DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Monday, October 30, 1893.

FRAGMENTS.

TAXPAYERS, remember that after to-morrow taxes become delinquent.

THE Citizens' and workingmen's rally at the Theater tonight will be a lively and interesting one.

THE First quorum of Elders met tonight in the Tabernacle ward assembly rooms, at 7:30.

GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT BURLEY of the Union Pacific has returned from a brief business trip to Omaha.

MR. JOHN H. WHITTAKER returned home Chicago today, after two weeks absence from the city. He would turn from the World's Fair tired with delights of the many wonderful things he saw there.

WILSON and Rogers, two suspects, were held to await the action of the grand jury by Justice Orr today on a charge of stealing a set of harness and a top rose from the premises of Parley L. Williams in the Twentieth ward.

THE special business course to be given at eight sessions in the Eighteenth ward commencing by Professors Mumford and Nelson will hold its second meeting this evening, beginning at 7:30. Those who desire to join should do so without delay. The class meets every Monday and Wednesday evenings at the hour stated.

Shooting Accident Again.

An other serious shooting accident was added to the long list of mishaps of that kind yesterday. The victim was "Sam" Scott who resides at No. 253 south West Temple street. He was returning home in a road cart from a hunting expedition about noon when a "jar" occasioned by driving over a rough part of the road caused the discharge of his gun. The charge passed through his left arm leaving it entirely. Scott hastened home and Dr. Emis was called in. He dressed the wound and is of the opinion that he will be able to avoid amputation.

An Administratrix Removed.

In the case of Frank Crozier, deceased, a hearing was had in the Probate court on Saturday afternoon on a citation to Louie Crozier Fate, administratrix, to show cause why her letters of administration should not be revoked. Mrs. Fitz filed an answer in which she denied having mismanaged the estate as alleged in the petition, and declared that she had fulfilled her trust to the best of her ability. She also claimed that she had willfully or otherwise participated or designed the settlement of the estate, or that she had embezzled or converted to her own use large sums of money, either in the sum of $1000 or any other sum. In fact, she denied every allegation in the effect that she had in any way been derelict in her duty, but stated that if her resignation was desired on the ground that she was a married woman, it was so desired. Otherwise she prayed that the petition for removal be dismissed. The matter was briefly argued, and by consent of Mrs. Fitz her letters of administration were revoked. U. E. Allen was appointed special administrator on filing a bond in the sum of $10,000 and taking the necessary oath.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Elder A. H. Cannon Addresses the Saints Assembled in the Tabernacle.

Divine services were conducted in the Tabernacle on Sunday afternoon, the 29th. Elder Abraham H. Cannon, of the council of the Twelve Apostles addressed the congregation.

After a few introductory remarks, the speaker went on to say that there had been a very remarkable change in the feelings and disposition of men since the Gospel was ushered in to the earth through the instrumentality of the Prophet Joseph Smith. It has grown steadily answered in the path which God has marked out for it, and its principles have been steadily shaming the views of religious teachers in almost every part of the earth. Its seeds of truth, sown, will be instilled the Millennium, indications of which already appear. The spirit of religious toleration is growing among men. Only recently advances of this kind has been witnessed in the great parliament of religions held in Chicago. The Latter-day Saints did not have a representation there, but even this may be the means of giving us in the future greater freedom in expressing our views to the world.

There is an effort being made to establish an international court of arbitration for the settlement of difficulties arising between nations. By the adoption of this plan it is proposed to dispense with standing armies, and, by methods of peace, establish peace between contending nations. Instead of war and bloodshed, peace would in this way be maintained and lives would be spared. The money thus saved would call to life again the comfort and happiness of mankind, establish industries and bring wealth for the unemployed. This is one of the possibilities in the future.

Elder Cannon remembered that in France shortly years after the Franco-German war, when he asked in the German language for anything, he was usually treated with politeness and hospitality, but when he spoke in English, attention were manifestly bestowed upon him. A German in Paris informed him of the cause. France had not yet forgotten that she had been whipped into submission by Germany, hence the feeling of jubilation was the hope of ten years had not eradicated from the French mind.

The speaker could remember when polygamy in the school room was considered as cheerful as the bastinado; and for which it was administered without reason. But instead of arousing the pupils to submission it frequently was the means of engendering in their minds the stubbornness characteristic among men. A child may occasionally receive chastisement with the rod and reap benefit therefrom; but there are others who cannot be controlled in this way.

Mothers should be sparing in the use of harsh measures to subdue their little ones. Too often an excessive mother resorts to unreasonable methods in chastising her child, and leaves a permanent and wrongful effect on the tender mind. Perhaps not until her little one's eyes are closed in death, does the mother realize the injustice she has inflicted upon it, and then she is almost overcome with feelings of remorse.

Not as very long ago men were punished for expressing their religious views, similar things have been experienced in the history of science, art, mechanics, etc. Bruno was burned at the stake for expressing his views on transcendental, talk; Galileo expressed his views regarding the motion of the earth, but was forced to recant or suffer punishment. In 1612 Jews tried to extinguish two great lights which had raised up among men. On several occasions they were accused of crime, but on investigation the charges brought against them were unfounded. The speaker expressed his belief that our nation has so far advanced, and is so endowed with charity and Christian love, that it would not permit such violence today. The spirit of toleration and brotherly kindness is growing in the world, and is projecting mankind for a universal reign of peace.

The spirit of intolerance has not been wanting even among the Latter-day Saints, even though the principles are in which they believe. Good young men and good young women guilty of some trivial wrong too often have been harshly dealt with by zealous officers, and excommunicated from the Church. These officers will be called to give an account for their unwise rulings. The speaker did not wish to see iniquity grow in the Church, nor to allow men pursue unchecked a course of wrong-doing; but he would be in favor of holding on to every one in the Church who has a spark of the Spirit of God, so long as that one has not sinned unto death. He would not like to see such a one harshly dealt with, exposed to temptation or turned over to the buffetings of Satan. He hoped rather that the Priesthood and the people would throw around every erring one the saving influences of the Gospel.

We except beside to let the poor pass by unnoticed. Perhaps some of us care nothing for the poor widow-woman or the humble laborer, and yet God may have put within them spirits that will exalt them far above us in the hereafter. Too many bow to the rich and lift up their hands to God they do not see the hungry and the naked. We should be filled with the milk of human kindness so that we should not appeal to us in vain for assistance. We should feel as one of old who, though not a believer in religion, believed the world was his field, and all men were his brothers.

SCANDINAVIAN NEWS BUDGET.

(Received from Special Colleagues for the Deseret News.)

SWEDEN.

Smallpox is raging extensively in the parish of Vaxhamnar, Upsala.

Thieves broke into the jewelry store of C. A. Tunlin, in Upsala, and stole nearly everything of value.

The large Holy mills situated not far from the city of Lidkoping were burned to the ground.

A French newspaper man calls King Oscar "the most entertaining monarch in Europe."

The opera singer Lundquist who gave several concerts in some of the large cities of America last summer and met with so immense success, has declared his intention of visiting the United States again next year.

Of the 400,000 individuals who emigrated during the forty years 1851-1890 inclusive, 125,000 were married, 128,000 children under fifteen years of age, 241,000 unmarried and 171,000 widows and widowers. Of the number, however, recently individualized. Even at a very low estimate, the Swedish population in the United States—counting the children born in America—must now be about 1,000,000.

The area of the mainland of Sweden with the islands amounts to 442,120 square kilometers, of which about one-twelfth, or as much as the whole of Denmark, consists of water. As regards size, the united kingdoms (Sweden and Norway) form the largest realm in Europe, next to Russia. Sweden itself ranks as the sixth, while its neighbor Russia is seven times larger. The states of North America are twenty-one times the size of Sweden while the latter country is three times as large as the state of Illinois.

The direct trade between Sweden and the United States was in 1891, valued at $2,500,000, of which the exports were the smaller amount. With closer examination into the commercial interchange between Sweden and America through intermediate lands the actual trade is found to be much larger. Mr. Thomas, minister of the United States, calculates for 1889, when the direct import from the United States to Sweden was estimated at but $1,500,000, that the actual imports to Sweden of American goods amounted to fully $3,000,000. The export from Sweden to the United States is similarly underrated by Mr. Thomas to have had a value for the same year, of $2,700,000.

NORWAY.

About two and a half pounds was the weight of a potato recently presented to the editor of the Dagbladet.

Up to October 7th 320,000 barrels of herring had been salted down for exportation.

The new railroad near Stiker is ready for traffic. But it cannot be opened for some time yet, because the depot buildings and sidings have not finished.

The factories owned by a joint company at Morsbak were put up at a jubilee meeting the prices asked being respectively 720,000,000,000 and 600,000 crowns; but no buyer were on hand the auction was put off.

The world consumes from 1000 to 1500 tons of nickel annually. In the course of the past 20 years Norway has contributed 150 tons a year to this; but the production is on the decrease because the metal can be produced cheaper in Canada than in Norway. The ore mined in the former country averaged 13.29 per cent of nickel while in Norway it is only found in pyrites and never exceeds 5 per cent of the ore containing it.

DENMARK.

Liebe has been elected president of the Landthing. Hughes has been elected speaker of the Folkething.

In the specially Danish royal carriage is a "historical" pane of glass in which all the members of the royal family have scratched their names with diamonds. Before the recent visit of the Czar a glazier was ordered to polish the pane. He, too, of course, had a diamond, and it struck him in night as well enough to add his own name—Hans Jensen—below the other names. This not raised a storm of hilarity at the court. But Hans Jensen was to be excluded from the august company, and another glazier was engaged to remove the name by polishing. But it is said that a good eye can still see the name on the historical pane—that of Czar Alexander III or Russia being at the top and that of Hans Jensen being at the bottom.

The Folkthing is always finding fault with the powers that be, and its criticism often bears fruit. Its assault on the brutality of the Copenhagen police now led to the discharge of several patrolmen. The paper is again loaded—"for Lese." The new fortification of Cliveinlaen is the cause of the trouble this time, the chief objection to it being that it has been erected simply because "the ministry of war has issued orders to that effect." To this procedure the paper says: "Is there a single country in the civilized world excepting Denmark, where the minister of war would venture such an authority? Yes will look in vain for such a precedent." The reason given by Mr. Hahnsen, the minister of war, for the erection of the Cliveinlaen fort is that "such lines of fortifications outside of the main defense played a part in the war of 1870-71, especially during the siege of Paris." In regard to this the paper avails the fact that it took the Germans only a few days to surround the suburban forts around Paris, "which lines of fortifications," are the words of the paper "were powerless—at least for a time—against the war of 1870-71, and on such a thoroughly discouraging experience the necessity of erecting new forts around Copenhagen is based! If Mr. Hahnsen has no better knowledge of the experiences of the last war he is simply incapable as organizer and fort builder."

The banks Bonds have been unusually active Government of late, says the Berlin Tageblatt Gazette. Their favorite field of operations is among the through passengers who stop here for breakfast, and some of the strange tricks they employ for enriching themselves are so transparent that one wonders how they could deceive a sixpence-old child. It must be a very strange form of avarice which will tempt a man to part with all his money in the belief that he has an opportunity of which will enable him to secure all of the money belonging to the man playing a game that has been advertised for many years as the trick of a "sure thing" gambler.
