DEEP DRIFTS ON BROADWAY.

Pedestrians are Frozen to Death on the Streets.

New York is Visited by the Worst Blizzard Experienced in the East for Years.

New York, Nov. 27.—When the people of New York awoke this morning they found the blizzard that raged when they retired was still in progress. The storm, which began with a soft, wet snow on Saturday at noon, increased greatly as the day wore on, with heavier snowfall, the wind blowing a gale at midnight.

There was a slight abatement of the wind this morning, but the snow still fell and drifted badly, and the temperature dropped rapidly. It looked this morning as though the blizzard would continue all day, but at 9 o'clock there was a breaking away in the west, and the storm ceased altogether, and the severest blizzard since the memorable blizzard of March, 1888, came to an end.

The wind blew at the rate of fifty miles an hour all night and during the height of the storm, some fifty miles an hour New York State. The fall in New York City, the weather bureau reports, was about ten inches. In other parts of the city it was fifteen inches, Boston six inches, Portland, Me., four inches, Albany a little over an inch. The lowest temperatures reported were: New York City, 15, Albany, 18.

With the brightening of the skies in this city this morning came an increase in the velocity of the wind, and the snow, dry snow was sent swirling and whirling everywhere, and in places it drifted to four or five feet.

The peculiarity of the storm was the excessive drifting of snow on the sides of buildings, and when the storm cleared away the great city was transformed into a spectacle of glittering white, of surpassing beauty.

Broadway and the great thoroughfares of the city presented a fantastic appearance. In the greatest artery of business activity of the country there were drifts on the sidewalks through which the early morning wayfarer ploughed to his waist. On some of the streets great drifts formed barriers across them, and we many instances filled up the trenches that had been dug by the street railroads for the transformation of the motive power from cable to electricity.

As soon as there were signs of abatement in the fall of the storm, the street cleaning department went to work, but little progress was made. Suburban traffic was blocked for several hours in the morning, and after that trains ran at long intervals. All trains were delayed. Some that left city due in the early morning hours had not been heard from at night. The superintendent of music in the general postoffice reported the mail train from Boston, due at 4 a. m., had not been heard from, nor had the mails been received up to 8 o'clock tonight. The mails made from other parts, he said, were from two hours to an unknown number of hours behind time. The mail train from the Grand Central station today arrived on time.

The traffic laws of Saturday night did much damage to the small shipping in New York harbor. It is reported tonight that several vessels, belonging to the Kingston Towing company, together with a large number of canal boats, were swept up the river by the force of the gale. The shores of the Hudson are strewn with wreckage.

An order was sent out from police headquarters in the various precinct commanders to have arrested all persons found alone in a condition that would make even a night exposure of life threatening. As a result, the police courts today were crowded with civilized looking respectable looking persons who were let go with a small fine and an admonition to get in out of the snow. Notwithstanding this precaution on the part of the police, there were a number of casualties, including several deaths from exposure.

John Martin, 35 years old, a former insurance agent, was found in the park at the Fifty-second and Eighth street and Avenue A. He was taken to Bellevue hospital. Both his legs and hands were badly frozen. He had been down on a bender for days. He said he had had nothing to eat for several days.

An unknown woman was found unconscious in a snowdrift at Seventy-Eighth street and Avenue A. She was removed to the Presbyterian hospital where her condition was said to be serious.

An aged German, Frank Schneider of Dutchkills, Long Island City, was found late Saturday night at Greenpoint, street and Second avenue. He was lying on a snowbank almost unconscious and was transferred to the Bellevue hospital.

An unknown woman discovered in a basement on the Bowery was removed to Hudson street hospital and died there from alcoholism and exposure.

A policeman rescued Dennis Quinn, a letter-carrier, who had fallen helpless in the snow early this morning badly frozen.

In Jersey City the body of Romuska Cunningham, 47 years of age, was found on the sidewalk on Vanvorst street early this morning. Her skull was fractured. The body was almost covered with snow. It is believed she received her injuries from a fall.

At 7 this morning a policeman found Charles Schupp unconscious in the snow in Jersey City. Before he could be carried into a house he died. Schupp had started for a butcher shop where he was employed, and his death is attributed to exposure and exhaustion from his struggle through the blinding storm.

Oscar Berk, 42 years of age, and William Allen were also found in Jersey City by the police, badly frozen. The former had a bad case of drink. He was unconscious and is likely to die.

From the Mission Field.

Elder Ed. E. Pike, late of the Nineteenth ward, was seen by a "Deseret News" reporter Friday. He left the Salt Lake City mission on Sept. 19, 1896, upon being called to fulfill a mission to Great Britain, where he labored for a short time in the Cheltenham conference, principally in the towns of Stroud, Cheltenham and Bristol, where he indulged in strenuous times with the help of a certain class of individuals who assayed to elevate the "moral tone" of the ancient city Bristol, which is Sodom Cabet. Elder Pike returned to Sodom, where he now resides, on November 21, 1898, having spent one year in knowledge, experience and lost his best boots—failure. He reports having experienced a good time during his absence from the vales and dells of Utah.

Another returned Elder who has grown out of knowledge abroad is Alonzo E. Hyde Jr., who sleeps April 19, 1896, has been absent from his home in the Seventeenth ward, being engaged in missionary work in the land of the Kaiser. Elder Hyde returned last Monday from his field of action that was exceeded in the office of President Martin and Martin, he being president of the latter conference for the last five months of his mission. He reports the work to be progressing apace in Germany, and that there are many friends to the Elders there who, while they may differ on religious matters, at the same time also a goodly interest in the labors of the Elders there.

The majority of Elders who recently have filled missions in Europe will preach Elder Emmet J. Hewlett, of Payette, Idaho, who returned from a mission to Great Britain, where he labored for nearly two years, having labored in the Nottingham and London conference principally in the latter county. He put his first foot in Salt Lake City, since his return, on Thanksgiving day. He plans remaining home for the present, but says he will go into politics and was the successful Democratic candidate for assessor and collector of Bear Lake county, in 1894, during the last election.

Elder Alexander Fuhlis returned to his home at Clarkville on November 18, 1898, having fulfilled an honorable mission to Great Britain. During the first portion of his mission he labored in the Bristol conference, principally in the office of Bristol, Gloucester and Bath—office of Bristol, Gloucester and Bath—every four he was transferred across the channel to Scotland, where he was stationed in the Glasgow and his native town of Stirling. He returns looking the picture of health after his long absence from Utah. Elder April 26, 1896.

The go-ahead little town of Riverton has experienced an addition to its population. Elder George H. Dennis returned to his home there on November 19, 1898, having spent one time under ban of the Chickenfoot conference, principally in the towns of Street, Cheltenham and Bristol, where he indulged in strenuous times with the help of a certain class of individuals who assayed to elevate the "moral tone" of the ancient city Bristol, which is Sodom Cabet. Elder Pike returned to Sodom, where he now resides, on November 21, 1898, having spent one year in knowledge, experience and lost his best boots—failure. He reports having experienced a good time during his absence from the vales and dells of Utah.

Treatment of Eyes.

Hundreds of people are either taking "treatment" from high-priced oculists when there is nothing in the world the matter with their eyes but an optical defect NOT PROPERLY CORRECTED. If you have "money to burn," take the treatment, it will do you good, if you haven't, be sure your glasses are RIGHT. I like to fit people whose glasses are not right. I have proved many serious troubles to arise in the BRIGHT Glasses when others failed. Come and see me. Fee of charge. All lenses ground on the premises and guaranteed of the best quality.
