LIVE STOCK MATTERS.

An accurate and Intelligent Review of the Situation.

The shortage of cattle at the four great markets, namely, Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha and St. Louis, continues to be an interesting subject. For the six months ending June 30th the receipts of 1895 were approximately 2,500,000 compared with last year this total shows a decrease of 1,424,000 cattle, and when compared with 1893 a decrease of 2,000,000. Of this decrease, Chicago has 1,000,000 head, Omaha 166,000 and Kansas City 47,000. The decrease at these three points was offset to a small degree by the increase at St. Louis of 74,000 head, but entirely the local conditions at the movements of extreme cattle with which we not long since were anxious to do, and which did not all of them, so to cattle from the south east in that market.

This shortage is nearly half a million cattle at the three points for the first year, with prices so far only in any way are and have been, rather indicative that the store is not in the quantity, and that the supply in the sources with farms has been greatly reduced. The department of agriculture at Washington show from their statements the total number of cattle in the country by last January was 35,809,000, of which 16,000,000 were cows, cows. This is a less number of cattle than for any year since 1888. The actual increase in receipts, nearly 40,000, at the average of five hundred to a cattle killed to the East, represents about two hundred and twenty-five million pounds of beef, so for the past six months the total output of the big packing plants of the East has been that amount less than last year, and the consumption throughout the country correspondingly decreased. Times have been so bad that the working people have had less to pay for cash-priced beef; the class of people was becoming like their brethren in England and other foreign countries, where to have fresh meat once a week is considered a treat.

We are now witnessing a great revival in trade all through the East, the big iron and steel mills are working full force at restored wages, and the coal and coke interests are correspondingly stimulated. It is this class of business that gives employment to the meat-eaters and keeps the money of our country in active circulation. If the cattle shortage keeps up and continue to improve, not to mention the great crop of corn that is now promised from the grazer states, stockmen will have no reason to complain of the loss of the prices that the cattle will bring next fall. The same reason should tend to keep up prices on sheep.

Unlike cattle, the receipts of sheep have been very large. For the last year they number 2,894,700 head, an increase of 365,000 when compared with last year. At the present time prices are very unsatisfactory. Had it not been for the extraordinary increased demand for export purposes, the sheep market would have been very bad all winter. This feature was all that saved it, and now that there are few sheep heavy enough for that purpose going to market, we find prices demoralized. To show how the foreign demand has been taking our sheep, notice the export movement from Boston this year as compared with last; the total this season numbering 84,816 as against 10,737 last. This export movement can be explained as a feature of the cattle shortage, for exporters engage ship-room ahead, which they have to take also pay for, not being able to buy cattle that were available for the movement, they had to fill out with sheep or lose the freight charges.

Just at present the market is suffering from the rush of poor, tranny sheep from Texas and the Southern States. This happens every year, and will continue until the breeders down there improve their flocks so they have their cattle. They, more than anyone else, are to blame for the bad prices paid, and it would seem reasonable to believe that after going through this same ordeal year after year they would learn that too flesh they produce is worthless. Good sheep of cattle sell well, and strengthen the markets, while poor stuff sees the opposite. The good crops, decreased supply of cattle and improved trade conditions are all going to help bring up the prices of sheep to a point where it will be profitable to produce them.

These are the actual conditions of the live stock trade, and any intelligent person can draw a sensible conclusion from them. The novel raised by the cattle-baited Populist or by the San Francisco butchers that the markets of the East are controlled by the big packers and kinsmen of live stock, is all bosh. There is no such element that can ever affect the law of supply and demand, and that equality of the offerings. Let the stockmen of this country remember that word "QUALITY."

A Plea For The Birds.

Editor Deseret News:

Mr. Oliver Hodgson, who has recently returned from a mission to England, brought with him a pair of English sparrows which he proposes to liberate in or around Salt Lake City. Mr. Hodgson has also arranged to have several pairs of the same kind of birds sent to him early next spring, when will also be liberated. The thoughtfulness indicated by this arrangement cannot be too highly commended. Our highest aspiration is it cannot be better expressed than to begin to create a public sentiment which will insist on these birds and a hot bitter prosecution. Our sentiment must be said that hope and pray more are the work: enemies with which our sanctuary have to contend. Let us be on our guard against the enemy, or we will inflict irreparable injury upon ourselves. Already insects are committing fearful ravages on our fruit and shade trees. Nature provides for the undue increase of insects in the birds, and whenever people are so shortsighted as to destroy it, it checkmates, they have to pay for every which nature always exacts from those who fail to comply with her requirements. Why can we not have a third day? as well as an "Arbor day?" Church and school unite to make the latter a success and great good comes from so doing. Might we not, with income and material profit, to conserve, devote one day to the year to a careful consideration of the value of birds and of the means of properly protecting them? Probably no other state in the Union has her sons so widely scattered over the world as has Utah. It is not at all improbable that many of these men would cheerfully bring birds home with them and liberate them if the laws were protected as they should be. Could this be done, we might eventually have a wonderful assortment of birds in our groves and fields. These would not only be a blessing to us, but they would gradually refuse from here to other parts of our land. Will not all lovers of nature give this subject consideration? Let us see if we can not devise means whereby we may work together for the general good of all. Respectfully,

C. A. WHITING.

Showers occurred during the latter part of the week in Tooele, Utah, Sanpete, Millard, Wasatch, Sevier, Box Elder, Weber, Salt Lake, Uintah, Summit, Grand, Garfield and Juab counties. Thunder storms occurred on the 28th and 29th, in the central and northern counties. The temperature has averaged slightly above the normal in the southern counties.

CROPS.

The weather during the past week was generally favorable to farming operations and the growth of crops. Cereals and other field crops which were greatly damaged by the late frosts of the latter part of last month have recovered and have made good headway, which materially during the week. Haying operations have commenced in the southern counties, some crops have made enough to cut hay during the week. Reports from Millard and Juab counties show that the crops of alfalfa are the most forward they have ever been at this season of the year. Wasatch county reports the vegetable crops will be a failure due to the late frosts. Beans are reported as an average crop with good prospects. In the northern counties the crops are in good condition and promising. In the central counties the crops are in good condition and promising. In the southern counties the crops are in good condition and promising. Fruit trees are in good condition and promising. Grain and hay are in good condition and promising. Sugar beets are in good condition and promising. Potatoes are in good condition and promising. Vegetables are in good condition and promising. Cattle are in good condition and promising. Sheep are in good condition and promising. Range feed is good. The total acreage of crops this season will be greatly injured by the frost and late rains.

Reports from correspondents show the following:

Cache—Hay harvest has commenced in some places. Wheat is in the milk. Potatoes are coming up well. Corn is growing fast. Fruit trees are loaded with fruit. Range is good. Cattle are in good condition.

Davis—The first cutting of lucerne is nearly finished. Turnips are out of the wheat except by the late frost and are doing well. A good shower of rain would be beneficial.

Weber—Very favorable weather during the week. Haying has commenced in some places. Potatoes and corn are developing all right.

Summit—It was thought that small grain was not injured by the late frost, but it is now evident it is as a damaged to some place. Potatoes are coming out all right.

Tooele—The weather this week has been very cool and windy and very hot.

Utah—A little rain fall. A piece of flower on the 28th.

Uintah—Weather very hot and windy, everything growing fast, crops doing well, some early farming out. No rain.

Wasatch—The week has been dry with some heavy winds lodging lucerne and heavy grain, causing it now to mature. Some vines are recovering from the effects of the late frosts, and growing. Lucerne is a good crop of all vegetables. Water getting scarce.

Millard—Splendid growing week for all kinds of crops. Cool weather during the week made the cut the lucerne crop short.

Sevier—Good week for crops and planting hay.

Beaver—Warm growing weather. Crops in general look well. Fruit has not injured fruit; eye beginning to shaping nicely.

Iron—Crops growing well. Haying commenced. Old worms on lucerne and cutworm bugs on grain, doing some damage.

Kane—The outlook for potatoes is quite fine. I think one-half of the vines are killed in the fore; the rest are growing very slowly. Corn, beans, cucumbers, etc., about an entire failure, so as too late to replant for our short season. Lucern cut up has commenced.

Morgan—Hauling of lucern has commenced to bend, some lucern only one-third of a crop compared with last year, fruit and warm being the cause.

New Harmony—The past week has been favorable to crops in general. Light rain on the 27th and 28th. The rain storms on the 28th and 29th stopped lucern hauling for two or three days. Grain is being watered for the last time. Potatoes are and beans getting over the hard frosts. The weather has been very favorable for crops the past week.

Parowan—Crops doing well. New potatoes and green peas are here. Weather fine so cool to be for farmers, though some water is needed.

Tropic—Crops doing well; lucern cutting in full blast, but short crop in some places on account of scarcity of water.

Cedar—Very irrigation is full blast. Range is dying up; grain and lucern getting over the effects of the frost.

Meadow—Weather fine and warm; everything looking well; lucern nearly all secured but quite a heavy crop is expected. New potatoes and peas plentiful; small fruit ready to pick.

Levan—A fine growing week with a couple of nice showers on the 29th, freshening up vegetation. The army worm is damaging lucern in some extent and the sooner it is cut the better.

Gunnison—The week has been warm and favorable for growing crops that have plenty of water. Grain drying up with the range; is poor acres.

Hurricane—The weather has been warm and dry; some rain fell on 27th and 28th. Crops are looking well, first crop of lucern is being cut; rather lighter than last year; water is getting scarce.

Lehi—Some of the worms have died and the insects that is standing has begun to bloom again; most of the first crop is cut the storm on the 28th and 29th caught a great deal of the lucern ready to cut; it is very much bleached at present; the other crops are maturing very fast.

Newton—Week has been warm. Grain growing fine.

Cache Junction—Week warm, with clouds indicating rain. Hail damaged some grain.

Varna—Warm, with slight showers. Grain in good condition and heading out. Haying commenced, average crop; feed on the range the best in years.

Vernal—Splendid growing weather during the past week. Rain damaged the lucern hay to some extent. Cutworms, cloud worms and native grasshoppers being considerable damage to fruit trees, garden stuff and alfalfa.

Joseph—Grain is growing fine; the cutting of hay has commenced.

Lehi—The past week has been good for all crops; first cutting of lucern nearly in, all crops looking well.
