GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

No teams should be left without some responsible person in charge. Marshals will be appointed to arrange the teams in their proper places, and those who come with conveyances are expected to report to the marshall, in order that they may be assigned to their appropriate places in the procession. A committee should be appointed for each order of the Priesthood taking part in the procession, to conduct the members of their respective orders, at the conclusion of the services, to the proper conveyances. The querums of the Priesthood will file out first.

length along the bed of a shall w stream and luxuriate in the cooling waters, while others recline 'lazi y under the umbrageous foliage of the tree-lined sidewalks, with no more visible animation than is evinced by a corpse. A little old man came into our sanctum yesterday complaining of a dead dog which lay in fiont of his residence, not far from here, and requested a notice to be written for the removal of the carrion, whose presence, according to his account, burdened the surrounding stmosphere most heavily and offensively. We went with him to see the cause of his trouble, but on reaching the spot, much to his surprise and our amusement, the sleeping canine was on his feet, yawning and stretching after a comfortable a'ter dinner nap. Priesthood Meeting.-A meeting of the priesthood of the Stake com nenced this morning, at 11 o'clock,
