass sponge, which is made up of myriads of small filaments and looks like a ball of yellow wool.

The majority of the sponges sent to this country come from Florida. Cuba also supplies a good many. The sponge, after being detached from the bottom, either by a dredge or an instrument resembling a sickle, which is made for the purpose, is allowed to lie in the sun until the flesh decomposes.

The sponges are then trodden under foot in running water until the flesh is all washed away, leaving the skeleton, which is the sponge as we know it. If the decomposition is allowed to go too far yellow spots will appear upon the sponge and damage it. They are then packed up and sent to the dealer, and, after a further washing, put on the market. The export trade in New York in sponges is very large and they are exported to every country in Europe.

Dwarf Negroes of the Andaman Isles.

The negroes of the Andaman islands are of small stature, average only being over five feet in height, and many are much shorter. Mr. Rickers affirms that they are only from 3 feet 9 inches to 4 feet 2 inches. Their heads are large, their shoulders high, their bodies prominent, and their lower limbs long, entirely slight. Yet they are one of the strongest and vigorous race, and although they suffer much from fevers, take a ill long complications, lower complaints, cancer, inflammation and rheumatism, and never live to be more than forty years of age, this is attributed to the exposed nature of the lives they lead, due to the ravages of the climate, especially in the open parts of the islands which they inhabit.—Sunday Magazine.

OBITUARY NOTE.

JAMES HOBKINSON.

PARAGONAH, Nov. 5, 1894.—Died of kidney complaint, James Hobkinson, son of John and Mary Hobkinson, born in Richmond, near Wilson, Lincolnshire, England, October 22, 1827; joined the Church and came to Utah in 1851. In 1857 he went on a mission to New York, where he remained two years. He returned home to see his first wife, who died soon after by mistake had been made mistress instead of wife. He afterwards married Mary Ann Wilson, who died in Salt Lake City. He bore her sufferings at first a murmur and died true to the faith. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his loss. A. D.
