BREVITIES.

Pigtails are coming in in Paris.
Sunday theatrical performances are to be permitted at Galveston, Texas.
Italy produces 12,000,000 bottles of wine daily.

An attempt is being made in France to bring bearded priests into fashion.
Garrotting is once more fashionable in London.

Ninety-one journalists fought duels in Paris during the year 1867.

Prentice says that the Queen and Theodoros didn't marry, but they fight just as if they had.

Many Englishmen are discharging their servants simply because they are Irish.

Bull-fighting is forbidden by Executive decree in the capital District of Mexico.

New York has fewer dry goods jobbing houses now than twenty years ago.

Eight counties alone in New York produce annually apples valued at $4,500,000.

Pig fighting is the new sensation in California.

Maine does a business of over $50,000 in spruce gum.

A wit once asked a peasant what part he liked in the great drama of life? "I mind my own business," was the reply.

One of Mr. Gladstone's speeches, containing 16,852 words, was lately telegraphed from Liverpool to London, for the morning papers, in two hours and ten minutes.

Hotels at Little Rock, Ark., keep a slippery stone with each washbasin, which is found to answer every requirement of soap in that section.

The account of the fire at Baranum's, which was telegraphed hence Monday night, congratulates the country on the escape of the female giantess. A mail giantess would be a still greater curiosity. [New York paper.]

A Baltimore merchant whose son lost $1,370 at a faro bank in Cincinnati, has recovered a verdict in the Common Pleas Court for the full amount, with interest, against the proprietors of the gambling house.

Professor Blot arranges the tables in his New York eating saloons, parallel, with the guests on the outside and a space between for the waiters, who are thus able to serve the viands without handing them over the shoulders of the guests.

Voltaire says a physician is a man who takes drugs of which he knows little, to pour into a body of which he knows less, to cure a disease of which he knows nothing.

"Daughter," said a fond mother, whom oil speculations had made aristocratic, "has Mr. Brown proposed to you?" "Yes, ma," replied the daughter, "he proposes that we go out this evening and take some oysters."

The Irish Times says that the treasury has granted £100,000 for the purchase of the Exhibition Palace, the sight of the Royal Irish Institute of Art; also £100,000 for the improvement of Cork harbor, and £100,000 for the construction of a harbor in Belfast Lough.

Salt is that one thing that all men agree in thinking good; it is necessary for men, animals, for all. In England it is said that a large ox needs six ounces a day, a milch cow four, and a sheep two. One-half the ashes of human blood is salt.

"The sound of your hammer," says Franklin, "at five in the morning or at night, heard by a creditor, makes him easy six months longer, but if he sees you at a billiard table, or hears your voice at a tavern when you should be at work, he will send for his money the next day."

Sir Walter Scott, meeting an Irish beggar in the street, who importuned him for a sixpence, the great unknown, not having one, gave him a shilling, adding with a laugh, "Mind, now, sir, you owe me a sixpence." "Och, sure enough," said the beggar, "and God grant you life till I pay you."

An old minister, while one day pursuing his studies, was suddenly interrupted by his wife asking him the question—one which has puzzled the oldest divines—"Do you think we shall know each other in heaven?" Without a moment's hesitation he replied: "To be sure we shall. Do you think we shall be greater fools there than here?"

McClellan County, Iowa, has six brothers whose united weights is 2,219 pounds. The largest of these giants weighs four hundred and five pounds, and the smallest three hundred and eighty-five pounds.

A gentleman who had visited his friend for the first time in a very solitary and dreary situation, observed to him, "My dear Tom, you may have your reasons for living here, but," added he, looking with great surprise at the rookery "what can induce these poor birds to stay here, too?"

The New Albany Commercial, of Jan. 8th, says: While some workmen were recently making some excavations in the neighborhood of Corydon, Harrison county, they came upon the petrified body of a man, perfect in all its proportions. The arms, stark and stiff, were folded upon the breast, and were as firm as the solid stone.

It appears by the revenue returns, says an exchange, that the retail value of whiskey and cigars sold in California annually amounts to the extravagant sum of $55,400,000. Of the ruined health, shattered intellect and blasted prospects resulting from their consumption, no statistics are given.
