INTERESTING PRODUCTION.

It will be of interest to the readers of the "News" to learn that Dr. Joseph Peterson, who was lately here as adjunct-cator of the Eisteddfod, has completed his work as a cantata entitled "The Pilgrimage of the Pioneers." The score, or words, of the composition are from the pen of Prof. Evan Stephens, but the music will be the production of the eminent gentleman above named, and a joint production of each author must of a novel sort but little precedent perhaps. The subject is a heroic one, one that has been variously treated, but never before, so far as present information goes, as either a dramatic or musical theme. In the form of a cantata it enters somewhat largely into both realms, albeit by an means an opposite creation.

An extended mention of the groundwork and development of the cantata appears in another part of this paper, and it will be found worthy of a perusal. It is a matter of pride that we have so much of musical ability and aspiration in our midst; and every development toward a more advanced stage is entitled to the best encouragement. The production of The Pilgrimage will be looked forward to with no little interest.

SHIPS ARE NEEDED.

When the situation in which the United States finds herself at the close of a most successful war is calmly considered, it will probably be found that one of the first requirements now is a larger amount of American vessels for the foreign trade. It would be a mistake to give attention to army and navy measures to the exclusion of the interests of the mercantile marine. The war with Spain has clearly demonstrated the value of ships not originally intended for war. That we became involved with France, or even Germany, it is impossible to say to what an extent we might have been handicapped, perhaps humiliated, and disgraced, not from lack of warships, but from lack of merchant vessels, capable of transporting troops, carrying coal, and doing the similar variety of things that merchant ships are capable of being made to do in time of war.

Thomas Jefferson, in his report to the third session of the first Congress, "On the Privileges and Restrictions of the Commerce of the United States," says in part:

"If particular nations group at undue chase of our commerce, and more especially if they seize on the means of the United States to convert them into a weapon for their own strength and withdraw them entirely from the support of those to whom they belong, defensive and protective measures become necessary on the part of the nation whose marine resources are thus invaded, or it will be discarded of its defense; its productions will be at the mercy of the nation which has possessed itself exclusively of the means of carrying them, and its politics will be influenced by those who command its resources. If we have the genius and artists where it now employs, we lose the present means of marine defense, and time will be requisite to raise up others, when disgrace and losses shall bring home to our feelings the disgrace of having abandoned them."

There never was a time when the axiom here laid down applied with greater force than the present one. By the acquisition of colonies in two oceans, the United States has become a maritime power and must be prepared to hold its position as such. What is needed is an American built merchant marine handling the commerce of the country and ever ready at the request of the government to render such service as may be required. Foreign-built ships should no longer be registered as American vessels. Our own shipbuilding should be encouraged and, if need be, protected, until it has assumed such dimensions that vessels can be constructed cheaper and better than those built by any other nation. The material is here, and the skill is here.

THE DREYFUS CASE.

The German emperor is now said to have decided to take an active part in the Dreyfus case. The Russian emperor has also quietly made inquiries and become convinced that the unfortunate army officer is the victim of a conspiracy, and that immediate demands his emancipation. As Russia the Dreyfus question is now regarded as an international one, and the advice of the official press to France is favorable it, because the ally of the French republic cannot indefinitely ignore a matter of such importance.

The source of the interest taken in Dreyfus, by the Russian ruler, is probably due to the fact that he is no longer the "Czar of Russia." Should he be forced that a revolution may break out, France, it is well known, has failed to put into full practice the principles of a republican government. There still remains a element in the throne of France who may have the courage to put in his claim, and there are certain supporters to make the claims of Philippe more ring with the cry of "Vive Napoleon!" Such an experiment would undoubtedly prove unsuccessful, but Russia cannot, under the present circumstances, contemplate the possibilities of a revolutionary outbreak in France with equanimity.

The present crisis is settled, in favor of Captain Dreyfus, is, however, more particularly due to the efforts of his devoted wife. After the condemnation of her husband she went to work to find and implant the seed of the germ of suspicion that the German government had never received any information as charged. Her request was granted and the imperial word was given. Then she proceeded to St. Petersburg, and appealed to the czar. This resulted in a most severe rebuke to the French government through the Lord Mayor of St. Petersburg, in which which the writer said:

"The crime of Dreyfus and Esty could not otherwise than deeply shocked the true friends of France. The first of these crimes inspired a rapture of impudence and ingratitude, of which the most flagrant was the production before the judges alone in the court-martial (all part of a secret document by officers of the military authorities. The second, a monstrous infraction of the ordinary procedure renders the condemnation of Dreyfus null and void. Guilty or not guilty, he has not had a fair trial. They have simply dragged in a supplement him according to absolutely illegal procedure in order to obtain a condemnation. It is the criminal side of this affair, the fact that it was not the present which shocked the most impartial side of the matter." Madame Dreyfus was appealed to the pope, the king of Italy and the queen of Spain. Each of these expressed a friendly interest in the case. She never tired of hearing on proofs of the innocence of her husband. The re-opening of the case, which, it is hoped, will end in the declaration of his innocence, is due to her devoted efforts. May her victory, so well earned, be complete!

A STATE FARMERS' UNION.

The "News" has been requested to call the attention of its readers to an invitation issued by citizens of Weber county to the farmers of Utah for a convention to be held at Ogden on Saturday next, Dec. 3, for the purpose of forming a State union. The plan proposed contemplates the formation of a central State union with branch or auxiliary unions in every county and precinct in the state, the employment of a State secretary, whose duty it shall be to systematically gather information as to markets and conditions and disseminate the information among the different branch unions. It is not proposed to have anything secret, religious or political in the organization. The matter is one of purely secular business and should be viewed only from the standard of its effects on the interests of the State and especially the agricultural portion of its inhabitants.

With such an understanding of the matter as has been imparted and which is briefly embodied in the foregoing lines, the "News" has no hesitancy in declaring itself decidedly in favor of the proposed organization. Such combinations are calculated to do a vast amount of good to the great industry, and to interest in which they relate; and when they stand clear of factionism and the prevailing propensity to become knotted together in the form of trusts, are likely to be beneficial to the community as well. We believe there is room for an organization in every State and more than one in some of them, and there is no sufficient reason why we should be behind in any useful thing.

Sulphur is according to the Manufacturer, one of the most efficacious and simple cures for diphtheria. All that is needed is flour of sulphur and a quill, and with these, it is said, even extremely unusual cases have been relieved in remarkable manner. He put a teaspoonful of flour of sulphur into a wine glass of water and stirred it with his finger instead of a spoon, the sulphur not really amalgamating with water. When the sulphur was well mixed the physician gave it a surgeon, and in the operation blew some out of danger. Surgeon blew every species of fungus in a mass, heat or plant in a few minutes. Instead of spitting out the gargle, the swallowing of it is recommended. In extreme cases in which the above specialist had been called in the sick of time, when the fungus was too nearly growing to allow the gargling, he blew the sulphur through a quill into the throat, and after the fungus had shrunk to allow of it, then the gargle.

"The News" last night was much excited over a report that the U. P. R. R. of this city has been delivering to Rhode Island. It appears against how the news was broken, if the news is of such a character to overcome, but it is said it will come to naught. Very good, but why apply to Rhode island a specialist in the matter, why? Its time is as good applied for Dr. Bill as anyone else."—Tribune.

True. And whenever the "News" requires the services of a competent church Dr. Bill experience, we shall expect just that and nothing reliable. Not till then.

A pugilistic entertainment is to be closed among the moral societies which adopted and upheld the evil strumpet, but survey the injection of the element of cheating into it by means of which men are bamboozled into paying to see a cleverly rehearsed play instead of a bona fide contest for supremacy, does not advance the position any.

Gen. Garcia, of the Cuban republican envoys admiration to the United States, he, we believe, does that other remark Senator Aguinaldo. Neither needs to borrow trouble; they need go necessarily be included.
