ness to New York to address the Democracy twice and open the eyes of the benighted of that foreign city.

Democrats of the Third ward will meet tonight and determine their duties in regard to the peace and quietude of Friday. The members of the ward party will perform a similar duty in the Fifth municipal ward one night later.

The ratification rally at the Beehive Democratic club and county committee at the Tabernacle tomorrow night will be a big affair, says Chairman Dickson. Among speakers will be Senator Cannon, Candidate Hoffman and possibly some of the visiting Democrat stump orators. The Democratic band and glee clubs will furnish the music.

Logan Journal: The great orators, lawyers, Cochran, Dayton, Cannon, Thurston, Eaton and others are pumping up the arguments against Bryan. They all were silver men a few years ago. They are never on the wrong side now. In another column we read how Senator Thurston has tangled himself so hopelessly.

Springfield, Mass., Republican (Democratic): It looks at this distance as outrageous sedition at the Chicago convention of state that desire in the McKinley party lines the use of the Republican name and emblem on the official ballot. The silver Republicans of Colorado are no more the regular Republican organization than the gold Democrats of Connecticut are the regular Democratic organization.

Of the Republican silver meeting at Boise on Tuesday evening the Statesman says: It had been advertised that Senator Cannon, of Utah, would be present and address the meeting, which proved somewhat of a drawing card. But Cannon was not present and no apology was made for his absence. It will be remembered that Dubois drew a crowd at the station last summer by an advance notice that Hermann and Mantle would accompany him to Boise, and the same advertising scheme was worked last night. Your twitter—Nugent, or Cannon, nothing but a smooth bore, sir!

Richfield Advocate: The Salt Lake "Republican" county convention was a disgrace to Utah. There is not a few county in the State where would tolerate such an exhibition. The Yale students' outbreak has taken second place as an instance of boisterous boorishness. The Salt Lake Tribune hissed at the name of McKinley, and the very fact that they do not know it is good positive that to all their kind there is not enough gray matter to comprehend one minutes or Major McKinley's greatness. Weather or not they want McKinley for President of the United States, they should at least have enough contempt for him as an illustrious American citizen and a great Republican to respect some intelligent Democrats would do that much. The Chicago anti-convention has been a counterpart in Utah. The very thing making in Salt Lake was the silver league of Hon. W. J. Bryan.

Dr. Daly Not in It.

In Tuesday's News the death of Mrs. Schroeder was noted as following a surgical operation, by which an effort was made to save her life, and the name of Dr. Daly was given as being one of the surgeons in the case. The fact was an error, as Dr. Daly was not concerned with the case in any way.

Farewell Party.

Last evening Elder Ettie W. Salisbury of the Twentieth ward was the recipient of a very pleasant surprise party, where about fifty of his friends assembled. The occasion that brought them together was the fact that Elder Salisbury leaves on Saturday on a mission to Great Britain. The evening was spent in songs, music, conversation, lunch, etc., and all wished Brother Salisbury Godspeed on his journey and for himself and family every blessing necessary for their comfort.

PEIRONNET IS HELD.

He Must Stand Trial Before the District Court

FOR AN ATTEMPT TO MURDER

His Wife, as Ingress Is Laid—Preliminary in Police Court—Bail $4,000.

Joseph W. Peironnet, the man who is a Salt Lake resident, attempted to kill his wife in this city on the 19th of August last, had a hearing in the police court today, after which he was held to await the action of a higher tribunal on his bail fixed at $4,000.

The case came before Justice Winger at 10 o'clock this morning, the prosecution being looked after by Assistant County Attorney Walsh, while the defendant was represented by his counsel Attorney M. M. Kaighn. The complaint charged the defendant, Joseph W. Peironnet, with, on the 19th day of August, 1896, having attempted to kill and murder his wife Annie Peironnet by then and there taking intoxicants and and firing at the said Annie Peironnet.

MRS. PEIRONNET CALLED.

Mrs. Annie Peironnet, wife of the defendant, was called as the first witness. Her evidence was given in a low tone and in such a manner as to indicate that she had only recovered from the ordeal through which she had previously passed. Her testimony was given in some hesitating manner, and though severely cross-questioned, her statements held no variance as far as the substantial facts were concerned.

Mrs. Peironnet said that she had been married three years and had lived in this city since the month of December last. Her husband, she was in Vernal, Uintah county. On August 19 she came upon which the offense in question was committed, she was living in Waldner's court on Second street between Fourth and Fifth East streets. In this court there are two houses, one of which she and her husband occupied, and in the other her sister, Mrs. Gordon, resided. On the 19th of August and for some time prior she had noticed that her husband was intoxicated, and in such condition he was required to be away from home at night. Witness had a nursing baby, seventeen months old at that time. About 9 o'clock the evening in question, Peironnet came home, a very unusual thing, and another woman accompanied him whom was locked. Witness had just put her baby to sleep and before retiring herself lay out down to finish a letter to a lady friend, which she had commenced a day or two before. She was out in her night-robes and as soon as she heard the knock in the door she arose and unlocked it. Peironnet then stepped in. As soon as he entered the door he exclaimed "It's no use, I can't do it," and say what she wanted to in the baby, before it was too late. At this juncture the baby woke and witness lifted it from the bed and held it in her arms to coax it to sleep, then she passed it to the bed again. During the time Mr. Peironnet sat quietly in a chair, but now all the while and occasionally asking her if the child had not yet taken asleep. When the witness closed the child to bed for the second time Peironnet left his chair, and Swinging a knife in a threatening manner, whereupon witness grabbed here from underneath her pillow, and Mr. Peironnet ran across the room. He his stepped behind the curtain and which is little more than a screen, and taking the handle of her left foot, posting diagonally through it, coming out near the wall and then glancing into the left breast, where it left a judgment near the outer torn. Witness afterwards went out of the house through the back door and was taken with a neighbor's house. She said the baby were the only parties in the house last evening.

On cross-examination by Attorney Kaighn Mrs. Peironnet stated that her husband had been in the house about twenty minutes before the shooting occurred. He was quite some to her when the shot was fired, probably twenty yards away. Witness usually slept with a revolver under her pillow, because majority of her husband's visits away at nights, the pillow her revolver towards him and was sitting at the foot of the bed facing him. Was not aware that she fired at him. Was accused to firearms having had some experience with them in target shooting. Mrs. Peironnet's revolver was born shown in evidence, it was a Connecticut, 32-Smith Smith and Wesson.

Continuing with the cross-examination witness stated that her bed was still pulled-in-shape. The doors of the house were both locked. The door leading and nothing about another person being in the house, after coming to. Witness let him in himself. Peironnet had a knife in the handle was broken from her pocket, presumably by the shot fired at back.

On re-direct examination Mrs. Peironnet said she had been frequently offensive with her husband and several times had he threatened to shoot her. He drank to excess sometimes, and his curses were not a were more when highly intoxicated. He gave no provocation reason when or made for threats, and she had on several occasions he had accused her of having other men in the house.

MARY BROWN TESTIFIES.

Miss Mary Brown, a connection of the home of Mrs. Gordon, was the next witness. She testified to having heard a noise on the night in question and upon going out of Mrs. Gordon's house to ascertain the cause, she saw Mrs. Peironnet and Mr. Peironnet who said that Annie was sick. Witness then went into Gordon's, and Lil Brown in it. Mr. Peironnet said he was sick and had come home. Mrs. Peironnet came out, the defendant gave the baby to her. There were two or three shots fired. Witness heard Peironnet's statement as having had the shooting, he telling them at the time to go into the house if they didn't believe it.

TESTIMONY OF DR. WRIGHT.

Dr. E. S. Wright was next placed on the stand. He said that he was called to attend Mrs. Peironnet on the night of the shooting. He found the woman suffering from gunshot wounds in the left side under the right breast. The wound in the breast extended inward and upward and its opening was large enough to admit the index and passed through the left hand and had glanced into the right breast, making an entrance about 12 inches deep. The ball suffering fractured the second rib, clavicle and first rib. It was a very grave wound and the witness thought it a miracle that it didn't kill the woman. She was not well yet and would perhaps have to undergo an operation. Witness was attending a sick child and had advised her to get in as good a condition physically as was possible because attempting to operate upon her. He had been out of Nov. for about a week. He was notified by Dr. Dart.

DR. DART'S TESTIMONY.

Dr. J. M. Dart was the next witness. He gave expert testimony as to the kind of weapon made by different bullets and stated that in his opinion, the wound in the breast and that in the throat had been made by cutlery of several caliber. When he went to the house he found Mrs. Peironnet lying on a cot, her woman dressing very profusely. He examined Mrs. Peironnet's pulse at the time and found the woman very weak. He was of the opinion it had been discharged shortly before. In examining the wound in the hand he found some protrusion of bone and a piece of lead which. He thought that the wound in the hand had been made with a 32-caliber cartridge. He had never in his experience observed a shotgun in these wounds.

OFFICER O. P. PRATT.

Officer O. P. Pratt next took the stand and testified that he went to the Peironnet residence on the night of the shooting. He met defendant on the sidewalk; the Moses, Green and Riley, ex-policemen. Peironnet said his wife was sick. He said she shot herself. Witness then went into the house and got the revolver. The defendant said he had shot at her during the day with a dog. Witness questioned the defendant and he said that when he came home, he saw a man in the house and started to get his shotgun out of the back door. Peironnet said that his wife when caught in company with this man, had drawn her revolver and shot herself. Witness examined both guns at that time and it was his opinion that neither of them, the 44-caliber, had been recently discharged.

Here the prosecution rested its case and as the defense had no testimony to offer, Attorney Kaighn asked that the court be so instruct as possible in fixing defendant's bail.

Attorney Walsh opposed bail, and in regard of fixing the bail, he considered the offense a very grave one. It had been shown by the testimony that it was an attempt to kill and shoot, without any palliation whatever. He argued that in view of the circumstances, the bail should be fixed at a serious figure.

Justice Winger then announced that he would make the defendant's bail $4,000, then fixing it $1,500 from what he perceived was. If the defendant is unable to furnish the required sum, he will be obliged to remain in the county jail until it is secured to a higher court.

EAGLE VALLEY DISTRICT.

A Camp That is Proclaimed to be Without a Peer on the Continent.

Situated in Nevada, just a short distance from the State line, is a mining camp known as the Eagle Valley district. This camp boasts of some very promising properties, another of a few of which is more by the Iron County Record as follows:

The Lyon, situated about four miles from Lion City, is furnishing employment for four or five men, who are taking out some very rich ore for shipment. It is a good property and would assist much in increasing employment for a mill if one were erected in the county.
