A Riot From The Bench.

While a jury was being empaneled in the Third District court this morning, Judge Anderson took occasion to comment upon the large amount of time that is wasted in the examination of jurors as to their qualification or fitness to serve on the trials of prisoners, and desired counsel on both sides to be as brief as possible. Much time was also consumed unnecessarily, he said, in the examination of witnesses. While it was quite proper that all the facts should be brought out, he hoped the judge would be able to keep within the bounds of discretion. Time at four dates might be be disposed of in the time which one often occupied.

Refunding of School Taxes.

Next Saturday, April 2nd, Clerk McMillan, of the Third District Court, will begin the work of refunding of school taxes, declared by the courts to have been illegally assessed and collected. This only includes the amount—$[illegible] less 15 per cent. for legal fees—involved in the suits brought by the taxpayers residing in a number of the original school districts. The number of people interested in this branch of the refunding business will be probably considerably over [illegible].

The largest amount—$[illegible], to be refunded to the taxpayers of the city at large, will be paid by the school board, who will begin the work of disbursement in about two weeks from now.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT.

The Savage Attack Upon a Tramp at St. Mary's Academy—Other Items.

In Judge Anderson's court this morning,

William H. Johnson, the man who so brutally assaulted a tramp at St. Mary's Academy a short time ago, withdrew his former plea of not guilty to an indictment charging him with assault with intent to commit murder, and pleaded guilty to an assault with a deadly weapon.

Attorney Reilly, the defendant's counsel, waived time for sentence, but made a strong appeal for clemency in the man's behalf. The defendant, he said, was a native of Kentucky. He had always been an honest, industrious man, and this was the first time he had been in trouble of this kind. He had been employed as engineer at St. Mary's Academy, in this city, for about four months. The school, it appeared, had for some time been infested with tramps, and repeated complaints had been made to the city authorities and peace officers with the object of stopping the nuisance. Night after night, however, the tramps still went to sometimes there be log. The man assaulted by Johnson presented himself on the night in question and promised to go along about the place when requested to leave; he also became insolent and applied opprobrious names to the defendant. A few earnest, and Johnson forcibly ejected him from the premises. It was in the heat of passion that he struck him with his gun.

Judge Anderson read the defendant a short lecture, and said that while he was justified in using necessary force to eject the tramp, he had no right whatever to use a deadly weapon upon him unless in self-defense. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the penitentiary.

ASSAULT WITH INTENT.

The trial of Thomas Walker, a young man about 21 years of age, on a charge of attempted assault, with intent, upon a girl of fifteen, was resumed. He was found guilty, waived time for sentence, and was ordered to be kept in the penitentiary for five years.

ADMITTED TO CITIZENSHIP.

John Gibbons, a native of the Emerald Isle, and now residing in this city, was admitted to citizenship.

NO AMENDS COMPLAINED.

In the case of James Johnson vs. Chas. O. Wallingford, etc., leave was granted to amend the complaint.

A VOLUNTEER OFFENDER.

Charles Hatfield, a boy of fifteen, was charged with "burglarizing" the jewelry store of Mr. Alfred Betz, on East Third south street, and stealing several watches. Attorney Nye appointed.

On December 29th last year, while the prosecutor was in the store, between 7:30 and 8 o'clock in the evening, a large rock was hurled against the window, the glass of which was broken. A boy who throughout the opening and four watches were taken. Mr. Betz closed the supposed thief up an adjoining alley, but failed to overtake him. He was unable therefore to speak as to his identity.

A witness named Johnson, an acquaintance of the defendant, stated that in the course of a conversation with Hanner a day or two after the robbery, the latter told him he had thrown a brick through a window and taken some watches.

Officer Birkner arrested the defendant on the State road on January 9th, and found in his possession a lady's gold watch (produced). He said he found it in front of a jewelry store.

Mr. Betz identified this watch as his property, and the witness Johnson said it was a watch like the one pounced that Hanner showed him.

Several witnesses were called for the defense, the drift of which was intended to show an alibi.

A CHRONIC CROOK.

Ed. Lewis, an Old Jail Bird, Again in Custody of the Police.

Ed. Lewis, a notorious reprobate, whose greatest success in life has been achieved in plundering his fellow man, is again in custody of the police. It is but a short time ago that he was released from the county jail, having served a term of seventy-five days for stealing a lap robe from the buggy of a couple of young ladies from Mill Creek. He had also "been there" prior to that for various offenses. He is now accused of grand larceny and is to just awaiting arraignment before Justice Goo.

Some of them gave bonds of $25 each, others were unable to do so and were given lodging in the city jail. Today, however, they were all released on the payment of $25 each.

Amusement Notes.

The engagement of Marie Wainwright in "Amy Robsart" commences at the Theatre tonight. One of the most splendid scenes in this production is said to be the throne room of Greenwich palace. This is an exact reproduction of the great hall at Hampton Court palace, which is still preserved in almost as perfect a state as when originally finished. The walls are placed with long rows of stained glass windows and the heavy arched roof of oak is one of the noblest specimens of Tudor architecture.

THE SATURDAY MATINEE.

The appearance in the Theatre on Saturday next, April 2nd, of the King of the United States Marionettes is a musical event of great interest to lovers of the divine art. Mr. Hauser, the skillful orchestra leader, and Miss Dixon, the brilliant soprano, cannot fail to draw large houses wherever they go.

"MONTEZUMA."

The Home Dramatic Club, assisted by Miss Belle Gilbert, will present "Montezuma" at the Beneficial Opera House next Saturday evening. The Salina train leaves at 5 p.m., returning after the performance. Fare for round-trip, including admission to performance, $1.

Very Acceptable.

In acknowledgment of the dependent pension law, Bailiff George W. Walton, of the Third District court, has received a letter from the pension department at Washington, stating that he is entitled to receive a pension for services rendered by him from the year 1861 to 1865, in the Union army, during the civil war. The allowance will date from the passage of the act, about twelve months ago, the sum being $12 per month. Bailiff Walton is 71 years of age, and the gratuity will be most acceptable to him. He is a highly deserving public officer.

Says He is Innocent.

The examination of Ralph Porter, a clerk, formerly employed in this city, on a charge of forgeries, was fixed to take place before Commissioner Greenman this afternoon. The boy in the case is a Miss Dailey, of whom child the defendant is alleged to be the father. For some months past Porter has been away in Wyoming, and was arrested by Deputy Marshal Brennan Tuesday on his return here a day or two ago. The defendant stoutly protests his innocence of the offense charged.

Alleged Perjury.

William T. Jenkins, of Newton, Cache county, went before Commissioner Greenman this morning, having been arrested on a charge of perjury at a witness on an application by one James Parsons, in the U. S. land office. In default in a bonnemed sum he was released on a bond of $1000 to come up again when called upon.

The Salt Lake Symphony Orchestra.

Unusual stories of music have often of late been heard by people near the old Social Hall. On entering the place a few evenings ago, our reporter was almost lifted off his feet and landed in the door of Music Hall of Bedlam. An assemblage of nearly forty men in uniform surrounded a conductor's stand, and to complete the picture a magnificent harp towered up in the center. There were four first violins, three second violins, three violas, two cellos, two double basses, one harp, two zithers, two oboes, three clarinets, two flutes, two bassoons, two trumpets, two horns, two trombones, one tuba, two timpanies, drums, cymbals, etc. The Music Hall as large devotedly wished that some one might be found who would make of instrumentalists what Professor Evan Stephens was making of vocalists—a strong, magnificent organization who should be known throughout the world for art as well as individual benefit. Here, it seemed, was the man in the person of Prof. Anton Federson, whilst the talent for the Salt Lake Symphony Orchestra was found. Just this body of men had been working long and with enthusiasm was seen proven in the fine interpretation of the overture, "Wanderer Lied," which very rendered magnificently. Then there came another proof of ability in the lovely waltz of Strauss, "Lustige Weaden." In this the zithers are heard, and one can fancy the delights of being actually in the Vienna woods, though he has never crossed the great ocean.

This orchestra is a central and most important step in our musical advancement, and as such, deserves recognition. We understand that overtures are in vogue that will have the finest orchestra west of Chicago as we now have the finest chorus—of rather choruses, for there are two of them—in the west.

The following are the men who have so far made the Salt Lake Symphony Orchestra a reality: Anton Federson, conductor; Mr. Zimmermann, president; George Sutton, secretary; W. C. Wells, concert master; William Tangquist, Lucher Briggs, M. Odenson, Bro. Wallace, E. Beasley, M. H. Cummings, J. Midgley, second violins; A. Bordeme, M. Stirr, Ed. Beasley, violas; cellos, J. Gunn, Geo. Hemming, double bass, Messrs. Wessel and Wilkinson; harp, Mrs. J. Ball; zither, Mr. and Mrs. Prof. Hartman; oboes, Messrs Olsen and Kranz; clarinetts, Messrs. Dittmer and Eckhardt; flutes, Messrs. Hodges and Fickell; bassoons, Messrs. Evans and Baker; alto clarinetts, Mr. Tanner; trumpets, Messrs. Jespersen and Thomas; trombones, Messrs. Ford and Gillies; tuba, Mr. Finney; timpanis, Mr. Ford; drums, Mr. Beasley. In giving praise to all these gentlemen for a good share of credit for bringing this body of musicians together, it has been unlifting to little efforts both to get the desired instruments as well as the performers. The Choral Society alone also by loaning money to procure timpanis and instruments.

Mr. Stephens has taken a great interest in the progress of it for some months and has quietly aided and encouraged and now gives them the first engagement to appear before the public at the coming grand choir festival, where in addition to giving some choice selections by themselves, they will appear in conjunction with the great chorus of 700 voices and organ.

Today's Showing.

When the trial of the Northland-Mayflower mining case was resumed today the plaintiffs called John Judge, one of the defendants, for the purpose of showing that W. R. McCormick was a defendant. They failed in this, as Mr. Judge testified that Mr. McCormick was not a defendant. Judge Hogle then offered in evidence one of the files in the case in which Mr. McCormick was named and the plaintiffs rested their case.

Charles C. Brooks, the well known civil and mining engineer, was then called by the defense. Mr. Brooks testified that he had visited at the Mayflower claim in 1890, and had followed his profession ever since there. Mr. Brooks went into a lengthy statement of the defense, which were made by him from actual surveys on the ground, and showed the methods by which he took the outlines of the hill, the various elevations and depressions, etc. The entire area was shown by topographical and sectional maps, from which the jury obtained a very clear idea of the situation, the geological formation of the country as well as of the workings being shown. Mr. Brooks was cross-examined at great length by P. L. Williams, but it only resulted in additional information being brought out. The witness and being elected in the 1 ed in any way.

The U. S. Consuls in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 30.—Reports from American agents in the different provinces contradict the statement circulated in the United States that the peasants are in further need of assistance. The peasantry in urgent need of rain, especially well with Hungary, and in the Black Sea region, will issue an appeal to the German-American people for aid. He says there are in the government provinces, German colonists in distress who appeal to their kinsmen in the United States for aid. The crop failed for several years and there was not a drop of rain for thirty-two days in 1891. The colonists have been decimated by spotted typhus fever. The government has done all in its power to relieve the sufferers and expended over 200,000 roubles. Aid must be speedy to be effective. If the German-American people will send a ship load of augment Indian corn the peasants will be enabled to grind part and sow the remainder. The Consul-General of the United States intended here will see that it is properly distributed.

Literary Sale.

The complete novel in Lippincott's Magazine for April, "Out Into Most Week," is by Dora Sigerson Shorter. In the Athletic Series, Julian Hawthorne secures the science of walking, which he considers the only proper mode of locomotion, and C. Dwight Dallas, Jr., discusses the science of hounds-and-hare driving. In the journalistic series, Melville Philips tells us that the literary editor is much less frequent than the dramatic critic appears, and gives some odd samples of his experiences. The Contents Notebook gives a brief history of the leading English and American Clubs, Maude Howe Elliott's "Roots in Boston" is a hearty tribute to Boston's hearty cheer and unpretentious "Milk for Babes," a short article, by Mrs. Louise Hagan, discusses facts which should be the guide to the health and life of children. The "First Principles" of writing are unfolded by the editor in his academic sojourn for literary honors. In "Poetry and Art Is Sweet" is extremely interesting. There are short stories by Julian Hawthorne and Edgar Saltus, and a memory. The poetry of the number is by Robert Loveman, Sibylla Vernon, Florence Earle Coates, Isabel Gordon, and Charles Washington Coleman.
