The Russian Government Will Order Some.

NEW YORK, March 5.—American City boats are available at once to remove to Russia on transit, and it is probable that in the course of the next six months orders will be given to the country for from six to ten Yankee navy cutters to be made in Boston, Great Lakes, of St. Petersburg, manager of the Russian Steamship Company, arriving in this city. He has now left for the Russian capital to report to the advisability of sending engineers and furnishing furniture for the Russian cruiser navigation. He expects from the Russian minister and will sail for Southampton Wednesday. Today he will inspect the Brooklyn, Washington and High bridges.

"I am now in favor of ferryboats like bridges," he said last night. "A bridge taken from three to eight years to build and will cost from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. We can get ferry boats in about 30 days and cost, and they are in no way interfering five across the river I think they will prove more satisfactory.

"I will make my official report when I return to Petersburg, where I intend personally to be present when the minister authorized to enter some ferryboats in the Hudson government. If they are built here, they will be constructed, taken apart and shipped to Russia. American workmen will have to go there to put them together.

HAYWARD TRIAL.

Closing Acts of the Tragic Drama.

MIDDLETOWN, March 5.—The closing act in the trial of Charles Hayward began this morning, Hopkins and attendant counsel brought E. H. Hayes, the sick lover, into court and deposited him in a wheelchair in the dock. Dyer, the county attorney, rose to address the jury. He has was seven pale and it was not seen, as he leaned against a table, that he could stand upon his feet five hours' talk. However, before he had been talking twenty minutes he came sang out like a lamb and his crooked spine straightened so which held not to the rack.

Briefly but effectively he sketched the career of Harry Hayward, his association with Dora Hall, his influence over the "dear girl." Hall. The crime and been committed by Hiatt at the instigation of Hayward, but it strongly tended to show that he was the guiding hand. After it was committed, remorse, horror of himself. No man could plunge the spear of the horror Hiatt underwent after the commission of the crime, until he confess to tell the truth.

THE COURTS TODAY.

Chief Justice Merritt Still Working Upon Civil Jury Cases.

A WITNESS WHO WILL NOT ANSWER.

An Accounting as Between John Beck and Alonzo E. Hyde Before a Referee.

The first case tried in Chief Justice Merritt's court today was that of J. H. Hollander vs. the Rattlesnake Gulch Co., the plaintiff being represented by Attorney R. D. Winders and the defendants by Attorney J. H. Moyle. It was an appeal from Commissioner Greenman's judgment.

Suit was originally brought to recover the sum of $[illegible], with interest and costs. One H. H. Ivie was the former proprietor of the L. S. L. livery stable in this city, and it was alleged that during his ownership, between February and June, 1892, he boarded and stabled certain horses belonging to the defendants, for which a bill of $[illegible] was incurred. It was further claimed that the sum of $[illegible] was due for horse hire in the month of March of the same year, making a total of $[illegible]. Later Fox assigned the whole account to the plaintiff, Hollander, but the defendants refused to pay it, setting forth that Fox was indebted to them in the sum of $[illegible], and that the understanding was the bill then outstanding for stabling and horse hire should be applied upon it. In the lower court the defendants rendered judgment for $[illegible] and costs taken at $[illegible]. From this the appeal was taken.

The case went in the jury about [illegible].
