Dan Carson, the Salt Lake Ex-Detective Turns Up Again.

MONROE, SEVIER CO., PROSPERING

A Curiously-worded Will.—Carbolic Acid Swallowed by Mistake.—Early in Jail.

The Knights of Pythias, in their grand lodge at Nevada City, will discuss the question as to whether retail liquor dealers shall be debarred from membership.

Judge Nugent, at Boise City, Idaho, has rendered a decision in the habeas corpus case of H. W. Early, the commercial swindler, dismissing the petition for a writ and remanding Early to jail.

C. J. Stillwell has published an article in the San Francisco Examiner proving that all the Fresno petrified men and women have been made by one Preston D. Boreman in a little house near Selma.

Thomas Ross, of Joseph, Sevier county, while having some teeth extracted, took a drink of what he supposed to be brandy, but which proved to be a preparation of carbolic acid and turpentine. His agony was intense, but he is now recovering.

While Mr. James, of the Sevier mine, was driving his fast trotting horse between Richfield and Elsinore, the animal became unmanageable and threw Mr. James violently to the ground, dislocating his left ankle and otherwise bruising him badly.

Mr. Andrew Nielson of Richfield, Sevier county, who is commonly known as Jensen, died at his home last Sunday. Deceased was a native of Sweden, sixty-four years old, and a devout Latter-day Saint. He was one of the first settlers of Richfield twenty-two years ago, and did a great deal toward making the county what it is. He leaves a wife and six children, the youngest aged fourteen years.

Will Lamoureux met with a painful, but not serious accident about a week ago while endeavoring to extract a loaded cartridge from a Marlin rifle, says the Lander (Wyo.) Clipper. The shell exploded, blowing out the breech block, which struck him on the cheek bone, making an ugly gash which bled profusely. He is getting along nicely, however, and will soon be as good as new.

It is reported that the Southern Pacific will begin construction on the Black Canyon route, surveyed over a year ago, to connect the Los Angeles and Phoenix (Arizona) line with the Rubicon road, a distance of 110 miles. Recent estimates show that three-fourths of the freight and passengers coming into Phoenix now pass over the Santa Fe line to Denver. Most of them will come from the north when this line is completed.

The water of Clear creek, says the Richfield Advocate, is reported to be in a very unwholesome condition. Several hundreds—and some say thousands—of newly born sheep died in the canyon on account of cold weather this spring while being driven from Milford and Black Rock, and now the warm weather is sending water down the ravines in which the decaying carcasses lay, washing them into the creek. Such a stench fills the canyon that it is extremely disagreeable to travel along the road, and the rush of water makes it difficult to remedy the evil which the constable and road supervisor of Joseph have been instructed to do. Those who allowed the sheep to die there will be taxed with the cost of removing the carcasses.

Monroe, Sevier Co., was never in a more prosperous condition than now. Thousands of acres of new land of the best quality will produce a gigantic crop this season; fruit will be produced beyond all precedence; the thousands of sheep, horses and cattle that are owned here are making the people wealthy. Culture of swine and poultry is offering good returns, and is being systematically followed by many farmers. Monroe must have a first class high school, and its citizens are able and willing to put up a suitable building. Water works will soon be put in and pure water will be piped in to every kitchen; a good school house is in the course of erection, which will be supplied with a corps of the best teachers obtainable and be filled with hundreds of intelligent pupils, and but a short time will bring the addition of a high school and a fearless health and bathing resort. Richfield Advocate.

The will of William I. Morgan, who committed suicide under peculiar circumstances on the 9th inst. at San Francisco, has been filed for probate. His estate is stated to be worth about $46,000. It consists of 750 shares of the stock of the Belvedere Land company, valued at $25,000; 220 shares of the stock of the California Guarantee Investment company, valued at $12,000, money due, about $5,000; house and lot in this city, $4,500; shares of stock, value unknown. The will is holographic, and was executed January 16, 1890. After directing the payment of all just debts and liabilities the testator willed as follows: "Secondly, I hereby give, devise and bequeath to my loving wife, Hattie M. Morgan, whom I worship and adore, and who is the guiding star of my life, all and every piece of property that I own, real and personal, situated in the city and county of San Francisco, or anywhere, to be her own property and estate, to do with as she wishes. I also appoint her the executrix of this my last will, without bonds."

About sixteen years ago Frank Sullivan, a machinist in the employ of the Southern Pacific company at Sacramento, Cal., while playing with some boys, had an ordinary white bean enter his right ear. He informed his parents, but as they were unable to discover the bean they concluded that the boy only imagined that it entered his ear. Some days young Sullivan has grown to manhood, and frequently complained about pains in his ear. On Tuesday afternoon he suddenly became deaf in the left ear, and thinking that it was due to the unnatural deposit becoming hardened he inserted a toothpick. As he placed his fingers to his ear he felt a hard substance, and on extracting it he was amazed to find that it was the same bean that entered his ear sixteen years ago. It was greatly discolored and covered with mucus. Sullivan positively declares that the bean first entered his right ear and traveled through his head to the left ear, where it was extracted. Of course he must be mistaken about the ear in which the bean first entered as it would be absolutely impossible for it to pass through his head. The fact that the bean remained in his head for sixteen years is in itself, however, remarkable.

Mr. Dan Carson, remarks the Richfield Advocate, of which he was then said a short time ago about employing a man called Brannon to secure his wife, is now preparing to start processings to get a divorce from his wife on the grounds of cruelty having been forced to testify against him in the case mentioned. He intends to marry Mrs. E. to Ephraim, of Rawlins, Wyoming, or "Miss Hill" as he calls her, who is thirty-seven years old and has a nineteen-year-old daughter. He promises to be real kind to his present wife after he has been from her legally divorced and to his "Miss Hill" legally married, and asks that "God and see them often, as she will always be quite welcome." After hearing a summons and reading the complaint, wherein it is stated that he has always conducted himself in a way becoming a loving husband and father, and that he has kept sacred the marriage vows, etc., Mrs. Carson thought it strange that he could swear to such a statement after telling her the particulars about to whom he was engaged to be married. Judge Powers and Ogden Hiles are attorneys for the plaintiff and Jacob Johnson will attend to the defense. Carson was formerly a member of the Salt Lake City detective force.
