CLOSE OF THE JOINT CONVENTION

Crowded Meeting Held at First Congregational Church.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

The Christian Endeavorers and Epworth Leaguers Elect as their Presidents B. L. Corum and B. Ott.

The state joint convention of the Christian Endeavorers and the Epworth league came to an end last evening in a session at the First congregational church. The afternoon session was devoted to the little children, and they gathered to the church in great numbers. Professor Gillilan presided at the meeting and the principal feature was the singing of the tots under the masterful baton of Prof. E. O. Excell. The meeting was opened with prayer from Dr. Paden, which was followed by a song service. Then Mrs. A. M. Hamil, one of the leading primary teachers of the nation, and who is here to attend the Sunday school convention, addressed the assemblage. She has a most skillful manner of talking to the children. Their interest was awakened at once and she kept them absorbed in a series of Bible stories, illustrated with chalk drawings on the blackboard.

There was some more singing and then Rev. W. B. Spillman amused the children and all present in an entertaining talk. He said that the Chinese method of greeting each other was to shake their own hands, and in that manner he said he had met all present. He is fat and humorous, and in illustrating a story with a few lines on the blackboard he said that he was an artist but could not draw, in fact he was so fat he could hardly draw his breath.

The session ended with a prayer by Rev. W. H. Bagby.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the young people of both societies held a meeting in the First Congregational church. There was a discussion of the subject "Christian Loyalty," with A. E. Eberhardt as the leader.

The final session was held in the evening, at which Rev. F. E. Bigelow, the retiring president of the Christian Endeavor union, presided. There was a song service led by Prof. Excell, and the report of two committees. Fred Sands sang, "Just As I Am," and on motion of Mrs. E. E. Shepard a rousing vote was tendered Dr. D. N. Beach. That gentleman then arose and delivered an address, the final one of the convention. The convention then came to a close with a consecration service.

The principal feature of Saturday's convention was the election of the following officers for the Christian Endeavor union, and the Epworth league:

B. L. Corum, president; H. H. Smith, secretary and treasurer; E. H. Dorman, first vice president; J. E. Carver of Ogden, second vice president; Miss Floss M. Pond, Provo, third vice president; Mrs. E. E. Shepard, junior superintendent; Miss Nettie Grey of Nephi, Miss L. E. Paden of Springville and E. W. Largiller of Salt Lake, named instead of Mr. Brainard of Ogden, who could not serve, are the hold-over directors. The new directors elected yesterday are Miss Mary Langley of Salt Lake, Miss Louise Clow of Kaysville, and Mrs. C. D. Savery of Salt Lake. H. H. Smith and B. L. Corum were named as members of the auditing committee.

The following officers were elected for the Epworth league: Byron Ott of Provo, president; Miss Bessie Drew of Salt Lake, vice president; Miss Anna Price of Salt Lake, recording secretary; Miss Shaw of Corinne, corresponding secretary; Miss Sue Clark of Salt Lake, treasurer.

It was decided by both societies to hold the next convention jointly.

There was a quiet hour service conducted by Rev. Frank Barnett and an address on "Christian Endeavor Within Prison Walls" was delivered by Mrs. E. E. Shepard. The session closed with a parliament on methods of work, conducted by Dr. Beach.

A delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of the First Congregational church.

Reports from officers showed that in Utah there were eight junior societies, with a total membership of 200, and thirty-one senior societies, with a total membership of 480.

At the afternoon session a junior league conference was held, under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Shepard. Addressese were made by Miss Louise Benz, Miss Sylvia Woodmansee, and Horace H. Smith. Then came a short praise service led by Miss Jessie Drew. Remarks were also made by Rev. H. W. Bloch, Mrs. A. J. Gorham, Rev. W. H. Bagby, Alexander Fyfe, Rev. John E. Carver and Dr. Beach.

At the evening session there was a short song service and addresses by J. A. Henderson, B. L. Corum, Rev. Simkins and Dr. Beach.

Rev. F. E. Bigelow pronounced the benediction.

A PLEASING AFFAIR.

Musical and Literary Program in Honor of Father Larkin.

The musical and literary entertainment given at All Hallows College on Saturday evening was a most successful and enjoyable event. The entertainment was given in honor of Rev. Father Larkin, S. M., the president of the college.

It is the custom of Catholic colleges to have entertainments complimentary to their presidents on the Saturday preceding the third Sunday after Easter, which is known as the "President's Feast Day."

To the "Present Arms!" of the All Hallows cadets in full uniform, the guests of the college, on Saturday evening, marched between two ranks, one on either side of the hall, from the entrance to the college assembly hall. Here a most pleasing sight awaited them. The hall had been specially decorated for the occasion. Overhead were streamers of light green and dark blue with an occasional one of red, white and blue. These were strung from the center column to the sides and corners of the hall. A picture of Father Larkin hung over the stage, which was prettily arranged and decorated.

At 8 o'clock the assembly hall was crowded to the doors with the guests of the college, and everyone was attentive to the first number on the program, "Il Trovatore," by the college orchestra, which, under Prof. Pedersen, has attained great efficiency and excellence. The Groesbeck waltzes were also rendered.

The address of the seniors to Father Larkin was given by Thomas Wolohan, and was of a most complimentary nature. The address was followed by a violin solo by Master Pedersen, who was enthusiastically encored. The next number was the address of be Minims to Father Larkin. As soon as the curtain rolled up young E. Mulvey, escorted by two other young boys, each carrying a bouquet of magnificent flowers, came forward on the stage, and delivered his address of love and gratitude to Father Larkin, in behalf of the young boys of the college. Leaving the stage the boys advanced to the place occupied by Father Larkin and presented the flowers to him. The address of presentation were heartily applauded.

"Fraumers" and a "Minuet," by Boccherini, were rendered a nicely by a string quartet, and the next number, a one act farce entitled, "Caught by the Cuff," was presented by the college dramatic club. It was very funny.

"Caledonian Beauties," Scotch selections, were given by the college orchestra, and the evening's entertainment closed with remarks by the very Rev. President Father Larkin, S. M., who expressed his pleasure at the entertainment, and gratitude to the boys for the proof of their affection and appreciation.

LIKES OUR COAL.

Uncle Sam Finds That it Makes Good Fire.

Washington, April 28.—The quartermaster's department of the United States army is now engaged in experimenting with coal from Utah, and it is believed that it can be shipped to San Francisco and sold lower than other coal which is now purchased there for general government and transport use. The department has directed Maj. Hyde, quartermaster at Nagasaki, to make every effort to procure better coal for the transports than the coal at that place. The necessity of coaling at Nagasaki became apparent as soon as the United States took control at Manila. It is true that coaling could be done from colliers in Manila bay, but for only six months in the year. For the remainder of the time it is impossible to get a ship and collier together with safety. Arrangements are made now to coal in San Francisco and Nagasaki, and no oftener in Manila than necessary.

Maj. Hyde has been instructed to ascertain which is the best coal to be found in Japan, and to contract for a continuous supply for the transports. The Japanese coal is not the best, but it is found to be the most economical that can be used. It costs about $4 per ton, while Australian coal taken to Nagasaki and resold costs about $12 per ton, owing to the high duty placed upon coal by Japanes in the interest of her own coal fields. The great drawback to the Japanese coal is the fact that it contains too much sulphur, and in place of the combustion occurring in the furnace it often goes into the pipes, and is very destructive to that portion of the boilers. Much of the repairing that has been found necessary to the army transports has been about the boilers which have been damaged by Japanese coal.

At the same time, owing to the great cost of coal brought from Australia, it is found economical to use Japanese coal rather than pay the higher price for Australian coal. The navy does not use Japanese coal. At San Francisco the quartermaster's department pays the highest price for coal. Most of it reaches San Francisco as ballast, but some comes from North Pacific ports.

WITH THE JUSTICES.

Justice Peter Lochrie of the first precinct has moved from the third floor of the Atlas block to room six on the first floor.

John Cole, who was arrested Saturday afternoon on the charge of stealing 50 cents worth of hay from R. F. Aveson, appeared before Justice Dana Smith this morning for trial, but through some misunderstanding the prosecution was not ready and the case was continued until tomorrow morning. Cole was released on his own recognizance.

This afternoon before Justice Smith, Joseph Marcroft is having a trial on the charge of cruelty to animals. He was arrested several days ago upon complain of Humane Officer Ferdinand Louis Leopold Nepoleon de Brichy, who charges that the defendant drove a weak and sickly horse hitched to a milk wagon.

The case against C. E. Taylor, charged with selling short weight of hay was set for hearing before Judge Timmony at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

LOOK OVER CITY REAL ESTATE.

Municipality Takes a Sabbath Inventory of Its Property.

AN EXTENSIVE JAUNT.

Pleasant Stops and Light Refreshments for Weary Travelers by the Wayside—A Busy Day.

Seven councilmen, the mayor, the chairman of the board of public works and the land and water commissioner responded to Recorder Nystrom's call for Sunday morning inspection of the city's realty holdings, and strolled into the Knutsford auditorium between 9 and 9:30 o'clock. Shortly after that hour the Salt Lake wagon with four spanking chestnuts bawled up State street headed for the Short Line depot and crossed over to Fifth West and North Temple streets where the city has a piece of property on each of the southcorners. The councilmen of the party were Messrs. Cottrell, Davis, Fernstrom, Hartenstein, Reid, Robertson and Tuddenham. The party then turned up First North and took a look in at the board of public works store room, stable and yards, and talked learnedly for some minutes on the respective merits of cast iron and kalamein pipe. From here the wagon was steered to the Warm Springs. Commissioner Westerfield here designated the bounds of a triangular parcel with a 241-foot frontage on Center street, and the party headed for Capitol hill. A dozen desireable building lots at the head of State street and on Canyon road were inspected, two city lots across the canyon were pointed out. Then the party took a look at the Capitol Hill reservoir which it found satisfactorily full and Mr. Westerfield volunteered the information that the city owned some twenty-five or thirty lots to the north which did not come under the head of desirable building. Right south of here is the old Arsenal block, bounded by Main, Grove, Strawberry and South Capitol streets with a frontage east of 264 feet and north 299½. The city owns the whole block with the exception of a lot 140 by 66 feet at the southwest corner owned by J. S. Ingham.

This completed the inspection on the hill and the party was driven down town again, reaching the "News" corner at 11:25 o'clock, where Chairman Dooly, who had other fish to fry, left the party.

The horses were then turned east on South Temple and when the mayor's residence was reached the chief officer hospitably invited the party to enter and rest a little while he dispensed some light refreshments. A fresh start was made about noon. With an addition to the party of Ezra Thompson, Jr. The new reservoir at Thirteenth East and First South was visited, and Watchman Butler gave the party the freedom of his little house and the use of his telephone. Here Hartensein and Tuddenham pulled out with many regrets and apologies. Mr. Westerfield next drew attention to the magnificent block of property bounded by Twelfth and Thirteenth East and First and Second South streets which is owned by the city with the exception of a lot owned by T. J. Fabian near the northwest corner on which a dwelling has been built. A southerly direction was then taken and no more stops were made till the party reached Parkkeeper Ericksen's house in Liberty party where a tempting lunch had been spread out by Joe Enzensperger on a table under the shade of the trees. Tasteful bontonnieres culled from the plentiful supply of the greenhouses were handed around and the company hastened to do justice to the viands which were spread before it.

After lunch, the business for the day being completed, an inspection of the farm, the old mill, the geese and ducks and the magnificent elk, whose new velvet clothed horns are just beginning to assume formidable dimensions, was made, in all of which Ezra Jr. took a deep interest. The return to the city was commenced about 2 o'clock.

ERRONEOUS REPORT.

Sheep Were Not Lost but Header Was — Big Head is Bad.

The story which came to Mt. Pleasant a couple of weeks ago regarding the sheep belonging to Peter Thompson of Ephraim, 2,200 of which were reported as having been lost and a portion of them having perished, is reported by the boys who have come in this week from that section of the country as a canard, says the Pyramid.

It is true that the sheep were lost—that is, they were not in care of a herder—but they have all turned up again, and have everyone been accounted for. Probably, though, to do the sheep full justice, it would be proper to say the herder was lost and the sheep knew where they were and what they wanted all the time. It was storming heavily when the sheep were turned out of the shearing-corral and the entire herd took up a trail in the path of the blizzard which was blowing and followed blindly along with the storm until it left them or exhausted its force. The herder in the meanwhile was lost—so far as the sheep were concerned—and immediately sent the word as reported before, that 2,200 head had turned up dead or missing. A few days afterwards the herd came to one of the small towns on the desert all there and in good health and ready to trust themselves to the tender mercies of the herder again. It was one on the latter, sure enough.

The boys from the desert bring the further news that the herds, many of them at least, are suffering from the disease known as the big head and that the losses are going to be quite heavy. It is a disease which attacks the animal in the head, causing it to become so inflamed as to prevent the swallowing of sustenance and starvation often results.

GUIDED BY INSPIRATION.

Was More Than Human Wisdom That Brought Saints Hither.

IT WAS A FORBIDDING LAND

Discourse by Bishop O. F. Whitney—Destiny of Latter-day Saints Carved Out by Higher Wisdom Than Man.

The services in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon were presided over by President Angus M. Cannon. They were opened by the choir singing the hymn, "Our God We Praise to Thee."

The invocation was offered by President James Duffin of the Southwestern States mission, and the services were continued by the choir singing the anthem, "As the Dews From Heaven Distilling." The solo part was sung by Miss Luella Ferrin.

The speaker was Bishop O. F. Whitney, whose interesting discourse was listened to with much attention. He said he was always happy to address the people when he was assured of their faith and sympathy and the inspiration of the Holy Ghost; that spirit which takes of the things of God and reveals them unto mortals; that spirit which Jesus called the Comforter and which was to lead into all truth. This people have partaken of that spirit. The same promises made to the former day Saints have been made to the Latter-day Saints. To the Elders of this Church it has been said: "Go ye into all the world, etc., "and these signs shall follow them that believe." Marvelously has this promise been fulfilled. This is no empty vaunt. "I speak what I actualy know, and what thousands of others know who have embraced this work—this everlasting Gospel, which is the same yesterday, today and forever. God is a God of miracles, now as ever, and we promise those who are not of our faith that if they will humble themselves, repent of their sins and be baptized after the similtude of Christ's burial and resurrection they shall receive the Holy Ghost and shall know for themselves that we speak the truth."

The mission of the Holy Ghost is to bring men into harmony with God. When President John Taylor met the Prophet Joseph Smith after having embraced the Gospel, the latter told him that he had received the Holy Ghost, and it might tell him to do things that his natural judgment would not approve, but if he would always heed its promptings he would invariably be led to do that which would be for his best good.

Bishop Whitney spoke of a monument that he had seen in San Francisco during his recent visit to California, representing the famous discoverer of gold. He stated that only one name in that group of bronze figures was a non-"Mormon," that it was the picks and shovels of Mormon" Battalion boys that brought the gold to the surface. He was led to reflect upon the marvelous way in which Gad had forecast the destiny of this people. What would have become of the Saints had they caught the gold fever of 1849 and gone to California? They would have been swallowed up, would have lost their identity as a people, or been driven again from their possessions. Persecution had always kept them together like sheep that huddle at the sight of a prowling wolf. Oftimes the Lord had shown a stern face, a mailed hand, but it had ever been raised in defense of His people and to carve out for them a glorious destiny.

The speaker then referred to the condition of this western country before the Saints settled here. He told how the Prophet Joseph Smith predicted their exodus from Illinois, saying that they would become a mighty people in the midst of the Rocky Mountains. The Prophet himself organized an expedition to explore this region, and even set out in person to come here, but returned and was slain by his enemies. This country at that time was so forbidding that Colonel Bridger, an old mountaineer, bantered the pioneers and offered Brigham Young a thousand dollars for the first bushel of wheat raised in Salt Lake valley. "Brigham Young," said the speaker, "took the Spirit of God as his guide." Much had been said about his native shrewdness, his great wisdom and intelligence, and it had been asserted that he was perfectly familiar with the country he was entering. That he was wise and intelligent is true, but it is also true that he had only a vague idea of the region into which he was going. It was the Spirit of God that led him. On his way here he had visions which determined his course.

The voyage of Samuel Brannan and his "Mormon" colony on the ship Brooklyn from New York around Cape Horn to California, where they established a printing press and published a pioneer newspaper, was next mentioned. Samuel Brannan then struck across the country, met President Young and the pioneers, and did all in his power to persuade them to go on to the Pacific coast. He depicted the grassy slopes and fertile soil of that wonderful country of California, but the "Mormon" leader could not be shaken in his purpose to establish his people in the valley of the Great Salt Lake, in the midst of sand and sagebrush, of crickets, grasshoppers and rattlesnakes. He struck his staff into the earth and said, "Here we will build the city and Temple of our God!" "This," said the speaker, "was more than human wisdom, it was the inspiration of the Almighty."

The Bishop then told how the Saints had grown in power and wealth and had become "a mighty people in the midst of the Rocky Mountains," in fulfillment of the words of their martyred Prophet, while Brannan and his colony had gone to pieces. He then described how some of the members of the "Mormon" Battalion, after enlisting on the Missouri and marching to California, where they were honorably discharged after serving the United States in its war against Mexico, while working at Sutter's fort, now Sacramento, dug up the first gold and recorded the discovery in January, 1848; an event that set the whole nation wild with excitement and revolutionized the commerce of the world. Everybody was rushing to the gold fields. Brigham Young advised his people to remain here and till the soil. It was not for gold that the Saints had come to the mountains; it was for God; it was not for the dust of the earth, but for the truths of heaven. The youth of Israel today should bear this in mind. None but an earnest, sincere, God-fearing people would have done what the "Mormon" people did. In 1848, when the settlers here were nearly starving and had barely enough clothing Heber C. Kimball predicted that in a short time "states goods," merchandise, would be sold in Salt Lake City cheaper than in St. Louis or New York. The speaker vividly portrayed the conditions then prevailing, and which made the prediction appear absurd and incredible to those who heard it, and yet within a few months it was fulfilled to the very letter by the arrival of the gold hunters on their way to California. These, in order to lighten their loads, and expediate their journey, threw away or sold for a song the valuable merchandise with which they had stored their wagons before crossing the plains. Salt Lake valley was the half-way house of the nation—the nucleus of that civilization which has radiated hence to build up the surrounding states and territories.

This was a marvelous work and a wonder. God never did anything except upon natural principles, but many of the principles natural to Him may be supernatural to us.

The early visions of the Prophet Joseph Smith and the restoration of the Gospel were depicted with eloquence and power. "You believe that the sun stood still at the command of a Joshua," exclaimed the speaker, addressing the non-"Mormons." "You believe that the waters of the Red Sea divided at the command of a Moses; but you cannot believe that God spoke to Joseph Smith. You cannot believe this, because it is new, while the other miracles are old. But it is true, whether you believe it or not. It is also true that angels ordained him to the Aaronic and Melchisedek Priesthoods, revealed the buried history of the American continent, and restored the everlasting Gospel."

The speaker closed with a glowing portrayal of the Millennium, the reign of peace, the theme of prophet tongues and poet pens in all ages, and which he declared it was the mission of "Mormonism" to usher in.

The choir sang the anthem, "And It shall Come to Pass."

The benediction was pronounced by Elder Clarence Cannon.
