you amount of schedule and division for the county part of the building. When you will please consider that there are fifty-three rooms to be provided for in the county part alone—and a the number for the city portion—and that my efforts directed to have my part thereof properly prepared for it cannot be but your desire to so have it done) you will please perceive that it has been impossible for me as yet to give a definite reply to your request with "to-morrow" until such preliminary work is done. I log of you to please not imagine that I wish to "blow my own horn," yet since my arrival here I have worked over sixteen hours out of my twenty-four on such plans and schedules and willingly would do more if I could stand it, and further, I may be permitted to state, as just as soon as you can decide and use every endeavor not to throw away any time or money through caprice to our your advantage alone. The understanding arrived at (yesterday your approval) with H. E. of the county committee is to believe that I am to add 10 per cent to cut of cities on total amount of contract, of which 10 per cent is to go to the members of committee and 5 per cent to the architect and so, with we to receive 10 cent above the price, the total amount of contract to be paid for in cash and certain sum to be paid at such times during the construction of work as you may deem advisable and have put in contract. I cannot as yet definitely state the amount that for county part of building, but believe that it will be from $18,000 to $20,000, and for city part nearly as much more. I shall be obliged to have you so report of this letter who the I could arrangement, in order to suit you. As stated before the county will pay cash, but the city as great is rather hard up, but the cash will be passed, and in fact the sentiment of the whole people here are for it and will send the mayor and a committee up to Washington to help Congressmen from below to have Congress pass an enabling act to increase the amount vacation of the city 2 per cent, which it passed by Congress will give to the city the "wherewithal" to run pay cash and go ahead at once. At any rate we will by having the county part, supply the city part—see letter of later on. In another letter anxious I respectfully submit the information you desire regarding court house at Grand Haven, so also request for certain information and plans of articles as mentioned, and positive needed for court house here—requesting answer by return mail.

That my request to "personal" regard correspondence from here, may have been surprising to you, may be now sufficiently answered by your statement that "Mr. Cannon is no longer with you"—for I not heard from confidential letters written by him to certain parties here that such would happen, and I have felt that perhaps accidentally he might have access to my correspondence to your company, and so as to avoid possible competition arising from such thought it best to "guard from."

In conclusion I mention that Mr. Thompson has informed me that county commissioners signed and now on his way to New Orleans and expects to return from there to here in about two weeks to work on city contract. A letter received from Mr. Cary—also on today—will be answered by me on tomorrow—after consulting attorney in De Witt matter—as he requested.

Hoping to hear from you, believe me to be,

Yours very respectfully,

P.S.—What if anything have you to us pleased to do about "Drexel?"

The initials "H. B." in the letter were, evidently "J. B.," "J. B.," or "J. M." Judge Powers was asked if they possibly were intended to mean Herman Bamberger, but Hayken was very sure that they did not and that he might have made a mistake in writing.

Judge Powers resumed the cross-examination of Hayken at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but he had asked only a question or two when he discovered that the defendant was not present. Expressing his regret to the court for the delay occasioned by Mr. Morris' absence, Judge Powers announced that a couple of exceptions were sure to count of the defendant and it was expected that he would soon come in. It was 2:35 when Mr. Morris appeared and the trial proceeded with.

Witness Hayken testified that he could not explain why he had put into that letter the initials of Herman Bamberger instead of those of Joseph R. Morris; did not have Bamberger in his mind at the time of writing. Morris had talked with him previous to January 14, 1894, upon the percentage; Morris had never asked for 25 per cent, neither had he offered to sell 15 per cent; got to see Mr. Andrews & Co. over and show the true amount of the bill against the county; when I wrote that letter I had not figured up the total amount of the excess; don't remember that in my direct examination I said my first talk with Morris was in January, and that subsequent to the date of the letter.

Winnie, however, admitted having testified yesterday that Morris added bills to figure the amount of excess in January or February, 1894, and at that time he wrote to see how it was the percentage. Also that the talk on percentage with Morris was after the figures in the contract were completed and that those totals had not been figured up when he wrote that letter to the Sun on January 14th.

Witness continued—My first conversation with Morris on the percentage proposition did not include any other papers or papers; afterwards Morris asked 5 per cent to the members and I willingly made a contract to them and; I did not pay Morris any money to my knowledge on the architect's 5 per cent; the very man who drawing up "Drexel?" in 1894 was Joseph R. Morris; I remember that the Sun was written to by my letter of January 14th that he had sent Morris a copy.

The letter was shown to Hayken and he quoted the sheets as being alike.

Witness was sure in his letter to the Sun of selling Drexel; he is a bright Weekly; there is a man down in one with a certain convention which will be a decided; calling my career to a conclusion; I have never been acquainted with Mr. Sifting Brown; state business only; I was requested to consider the influence of any one in my dealings with Drexel; I think was only one man who said to me with a proposition to add a percentage to the purchase price of the premises; that was Joseph R. Morris.

Judge Powers put the witness on a severe test and he being confronted Hayken, Morris was made to jump Another. The defense is exerting great efforts to shake the testimony of the witness given to his latest claim's evidence and is being every thing

THE BIG CIRCUS.

The Performance at the Syndicate Shows Given to a Large Audience Last Night.

The first of the three days' performances to be given by the Syndicate shows have commenced promptly at 8 o'clock last evening and the monster show tent was a living mass of human forms, all eager to see and hear everything that was to be seen and heard.

The performance opened with the grand entree which was participated in by all of the performers upon horseback together with the elephants, camels, dromedaries and hands in line. At the rear of the tail the procession closed and the evening's entertainment commenced. In the race of impossibilities Sells Bros. Sixteen beat at a disadvantage, owing to the very moist condition of the ground caused by the recent rains, but the work done was fully up to that seen at such exhibitions. The bicycle riding was gone and the horizontal bar work was excelled in one also the flying trapeze performance, including the daring leap for life. The performing seals displayed great susceptibility to training, readily obeying orders, counting, spelling and ringing bells and other interesting things. The showers did their part to amuse amusing the crowd. The performances closed with the great Farm Improvement.

The circus side shows carry a good menagerie with them and animals of many kinds were seen. After the performance was over the usual after concert was given and a great number remained, bound to see all there was to see. Tonight at 7 p.m. Prof. Rogers made his leap for life from the high portable tower. Tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night other performances will be given and no doubt crowds will be in attendance drinking the strawberry lemonade and eating the "honey soaked" peanuts while the show goes on.

A large audience was in attendance at the afternoon's performances and to-show people were seen it decidedly seemed to be good that so late evening. Tomorrow at 11 a. m. another grand parade will be given, and the public will doubtless flow the streets to witness the free exhibition of wild beasts and hear the music of the bands and seven calliopes.

ELECTRICAL SHAKE-UP.

Passengers on a Wabash Street Car Have a Thrilling Experience.

Passengers on the Wabash street car one in this city at 8 a.m. today were subjected to a most thrilling experience, and that no one was killed is not less than miraculous.

The cause seems to have been the falling of a telegraph pole, which being wet it was easily and completely charged with electricity, dislodging and igniting sparks and causing the horses to become uncontrollable. For two blocks, behind and all around a terrified horse, went up and down in rapid succession, the horses and the street car, the passengers, panic stricken, rested pell mell for passengers of scraps. One of them, Thomas Mair, was caught in the coils of the wires and was dragged for quite a distance before he was finally released. His experience during that brief period of unpleasant transportation, he intimates, was the most thrilling one he ever had. Mair's head was dragged from the wire's little, an inspection of his apparel disclosed the fact that his pocketbook had been completely emptied by coming in contact with the electrical flame. Besides that he received a vigorous shaking up. He was cast home in a carriage and the company's physician dispatched to his residence to care for him. Later in the day he was so far recovered as to visit the wires for his early morning flow.

A STRADDLE MEANS GOLD.

So Says Chairman Powers in Response to a New York Reporter's Request for Information.

The Journal of New York has recently been piping the chairmen of Democratic State Central committees throughout the West and South with questions on the probable action of their delegation at the Chicago convention in regard to the subject of Judge Powers yesterday afternoon received the following:

O. W. Powers—Your views in an expression upon the convention at Chicago may exert a good place. If you can find time should obtain control much that is now opposition. Is it not by the free silver men of the Western and South with desire to support the nominee, Democrat will be weaker in your Democracy and keep the faith. With a good place a full quota of delegates. I hope you will speak for the interests in the national convention. Time so now will be governed by the action of the Democratic convention. Compromise plans this year will be unsatisfactory. A straddle means gold.

WILL WONDER THINK.

In response to the said request for information Senator McDaniel sent the following:

If the West and South come to favor of silver in Chicago and are defeated by the gold party, it is very evident that the silver democrats will refuse to support the gold platform. The delegates from this state will instruct us to carry out any plan of action that secures the unanimous approval of the silver men. In my opinion no compromise plank can be drawn that will be acceptable to the silver Democrats, except on the basis of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

Trading on 'Change.

Stock markets belong to that class of things that cannot be depended upon. Particularly is this characteristic evident in the case of a mining market. The stocks may be high today and low tomorrow, or vice versa, there is no telling. Trading may be exceedingly dull one day and decidedly dull the next. Yesterday the Salt Lake mining stock market was marked with great activity, today it was just the reverse. The brokers, however assume they may have been to transact business, and not succeed in putting many sales to the list of transfers. They started out to excellent spirits, but did not keep it up, and the consequence was that a dull day was the result.

Alice was the favorite of the day and she is now running up five hundred shares, with the closing quotation very close to twenty cents. Dauntless left a little and a little off, the three changing hands to $9,000. Yesterday no sales of this stock were made, but there was a demand for purchases at that figure. Dauntless was 5 cents with the sales of 100 shares sold. Utah Consolidated Rim was marked up a couple of the stock sold at 2 cents, and Ontario was quoted at the $2 mark. Not a the 150 point spot I was very little changed.

Below is the report of the day's trading on the mining exchange and the transfers aggregated 3,000 shares.
