THE ART EXHIBITION.

Press Review and Varnish Work at the Exhibit Rooms Today.

ONLY NEW PICTURES SHOWN.

Formal Opening Occurs on Monday at Six O'clock—Large Array of Highly Artistic Creations.

The annual Utah art exhibition season is about to be inaugurated, and with its advent will come a genuine treat to the lovers of fine paintings, which portray in almost living colors the genius of the painter, patient and painstaking devotees of the brush and palette. In anticipation of the formal opening, which occurs on Monday next at ten a. m., a News representative was today permitted to take a preliminary peep through the exhibit rooms where hang the principal productions of Utah artists for the year now drawing to a close. From them it is readily seen that Utah fully deserves the proud position to which she has attained in this particular field and that local art is constantly stepping forward to the march of progressive music.

With the artists this has been known as "press view and varnish work" day. That means that representatives of the press were entertained by the artists and that the latter were putting a coat of varnish on their sketches to give them greater expression. During the review it was ascertained that the prospects for the society of Utah Artists are more promising today than in any previous period and that the new State will probably show a greater art development on admission into the Union than any of her proud sisters possessed when they took the same step.

It was the intention of the News to publish an extended criticism of the production on exhibition in this evening's issue but lack of space makes it necessary to postpone the publication of such an article to a future date. Briefly it may be stated that all the pictures that will be on exhibition this year are new ones and have never been seen by the public before. Some of them are most creditable creations—none are poor and few are of mediocrity grade. Among those whose pictures attract attention are Evans, Clawson, Culmer, Hales, Harwood, Pratt, Fairbanks and Hagg, the lamented artist whose untimely death is still fresh in the memory of many friends. Mr. Wood has up for the largest number of pictures in the exhibition and they prove conclusively that he is a tireless worker. In the water color department the works of Clawson, Harwood and Culmer are conspicuous both as to excellence and numbers.

The society is much encouraged by most noncommittal attendance of prominent and wealthy citizens who will distribute to heavy purchasers during the exhibition. There is no more beautiful or appropriate holiday gift to the Christmas catalogue than a picture by one of Utah's artists.

It makes food that will keep tender and fresh, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

SALT LAKE STAKE CONFERENCE

Opened in the Assembly Hall Today and Will Conclude in the Tabernacle Tomorrow.

The quarterly conference and monthly Priesthood meeting of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion opened at the Assembly Hall at 10 a. m. today. There were present of the Council of the Apostles, Elders Heber J. Grant and John W. Taylor; of the First Council of Seventies, Elder Seymour B. Young; Patriarch John Smith; of the Stake presidency, Elders Angus M. Cannon, Joseph E. Taylor and C. W. Penrose; two Patriarchs, six High Councilors, six home missionaries, ten presidents of Seventies, Elders Elias Morris, George H. Wallace and William C. Dunyar; the presidency of the High Priests' quorum, presiding officers from all the wards of the Stake with the exception of Mountain Dell, Big Cottonwood, South Cottonwood, Union, Bluff Dale, Riverton, Herriman, North Jordan, Bannock and Pleasant Green; Tax Filer, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-third quorums of Elders were properly represented. Members of the Lesser Priesthood were present from the Sixth, Tenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Twentieth, Sugar House, Mill Creek, Farmers and Big Cottonwood wards. The Sunday schools, Y. M. and Y. L. M. I. A. and Primary associations and the Relief Societies were represented by their stake officers.

The choir and congregation sang:

Sweet is Israel's sacred song,
Its notes for a blessing we call.

Prayer was offered by Elder Seymour B. Young.

Singing, choir and congregation,

The form of God like a fire is burning.

The ordination of fifteen young men to the office of Elder was endorsed, on their promise to magnify their calling.

Elder John W. Taylor felt that although business customs prevented attendance of young men at Saturday Priesthood meetings, no such excuse could be offered for absence from quarterly meetings. Free thought and free speech were referred to as a necessary heritage of the Latter-day Saints. The association of the young people with those not of their faith tendered it imperative that parents and church officers should in their power to prevent defection from the Church ranks. The social power was likely to prove stronger than Church influence. Proof of this was referred to in the small attendance at the conference and in the great number of marriages of Latter-day Saints to those not of their faith. Referring to popular superstitions prevalent in the community, he classed them all as evil, and recommended the custom of seeking familiar spirits, the Saints should seek after the Priesthood and its blessings through the proper channels. Men and women, "unequally yoked together" would never fill their mission properly, for the reason that the spirit of the Gospel would be more or less quenched by close association with uncbelievers. Therefore, the very earliest of such associations should be the signal for prompt and efficient action on the part of parents and those in authority.

Referring to various influences of a religious character intended to lead the young people astray, the speaker gave point first and more than the teachings promised by these can be found in the Gospel of Christ. The duty of men to shelter, feed and educate their children, was strongly emphasized, and neglect in this regard characterized as cowardly and contrary to the will of God. Carelessness in training children in the ways of God and keeping them from ignorance and neglect of the principles of the Gospel, was strongly deprecated, for the evils so prevalent among the people could be overcome only by care and vigilance in the training of children, who are the strength of Zion. The speaker closed with a denunciation of the tendency of the people to criticise unjustly the labors and character of prominent Elders and other authorities of the Church, and an exhortation to earnest preparation for the coming of Christ.

The choir and congregation sang the hymn:

Glorious, we pass to dwell
Where for the blessings free
We have sighed.

Benediction by Patriarch John Smith.

THE BUSINESS MAN'S LUNCH.

Hard Work and Indigestion go Hand in Hand.

Concentrated thought, continued in echo the stomach of ordinary blood, and this is also true of hard physical labor.

When a few horse power engine is made to do the work of many horses it soon begins to break down. Very often the back aching man coming from the field or the office will look for his food in a few minutes which will take hours to digest. Then too, many foods are about as useful in the stomach as a bag of oats would be in a fire under a boiler. The ill used stomach refuses to do its work without the proper stimulus which it gets from the blood and nerves. The nerves are weak and "ready to break." Because they do not get the nourishment they require from the blood, finally the ill used brain is partially withdrawn when the overworked man attempts to find rest in bed.

The application of common sense to the treatment of the stomach and the whole system brings to the busy man the full enjoyment of good healthy digestion when he takes Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to relieve a fellow stomach or after a too hearty meal, and the Doctor's Golden Medical Discovery for nutritive, tonic and alterative blood. The "Pellets" are the sugar coated pills made of highly concentrated vegetable medicines which relieve the stomach of all offending matter easily and thoroughly. They need only be taken for a short time to cure the dyspeptic, bilious and constipated. The Golden Medical Discovery then the "Medical Discovery" should be taken in teaspoonful doses to increase the blood and enrich it. It has a peculiar tonic effect upon the digestive organs of the stomach and bowels, toning up and strengthening them for all time. The whole system feels the effect of the good nourishment coming through the body and nerves are strengthened and strengthened, and disturbed, so that to sleep, as the so-called sober community and dense minded people call it, is a real boon and one that they need for health. If you suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, sick headache and any of the ills which come from impure blood and disordered stomach, you can cure yourself with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which can be obtained at any drug store in the country.

DOWN WITH FEES.

were entitled to per diem for each day spent in the county's service, and to mileage only to the regular sessions of the county court; and whole the court was in session several succeeding days, mileage could be charged once only. A saddle-bill the county evidently can charge mileage. As to the questions submitted by the jury, he would make no special replies, but they might be kept on a record.

The grand jury then retired to further consider the county business under the rulings of the court.

Land Office.

A Desperate Encounter.

It was in the latter part of the summer of 1849, about thirty miles from Santa Fe now, in the Territory of New Mexico. The government troops were near Santa Fe and making day for their cavalry horses. There being no tame hay in the country they had to resort to wild grass to supply their wants. It was on this occasion that one of the most desperate fights occurred, though little has ever been said or written about it. The Comanche Indians in those days were a warlike people and as daring a foe of Uncle Sam's men as ever met on the plains in a battle, and they were not conquered by many years afterwards as a tribe. It was in the month of August, 1849, while a small squad of government employes were camped several miles from the post for the purpose of putting up hay for the post. It is the one whose duty it was to do most of the cooking for the little squad that related this story and it is true in every particular as related to me. His body bore many scars; and as he told the story of how he came by them, knowing him, as I did, I did not doubt his word.

In the early morning as his duty called him up earlier than any one else to prepare breakfast, he was busy preparing the meal. A little after broad daylight, before any one else of the company had arisen, he heard a distant noise; quickly turning his face in the direction the sound came from, a sight greeted his eyes not very pleasant to behold. Only about three hundred yards from camp on the prairie, in full gallop, from three to five hundred warriors of the Comanches on horseback were advancing, all in their best war paint. The alarm was quickly given; the commissary sergeant who had the key to the meat wherein was the most of the ammunition, as soon as he rose from his blankets took to his heels as fast as he could run in the opposite direction from where the Indians were coming. As another was rising from his bed he was struck in the stomach by an arrow; the next second another was hit in the forehead and his days on earth were at an end; another followed the sergeant, which left only nine out of the twelve. This sent send deadly answers to the message that the savages had already sent into the little camp of whites. There were some hands went up amongst the Indians and some screams—but they were so factioned to their horses that it was not easy to tell just what effect the shots had had. When only about thirty yards distant they turned and galloped away to a safe distance, some 300 yards, there holding a consultation. In the meantime, though nearly every one of the surviving whites had received wounds, none were fatal. They broke open the ammunition chest with the butts of their muskets and got to the ammunition, but found they only had six rounds left. This was only procured in time, for by this time the savages were on the return at full speed and yelling at the top of their voices. When in easy range for a most effectual fire, they got a good slap and in return gave the whites one with interest. This charge was not broken, but they dashed right into camp and many of them dismounted. By this time it became a hand-to-hand struggle for life or death, and by the time the six rounds were fired only three were left to tell what had happened. During his absence by the hard blows which it was easily to be seen, he received in the struggle, one of them got out of their way.

Strange to say, when the white's ammunition gave out the Indians ceased to fire on them any more, and commenced to pillage the camp. The survivor spoke of was shot with an arrow that struck the arm just the below the shoulder and split off a piece of the bone of the arm, entering the side and piercing his arm to the elbow. He took the arrow just outside the arm and broke it off, pushed the balance of the arrow through the arm and then pulled it out of his side; this freed his arm to use his gun as a club. He made his escape to a neighboring mill not far away. Though pierced with arrows in many places he declared this wound the most from loss of blood, and he was not able to travel far.

Twenty hours afterwards, when he was found by the soldiers, he was more dead than alive. When the camp was explored the soldiers found twenty-seven places that bore unmistakable evidence where bore number of the Indians had left the dead.

OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, DEC. 5, 1895.

Junction City News.

Mrs. Grace Pearce met with an accident at the depot yesterday. Returning home from market day, the young lady was crossing the track at the Union depot while the Southern Pacific train was coming in. She slipped down to get out of the way, when the Rio Grande train, which she did not see, was backing up and struck her on the head knocking her down and inflicting a scalp wound which, however, is not very serious.

D. H. Ensign who had two boys arrested in the First ward for disturbing the peace outside the meeting house, informed Justice Bagley that he did not wish to prosecute the charges. The justice accordingly gave them a severe reprimand and discharged them.

PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, DEC. 7, 1895.

First District Court.

The case of the United States vs David Thomas, forfeiture, took up all the time of the First district court yesterday afternoon and afternoon and was given to the jury at 5 o'clock. At a quarter to 10 they were brought in and reported they had not agreed; they were instructed to bring in a sealed verdict this morning.

An evening session was held and a jury empanelled to try the case of the People vs Edward Booth. The indictment charges defendant with the crime of rape, committed at Payson on the night of the 19th of November, the victim being Mrs. Rosina Bott alias Rosina Frei, who is a widow, about 25 years of age, living in the outskirts of Payson with five children.

After brief arguments by counsel the jury was informed and retired at 9:10 o'clock. They returned at 9:20 and rendered a verdict of guilty. Time of sentence set for Saturday, the 14th inst., when a motion for a new trial will be made.

This morning the jury in the Thomas forfeiture case came in and reported that they could not agree, and were discharged. Today sixty ten for acquittal and two for conviction.

Notes and Personals.

Judge Rolapp created a favorable impression among the attorneys and spectators by the dignified and able manner in which he conducted business in the First district court yesterday.

Last evening, while Mr. Ralph Poulton, of the Second ward, was away from home a burglar broke into the house, rummaged through every place where he could think money was concealed, but he had his pains for nothing.

An interesting session of the Brigham Young Academy Polysophical society was held last evening. Major Harry C. Hill, of Salt Lake City, delivered an instructive lecture on Cuba. Musical selections by the students added pleasure to the meeting.

The board of directors of the insane asylum held a meeting yesterday, transacting a great deal of business preparatory to getting the biennial report of the institution in proper shape for presentation to the next Legislature.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 120 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at Z. C. M. I. Drug Dept.
