SENATOR CULLOM HERE.

Arrived From the Coast This Morning and Will Depart This Evening.

A Ride Around the City, An Hour Spent, Excursion to the Lake and an Informal Reception.

Illinois's senior United States Senator, Shelby M. Cullom and a Presidential possibility at the hands of the Republican party arrived in Salt Lake this morning from Portland to which place he went direct from San Francisco after spending a couple of weeks on the coast. The distinguished visitor is a member of the Senate committee on Commerce which has had before it the question of selecting either Port Pelos or Santa Monica as the ocean port of Los Angeles.

The senator while in California made very careful inquiries into the respective merits and claims of each place considering and feeling interested in the subject for both. What the result of their investigations will be, however, the senator does not care to state at this time.

Among the prominent Salt Lakers who met the senator at the depot on his arrival in this city this morning were Jos. L. Rawlins, Charles Crane, chairman of the Republican Territorial Committee, Judge Zane, the gentile senator-elect, and Bishop Cannon. With the gentlemen named the senator and his party, consisting of himself, his daughter, a Miss Hughey, a Miss Dunn and Mr. Ray, were driven around the entire path of the city. At Fort they visited the Tabernacle and listened to an organ recital by Professor Stephens, after which they again entered their carriages and drove to Fort Douglas. On their return they went direct to the Tabernacle, where an informal reception was held. This afternoon the senator and party were taken out to Saltair on the 5:30 train. They will leave for the East over the Union Pacific at 5:30 this evening instead of by way of the Rio Grande Western, as heretofore announced.

Senator Cullom politely granted a representative of the NEWS a brief interview this afternoon. On the question of general politics he had nothing to say, and as to local politics, he claimed he did not profess to be interested on them. Speaking of his visit to Utah he said: "This is my first visit to Utah. I visited the Territory of Wyo. Of your Territory at large I can say very much because I only saw it by hearsay. But as to your city it is most beautiful and startling—more so than I anticipated and I have found very much of it. I am highly delighted with it and I imagine that it is one of the pleasantest places to which to live. There are some very homes in it and they are so handsome."

"Now, then, senator," said the newspaper man, "I would like to have you express your views on the silver question."

The senator laughed and replied, "Yes, I presume so. I have not undertaken to define my position on that question, however. What I have said in it has been merely of a tentative character and I am not out on political speaking I have refrained from being specific. I will state, however, that I am not an enemy to silver, but a friend of it and all interests of the great body of the people."

Answer to the question as to whether the following from the San Francisco Chronicle correctly states his position he replied, "I presume that substantially reflects my views:"

"Do you think, senator, the establishment of simetallism will restore confidence and produce good times?"

"We are entitled to bimetallism and the parity of values of both gold and silver, giving to both metals equal dignities and equal privileges in the money market. I am for no compromise so to believe that the United States alone can, by simple decree, produce the desired result. We ought to have an international agreement which shall establish the proper relations as to metallic currency. Then the contribution to currency legislation which we ever will become more noticeable. The country is worried by the theories of statesmen, who offer unfolding remedies on every hand, ignoring the teachings of experience. Often silver theorists and other good theorists are mine, impatient of each other, and little opposed to a middle ground, but there is always safety in moderate and well-considered action. Much as we may wish to see to silver be equal and proper place in a money metal, we must look to existing conditions, where they demand it at our hands. The duty of a statesman is to look after and care for the interests of the entire country. He has sacrifice an interest for the benefit of any other interest."

Then he was asked by the NEWS was so to whether or not he had read the Constitution. He replied in the negative, but said he was anxious to do so. He referred to the fact that it was a very short instrument. "But Congressmen who have to work it carefully to see whether it will take you to or not."

Then followed the interview the senator said: "Let me see, when do you leave your first session?"

"Next November," answered Mr. Crane, who was present.

"And when do they take their recess?"

"On the first of January, 90," was the reply, "and they will be called duty, 1891," added Mr. Crane, "has before him which of the great parties they come."

"Of course I expected that. I could not be otherwise." And here the interview ended, soon after which the reception was held before the carriage took to the lake.

The Chamber of Commerce.

The presumption is that the Chamber of Commerce will have numerous inquiries within the next few days regarding the silver conference just held in this city. Up to this afternoon, however, no letters had been received on that question, or rather they had not been opened. Secretary Calhoun says he is simply endeavoring to get a little out of red and that the clearing up of accumulated business will begin in a day or two.

The Circus Parade.

All is which tomorrow morning the great parade of the Syndicate Show will start from the circus grounds at Third South and Third West streets. The procession will move along the principal business streets, including East Temple, and good positions from which to view it will be taken on any of the principal business thoroughfares. The parade will contain some new gems of wild animals, as well as bands of music and the big lions and tiger. It will be quite an imposing affair.

The free performances will take place at 2:30 and tomorrow afternoon. The circus will exhibit here for three days, giving morning afternoon and evening performances of a 2-Ring.

On Grant, a street which has a small store at the corner of Third East street and Fifteenth street, between Ninth and Tenth South, died last night under circumstances reported by the relatives of the deceased as being strictly natural. CHICKASAW CONFERENCE.

Report of Meetings Held at Mesey settlement, Choctaw Nation, May 11th and 12th.

May 11th arrived in one more notable event in the history of the Indian Territory Mission, by the meeting of Latter Day Saints and friends to gather in for the conference of the Chickasaw branch of the Lord's vineyard. A refreshing shower on the night of the 10th and fanned the atmosphere and made the traveller's journey quite pleasant. Some of the brethren and sisters came long distances to be present at the conference, some the boys had come on a long journey in the river at all hours.

The members of the Elders, Presiding Elder Gabriel Jackson, President Henry Kelsey, John A. Simpson, J. C. Lyon, Phillip H. Morgan, Alvin A. Hosley, Albert J. Brown, Hezekiah C. Anderson and Thomas L. Campbell, and of A. H. Jackson began with Comforter Jenny Kickapoo in charge. After singing "Come Home to Jesus," Elder J. C. Lyon offered up the opening prayer. "Come all ye saints of God" was then rendered, and Elder Alvin A. Brown addressed the assembled on the authority claimed by the Latter-day Saints to administer in the ordinances, the ministry of the Gospel of Christ, and to point out the necessity of being authorized in finding the proper channel that leads to eternal life and salvation.

Elder Hezekiah C. Anderson then took the stand and set forth the manner in which the Gospel was carried to the people anciently by the Apostles and revelations, and how it was the Gospel message is borne by the Elders of this present time in the same in as ancient times. He then called upon Elder Albert J. Brown for a revelation for the guidance of those in the new Chickasaw Church.

Elder Alvin A. Hosley addressed the people on the truth of the Gospel, and in a most manner pointed out the various offices, gifts and blessings that have been given through the previous dispensations, and referred to the ordinances of man entering into the Kingdom of God which had been given.

The morning session closed by singing "Praise to the Man who commanded with "Hallelujah," and Elder C. Jackson opened with prayer. "Nearer, O Gracious God" was sung and Elder Hezekiah C. Anderson addressed before the people the first four articles of the Gospel, taking each in succession and plainly proving all to be the only principles established by an Heavenly Father in the year of salvation, he also drew attention to how these principles had been changed by the counterfeit Christians of today.

Elder John A. Stephens treated upon the Church of Christ as organized by the Savior and named in the words of the Apostle Paul, showing the necessity of every member in the organization to be called to their body complete. With a view of extending the Holiness Mission, and to the great benefit of the cause in other parts.

Elder Phillip H. Morgan spoke in a very forcible manner on the subject of the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, showing the necessity of their receiving a great effect upon the minds of the hearers. The Holiness teaching was then given of the future world of the dead and compared with that of the unfortunate.

"The Spirit of God Like a Fire is Burning" was then sung by the Elder Hezekiah C. Anderson, pronounced the benediction.

A council for the benefit of the saints and friends of this place was called up by the Elder Elders present under the direction of Elder Alvin A. Hosley and a Presiding Elder Gabriel Jackson was called upon to preside. The meeting house was filled to overflowing and appeared delighted at the lively interest manifested by the Latter Day Saints in the cause of the Kingdom of God. The council was conducted with a good deal of spirit and there was a complete union in every particular. The position was carried by the Elders very decidedly and many friends of the Church were tenderly given by the people. The
