PORTO RICANS ARE RESTLESS.

Munoz Rivera will Leave for Cuba and Washington.

DEMAND CIVIL GOVERNMENT

Ex-Secretary of State for the Island Asks for Withdrawal of U. S. Troops.

San Juan de Porto Rico, March 6.—[Correspondence of the Associated Press.]—Munoz Rivera, until recently secretary of state in the Porto Rican cabinet and the most accomplished politician in the island, will leave here on March 10th for Cuba, where he will hold conference with the Cuban party and then proceed to the United States. In Washington he will, it is said, endeavor to attach the military government without attacking the military governor. He will demand a civil government for his people who are now bitterly warring among themselves for political supremacy, and he will urge the withdrawal of American troops from the most important strategic base possessed by the United States in Atlantic waters.

It is known in a chosen few that Munoz will endeavor to effect an entente with the Cuban leaders and will seek to unite his cause with that of the Cubans.

Frequent publication is made in the local papers of letters that pass between the two islands on the subject of American rule in Porto Rico.

The Porto Rican editors of Spanish tendencies and the followers of Munoz Rivera refer with sympathy to the conduct of the Cubans, who they say, worked as a united people for their independence.

Since his deposition from the cabinet by General Henry, Rivera's party has been the subject of a vigorous attack by the radicals.

Hermanio Diaz, the new secretary of justice, was appointed by General Henry as a representative of the liberal party and because of his relations with Rivera, whom the general desired to treat with consideration. Three of the four newspapers of Ponce began a campaign of abuse against Diaz and the military government.

They were warned to moderate the tone of their articles, but the warning passed unheeded. One morning last week the citizens of Ponce missed their papers, and upon going down town, found the office occupied by American troops, who had been ordered by the district commander to close the establishments. The office of one of the papers refused to submit to the officer who took possession of his office. In an altercation that followed the editor drew his knife. A soldier from Missouri, in the excitement of the moment, used his bat with almost deadly effect upon the fighting journalist. It was some hours before the latter revived.

Many unfortunate collisions between drunken soldiers and native men have contributed to the undercurrent of bad feeling that runs among the lower classes.

In a recent trip around the island a general feeling of discontent and unrest was discovered.

There are a great many idle men all over the island and the great army of attaches and hangers-on that were a part of the Spanish system and which maintained an enormous burden for the taxpayers, are being discharged.

The prospect of building the remainder of the proposed railroad system by the French railroad company is hailed with delight by the laboring men of the island.

A representative of the railroad has been traveling about the island recently preparing plans for the extension of the road.

Planters and laborers alike pray for the completion of the road. The company is anxious to complete the work, and is now arranging some details with the local government. M. Charpentier, who has been here for several months, studying this matter, will depart for Washington on the steamer San Marcos. He will urge upon the President and the secretary of war, a recognition of the contract and concession of the French company.

The new insular police has been organized and employment will be given to more than 200 men who will aid the army and the municipal police in preserving order. This body will be conducted on the military plans, and in many respects corresponds to the Guardia Civil of Spain and Mexico.

The politicians here are beginning to see the firm and impartial method of the governor general is a wise one. To clearly define his position, the following order was recently addressed to the municipalities, dated February 20:

"Alcaldes and councilmen are reminded that orders issued by law be obeyed. In one case the alcalde and council resigned because they supposed they had orders from me not agreeable to them. No order had been given, but if it had been and not carried out, the course of our council would have been contumacious and in defiance of authority and other action would have followed instead of resignations being accepted.

"It cannot be too strongly impressed upon municipal councils that the interests of the municipalities depend upon their honesty, zeal and attention to duty. Without these the people they represent suffer, and the progress of the island is held back. No more important body of men exists than the various councils, and the people should insist upon being properly represented by their best men and no others, and it should be considered an honor to hold such positions of responsibility.

"They must learn one lesson, however, and that is, that before they govern others or make proper example to people, they must govern themselves and obey respectively all local orders, submitting to the will of the majority, which will always be remedied.

"By command of Major General Henry.

W. P. HALL,
Adjutant General."

Jail Delivery in Colorado.

Denver, Colo., March 15.—Emmet Ayres, who is under conviction for the murder in the second degree and Jas. Markey, a certain chief, escaped from the county jail by sawing their way through the bars of a window and jumping to the ground.

Welcome Rainfall in California.

San Francisco, Cal., March 15.—The drouth which was threatening the loss of millions of dollars to the State has been broken by a rain storm, which promises to continue for several days. Nearly an inch of moisture has already been distributed over the Sacramento valley. Reports show that both grain and fruit crops are in excellent condition throughout the big valley, and the present storm with usual spring showers, will cause abundant harvests.

A light precipitation is reported from Stockton and other points in the San Joaquin valley, with indications of a generous downpour. The same conditions exist in the Santa Clara valley. In both sections rain is badly needed. Solano and Sonoma counties report a goodly variation. The crops in these sections are in excellent condition and great harvests of fruit and grain are assured.

Only a trace of rain has fallen in the southern coast counties, but, as elsewhere, indications point to a big rainstorm where it is needed more than in any other part of the State.

Chicago Plumbers Will Raise Prices.

Chicago, March 15.—At a secret session of the Central Trade Association, comprising manufacturers and jobbers of plumbers supplies from the territory surrounding Chicago for several hundred miles laid here for the purpose of discussing prices, it was decided to advance prices after the expiration of two weeks and then to make a second advance later in the spring.

Raid on "Hookies" at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., March 15.—Chief of Police Lees declares that he will continue to make daily raids at the Ingleside race track until betting on the events is stopped. He says:

"The supervisors have passed an ordinance declaring that betting on horse races and coursing events must stop and the new law will be rigidly enforced."

The cases of the bookmakers and others already under arrest will be fought vigorously in the courts, according to statements made by Ed. Cornwall, who is associated in the management of the track. In the meantime it is proposed to ignore the ordinance, if possible, notwithstanding the uncompromising attitude of the authorities. Several of the down town pool rooms have been closed and the police promise to raid others. Coursing will be resumed at Ingleside on Friday, but it is possible that the management will permit no betting until the legality of the ordinance is judicially determined.

Six Men Arrive from the Bound Steamer.

Seattle, Washington, March 15.—A letter from Captain W. H. Parker, master of the barge Admiral, which is in winter quarters five miles off St. Michaels, says: "Six men have arrived from the North American Transportation and Trading company's steamer P. B. Weare, which is bound in the Yukon, near Holy Cross mission. The men do not think they will be able to save her in the spring. Seven men left the steamer, but one got lost coming down and the others think he was frozen to death."

IMPRISONED IN COLORADO MINE.

Two Foreigners Shut in by a Cavein for a Week at Leadville.

Leadville, Colo., March 11.—It was hoped to rescue today Charles Rosso and Albert Frey, the foreigners, who have been imprisoned in the Iron Air mine six days in consequence of the caving in of the walls of the shaft, but the rescuing party was disappointed. A new shaft was sunk to a depth of seventy-three feet and a drift was then run to the old shaft, but it was found to be clogged at that point with broken timbers and debris. It is therefore necessary to sink the new shaft further and the two men will remain prisoners under ground some time longer. They are well supplied with provisions and are not suffering much hardship.

Australian Girls Feinitize from America.

Washington, March 15.—Timothy Howard of Boston, who will take charge of the government telegraph and telephone system of that country, is in the United States making an investigation of American methods on these lines. He has been in consultation with the postmaster general and other officials and will observe the installation of a complete service service in the postoffice building here. Mr. Howard will report to his government the results of his investigations, which deal with the establishment, management, bookkeeping and other phases of the telephone and telegraph business.

CUBA DAY BY DAY.

Military Assembly as a Factor in Restoration of Order a Dismal Failure.

New York, March 16.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Havana says:

The elimination of the so-called military assembly as an order not agreeable to them, and the restoration of order and the establishment of government in Cuba, seems now as pressing as ever.

Interest has practically ceased in the fulminations of that extraordinary and irresponsible body, which seeks to perpetuate its growth under conditions which have long ago demonstrated its failure and uselessness.

A few days ago one of its frothiest orators compared this moribund assembly to the history making constitutional assembly which met at Vermida to 1869, and completed his simile by likening Gomez to an old of the century. Mirabeau, who had entered into negotiations with another Marie Antoinette.

Not a single newspaper in Havana, Cuban or Spanish, has yet had a word to say in defense of the assembly's attempt to depose Gen. Gomez, although the editor of one of the more radical Cuban organs, La Discusion, sits in the assembly and casts his vote with the majority for the revocation of the commission. Ther was an urgent request for silence, however, on this editor's part, for, curiously enough, the hackers and dockers in newspapers here unanimously agreed to circulate no journal which contained attacks on the deposed general in chief.

That Gen. Brooke would continue to recognize Gen. Gomez as the only responsible agent through whom the payments of arrears to the Cuban soldiery could be made, has been a favorite contention for several days.

This morning the Cuban commander visited the governor general's headquarters by invitation and the two had a friendly talk on the best means of carrying the distribution into effect.

The Moorish, which carries the Blanco 000 allotment, is expected to arrive here before the end of the week and after a conference between the two generals was over, it was announced that payment would be begun promptly under the conditions compiled in the original settlement with the Washington authorities.

The decision virtually dissolves the military assembly, for there is now no prospect that the commission appointed yesterday to visit the United States and appeal to the United States for authority to contract a larger loan, and even vouch the Federal capital before the army receives the promised arrears and the process of disbandment begins.

KLONDIKE A THING OF THE PAST.

Denver Evening Post.

While it comes somewhat late to be of much benefit, the report of Captain Patrick Henry Ray, of the army, just submitted by the war office to Congress now, than substantiates everything that has been said about the fraud practiced upon the public to induce it to join the mad rush to the Klondike expedition. According to this report there is nothing in Alaska or the Northwest territory to justify such a rush. Numerous other extraordinary schemes have been made, and, while the whole country has been swept and swept, it was only left to catch "suckers" in the East. The crop was both heavy and valuable.

Captain Ray has in his report cited Canadian officials who have denounced the boom as an infernal fraud and goes so far as to intimate that stockjobbing the river boats was about the only paying business in the Klondike. He cannot tell what proportion of the people going into the country will do for a living. The ruling rate of interest in Dawson is from 36 to 72 per cent per month, which in itself gives a fair idea of the speculative condition of the Klondike mania.

People were warned from the very start not to attempt to go there unless they were able to pay the cost of the expedition, or to support themselves in comfort, if possible, notwithstanding the uncompromising attitude of the authorities. Several of the down town pool rooms have been closed and the police promise to raid others. Coursing will be resumed at Ingleside on Friday, but it is possible that the management will permit no betting until the legality of the ordinance is judicially determined.

THE FRANCO-GERMAN ALLIANCE.

[Collier's Weekly.]

For those who want to talk of politics, and yet are determined to dodge the Dreyfus affair, the main subject of discussion is just now the possibility of a Franco-German alliance. It was Jules Lemaitre, the distinguished academician, upon whom outer literary glory has so pelted that he is now enthroned in the French Academy, who first, so he found in his heart the pluck to try this upon the French public.

Lemaitre, who has accepted his first article on the question, sent the rounds of the Paris editors, who, like the editors everywhere, knew a good thing. I could name, entertain curious superstitions as to what will happen to the inventor, but, without any such superstition, Monsieur Lemaitre, that he could be induced to "touch" this Franco-German alliance proposal. At last, however, Valentin Simond got in touch in "L'Echo de Paris," having probably devised some plan to pacify the Dreyfus party, for the advertising strength of this last insult to the second crusade was all spent.

And now Valentin Simond and his confreres are amazed to hear the echo of approval which is rolling to them from all over the country. It is true, though many seers but waiting for a signal to let out in print or by word of mouth what had been whispered secretly upon their minds, namely, that the time has passed when an effort should have been made to reconquer Alsace-Lorraine; that the frank, open abandonment of all idea of revenge is now imperative if France is not to die of this cancerous notion, which professional patriots have been fostering in her flanks for almost thirty years.

After the war of 1870-71, France, bleeding, ransomed, discovered, was left to contend with humiliation and physical pain and sound that she would not rest until avenged. Her ransom was exacted, more enlightened, hence more sceptical of success in the contemplated onslaught, was paid, and of the adherents of such a success even.

"They known that Alsace, even when under the yoke, was French in spirit, if German in language, customs and manners; that today there are in the Alsatian population of Germany, Germans and only one hundred and forty thousand people of French origin, most of whom, if they have received a liberal education, served in the German army, been thoroughly Germanized; that, in short, if a question of whether Alsace or even Lorraine, would want to come back at all.

Take A Tonic

How's that? We said "Take a Tonic." Why, we were "called down" by every druggist in the West—thought we were advising against the use of medicine. Well, isn't it better to drink Krug Cabinet Beer then it is to take medicine? Consume Krug Cabinet, for moderation, and you'll find it enjoyable to say the least. You know it's pure; its foreign taste has the natural flavor, so uncommon. Druggists use it themselves to the exclusion of the inferior kinds so numerous.
