Frightful Accident as the Result of a Cartridge Shell Explosion.

ARREST FOR A RECENT MURDER.

Attempt to Escape from a Penitentiary.—Building Fatality.—A Stockyards Company Suspends.

A new Democratic paper is to be started at Sheridan, Wyoming.

William Evans, arrested July 12, at Cut Camp, in the chaparral of San Andreas county, Cal., for the murder of Wells, Fargo's messenger, Dewey in Amador county, June 11, has made a full confession.

A prisoner named Cady at the Deer Lodge (Montana) penitentiary made an unsuccessful attempt to escape Wednesday morning. He started up the Deer Lodge river but the bloodhounds overtook him about a mile from town. He is safely caged again.

Eloff Green, who is hunting sheep for Joseph Beck in the east mountains, says the Mount Pleasant Pyramid killed a large brown bear one day last week. Bruin seems to take a great many liberties this season with the sheep herds, and some extreme measures for protection are being taken.

Dr. Henry's ride at Lincoln, N. M., has brought a flood of water down the Middle Peccos seven feet high. Andrew Kelly's four-mule team, loaded with 100 sacks of Kansas corn, was caught in the box canyon below town. Two of the mules were drowned, the wagon destroyed and the corn washed away, only four sacks being recovered thus far.

The Union Stockyards company at Rodeo, on the line of the Southern Pacific railway in Contra Costa county, Cal., have suspended operations and shippers were notified not to send any more cattle to the yards. The immediate cause of the cessation was the inability of one of the two packing companies to continue under existing financial conditions.

Crops in the Wet Mountain valley, Colorado, are not nearly so poor, it is said, as some have reported. Of course in some localities the hay and grain will be a little short, but these splendid rains will help all the crops immensely. Potato crop promises to be splendid. One rancheman we have in mind says he will raise one-fourth enough potatoes to supply the entire county.

David Dibble has been arraigned before Justice Noe on a charge of taking water from Maple canyon stream without the permission of the watermaster. The defendant entered a plea of not guilty and denied the right of the city to control the waters of Deertrees. As it was proven that he had used the water without the permission, he was adjudged guilty, and Fined $10. He will take an appeal to the district court.—Springville Independent.

Claude, the 13-year-old son of J. H. Hildebrandt, was drowned Friday afternoon in a water tank on the Pioneer laundry, at Virginia, Nevada. The drowned lad with a younger brother, was on a raft floating in the tank and fell into the water striking immediately. His brother notified the employes at the laundry. As the tank is located on a steep hill, a quarter of a mile above the laundry, the body had been under water nearly half an hour before it was recovered, and all efforts to resuscitate proved unavailing.

A Buffalo (Wyo.) dispatch says that S. W. Miller of Company A, Eighth Cavalry, stationed at Fort McKinney, was almost instantly killed on Wednesday by being run over by a heavily loaded wagon. Miller was on extra duty and employed in the quartermaster's department as teamster. While coming from the government corrall with a load of lumber on a hill the brake became worthless, causing the team to run. Miller tried to drive himself clear of the saddle mule, but failed and the wagon passed over his body, and he died in fifteen minutes.

On Thursday afternoon two young men of Sacramento, Cal., named Wm. E. Hopkey and Harry Waite were bathing in the Sacramento river just below the mouth of the American. Hopkey was suddenly seized with cramps and called to Waite that he was drowning. The latter went to his assistance, all once and endeavored to rescue him. Before he could reach him Hopkey had sunk twice. Just as he was going down for the third time Waite caught him and attempted to swim to shore with him. Hopkey grabbed him, and the two were sinking when Waite managed to free himself from the drowning man. Hopkey then sank and was seen no more.

Frank Jacobs, Nathan Livingston and a Chinaman were the victims of a fire that went out on Tuesday, at San Francisco. The Chinaman was engaged in cleaning some cartridge shells in a junk yard and the white men were looking on. Suddenly there was an explosion and all at once some 500 cartridges in flames, which for an instant threatened to destroy the building. The men were rescued by workmen who had rushed to the scene at the sound of the explosion. They were promptly taken to the receiving hospital, where all were found to be terribly burned about the chest, arms and face. The name of the unfortunate Chinaman is Ging Fang. Livingston, Ah Sonny, who is one of the wealthiest residents of Chinatown, recently bought the junk establishment and placed Ging in charge. According to the story of these men, who were in the place on business connected with the settlement of the bunch, the Chinaman was emptying a lot of cartridges and at the same time cleaning the shells. He had accumulated quite a pile of powder from the cartridges and this became ignited somehow and the explosion accidentally discharged. The Chinaman fell the force of the explosion, and is so badly injured that he can not recover. Jacobs was the most injured of the three. His hands were badly burned and his eyebrows and hair were singed, but his injuries are slight compared to those of Livingston and the Chinaman. Both Livingston and Jacobs are married.
