In pursuance of the decision a committee was appointed to draft articles of incorporation to be submitted to the stockholders' meeting today. At the meeting today the articles of incorporation were adopted and the company was formed, with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into 1,000 shares of the par value of $50 each. The company will be known as the Heights Creek Irrigation company. The following board of directors were elected for the ensuing year: James H. Linford, president; H. W. VERNAL.

Illicit Selling of Liquor to Indians—Epidemic of Pneumonia.

Special Correspondence.

Vernal, Uintah County, March 1.—Sheriff was informed by to the valley by a howling wind all last night although it was not very cold. What blew the snow was falling about in small patches disappeared soon after it fell. Cows and the fuel masses who are covering their sheep out on the "bad lands" will soon be seeking watering places for their sheep.

Preparations are already being made for shearing. Indian Agent Myton has sent word that he will be ready to receive shearing pens on the Uintah river near Fort Duchesne. The distance to Price will be lessened by twenty-five miles and the sandy road through the deep sand between here and the fort will thus be avoided by cutting the distance shorter.

ILLICIT LIQUOR SELLING.

Indian Agent Myton and Deputy U. S. Marshall Wayman accompanied by interpreter Harry Sewell and Indians were in Vernal this week to attend a show on the trial of H. J. Chatwin, charged with selling whisky to the Indians down on Green River.

The trial lasted two days with the result that Mr. Chatwin was discharged. U. S. Commissioner McConnel are denying the evidence of the Indians sufficient to hold him. Common report says however, that Chatwin is selling liquor there, and if he continues to be but a matter of catching when he will be severely dealt with as Mr. Myton and Major Isaac Lee are resolved at the last, are determined a vigorous crusade against the illicit selling of whisky to the Indians.

F. T. Sowerby was also tried on trial before Justice of the Peace R. C. Cann and a jury, charged with assault with a deadly weapon upon Richard Funk. The affairs grew out of former trouble on the part of Funk's barn where Funk had contributed for the damages. Considerable bad language was indulged in when Funk started toward Sowerby with the intention of "licking" him, when the latter drew his gun and ordered him to stand back. The jury found Sowerby was justified in drawing his gun in self defense, so he was discharged.

EPIDEMIC OF PNEUMONIA.

There is quite an epidemic of pneumonia in Ashley Valley at present, and it has claimed several victims. The last one is young Cox, the disease was Orlando Alexander, brother of D. D. Alexander, whose wife died a few days ago. Mr. Alexander, who was 40 years old, was sick but a short time. His funeral will take place today.

PANGUITCH.

Stake Conference—Supposed Horse Thieves Arrested—Child Accidentally Poisoned.

Special Correspondence.

Panguitch, Garfield Co., Feb. 27.—Our quarterly conference was held here the 25th and 26th inst. President J. W. Crosby Jr. being a member of the Legislature, Counselors Mahonri M. Stock and David Cameron presided. Only three of the wards were represented. There were twenty-one speakers and the talks were on the Gospel and reports from the different organizations. A beautiful feeling prevailed and all felt that we had a grand conference.

Two men, strangers in this vicinity, were captured here a few days ago by Sheriff Hayhurst. They had a band of horses rounded up, and intended to take them out of the country, when the sheriff learned of it and made the arrest. They are having a preliminary investigation before the justice today and no doubt will be held to answer to the charge of grand larceny before Judge McCarty, in a few days.

The weather is cold and blustry, but we survive.

De Steiner's two-year-old son, an popular lad, got among his medicines, tried to outwit them, and was brought to book on such jobson that it would prove fatal, but antidotes were applied and the little fellow is well now.

LUCERNE VALLEY.

Its Advantages for Settlement.

Special Correspondence.

Lucerne Valley, Uintah Co., Feb. 27.—In reply to the many questions concerning Lucerne valley and its facilities, permit me to state that the north side of the valley is composed of a rich sandy loam. The middle and the south side is a clay soil. In some parts of the valley it is not entirely level, but very much will can be irrigated. There is an abundance of water, as Sheep creek and Henry's Fork, from which we get our water supply, basin on the north side of the Uintah range, which is covered with perpetual snow and is fed by numerous lakes and springs. Lucerne is and vegetables do well, as the climate is very warm and adapted for such. There have been no wells as yet dug, but good drinking water has been piped into our town for culinary purposes.

There is a small store five or six miles from here, but as yet there is no grist mill, as there is not enough grain raised to support one. There is at the present time about two hundred and fifty acres of land under cultivation, which yields abundant crops. Uncultivated land, timed, with good title and water rights, is worth twenty dollars per acre. There has been plenty of coal discovered within five miles of our township, but is undeveloped.

The price of cattle in our country is very high, as we have a fine grazing district, and this is the leading industry.

The altitude of Lucerne valley has been estimated at 7,500 feet above sea level. As a rule the land is not taken up in hard lots as in some places, so it is well protected by the hills.

We are very nearly all members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, but as yet we have not been organized into a branch of the Church, though we are holding Sunday school and expect in the near future to have a branch of the Church organized here.

Lucerne valley is about 75 miles in an easterly direction from Salt Lake City. Parties coming from Salt Lake valley would do well to come on Fort-ly's canyon, thence to Costville on the canyon, thence to Evanston, from there to Dillard and Piedmont, thence to Fort Bridger and over to Henry's Fork.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A Triumph for the Cause of Irrigation.

MONEY FOR THE ARID WEST.

Debate in the Senate on the Amendment to the River and Harbor Bill.

Washington, Feb. 3, 1899.—The friends of irrigation for the West feel that they have scored a distinct triumph for their cause.

The Senate committee on commerce recommended the amendments to the river and harbor bill proposed by Senator Warren of Wyoming, which appropriate $10,000 for the construction of the Piney system of reservoirs in Wyoming according to the surveys and plans in the official irrigation report, and also $10,000 for the survey of sites for reservoirs in Arizona and Nevada. The senate adopted these amendments after some debate in which the best report was made by the senators in favor of both and against the incorporation of the policy very fully presented.

Senator Spooner of Wisconsin said the two appropriations in Wyoming were made in response to requests from the citizens of that state, who stated that it would involve a vast expenditure.

Senator Warren replied strongly to this objection. He said the arid West contributed its share of every river and harbor bill and received nothing in return.

"Here is a river and harbor bill," he said, "appropriating millions, of which only $1,000,000 goes to the western half of the country; that is a monstrous injustice to the West. No doubt injustice is done in this country. We are one great nation now, and there should be no injustice done to any section. The arid West bears its fair share of national burdens and should have its share of benefits.

And look at the national wealth that comes from the mines of the arid West," he continued. "Nine-six per cent of all our gold, 87 per cent of the silver, 12 per cent of the copper, 75 per cent of the lead, and other minerals accordingly, come from the great West. We want to feed the miners who are digging out this wealth so that we may cheapen living and increase this mineral development. Every section of the country is enormously benefited by it. The Eastern farmer sells food and farms do not now and never will compete successfully with the Eastern farmer. The Eastern farmer sells food to the factory operatives, supply the Western farmer and miner with manufactured articles and the development of the great Western country will bring a new era of prosperity to every farm and factory in the East."

Senator Allen of Nebraska spoke in behalf of the amendment and contended that the creation of commerce came just as much within the commerce clause of the Constitution as to provide waterways to carry it after the creation.

Senator Gallinger said that he saw no constitutional distinction between keeping the Mississippi watch, while it benefited navigation, also protected a large area against floods, and improving the flood waters in reservoirs, thus preventing floods and aiding navigation, and by irrigation, preventing destitution by drought. He said also that the west did not receive its fair share of the benefactions of the Federal government in the way of internal improvement.

Senator Carter of Montana talked vigorously in favor of the policy. "It will create no sectional feeling," he said. "It will make garden spots of waste places. It will restore to the farmers of Kansas the water they drained in Colorado and save the farmers of Nebraska from a similar fate. It will prevent the destitution in the valley of the Missouri and the Mississippi. It will raise the waters for navigation at low stages because after being used for irrigation and drainage they will in inevitable percolate back into the streams. It will save spending millions for levees that have proved to be futile. It will save millions of dollars of damage by future floods. It will create new markets for the wares of eastern factories and will result in an exchange of trade and commerce throughout the whole country.

"Let it be understood, and distinctly understood," he continued, "that this is the beginning of a new policy; a policy that will result in starting the development of the valleys of the Missouri and Mississippi, and will create thousand of happy homes in places that are now wastes along the slopes of the Rocky Mountains. I have no patience with the objection that this policy might result in increasing the acreage of cotton, tobacco, and of our power to produce. It is an idea strange that the products from these western homes would compete with eastern farms. The Piney reservoir will absorb the surplus farm products of the west. Last year we shipped seven bushels of flour to Yokohama and Hongkong."

"Yes," added Senator Mason, "and we would have shipped more if we had had the storage facilities."

Mr. Carter said: "Lord Charles Beresford, of the engineer corps on reservoir sites in Wyoming and Colorado, under which this appropriation was voted by the Senate today, said that the location of the reservoir in Wyoming was made under an appropriation in the last river and harbor bill. The Wyoming bill was a direct result of Senator Warren, Col. Chilcoten in the street goes over the whole subject exhaustively and concludes that a comprehensive reservoir system in the arid regions of the Dominion of Canada is absolutely essential to their welfare and that it is not possible to secure the development of such a system except through the agency of the general government.

"In the purpose of such reservoirs," Col. Chilcoten says, "is simply to enhance and conserve natural resources of the streams, having to the use of their waters to be diverted and used for irrigation, the use of the stored waters to be subsidiary free to the people forever and free from any kind of rights to the exclusive claim. It is not proposed that the Federal government shall exert any further power over waters flowing in the Dominion than to control over waters naturally flowing in the streams."
