The letter concluded: "Where a member of Congress is cognizant of the fact that an old soldier is in such a condition, physically or financially, as to render it important that his claims should have immediate attention, and that fact is brought to my notice, I don't hesitate to have the case called up and examined and the status given, and in such cases I would be glad to respond to your letters."

The Bal des Chaleurs Railroad Scandal.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A Montreal special says: Matters have reached a crisis in Quebec over the Bal Des Chaleurs railroad scandal, and a serious split has occurred in the cabinet. Lieutenant-Governor Angers claims that a royal commission of judges be appointed to investigate the charges against the ministers. In this view he is supported by the treasury commissioner of public works and the president of the council. The attorney-general, the provincial secretary and the commissioner of crown lands oppose this view and are determined to fight. Arthur Dupre, the other member of the cabinet, has resigned, but his resignation has not been accepted. The fight promises to be lively, and will probably be carried to the legislature.

American Pork in Germany.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The following cablegram was received at the department of State today from the German minister: "Pork admitted on American inspection certificates; Germany imposes no other conditions."

The "Teutonia" had 149 passengers, among whom was an American named John C. Oliphant. According to the latest figures sixty-six persons were lost.

An Attempted Wife Murder.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—This afternoon William Lompstrom, aged 35, attempted to murder his wife. He shot her, inflicting probably fatal injuries, and then shielded with the same weapon.

Because of his abuse and failure to support her his wife had determined to secure a divorce. The announcement of this was followed by the shooting. A few years ago Lompstrom shot and painfully wounded a former wife who had obtained a divorce.

The Richmond Terminal Rumors.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—No authoritative details could be obtained today of the rumors of the probable appointment of a receiver for the Richmond Terminal. It is stated by an official of the road that a plan to fund the floating debts of the Richmond Terminal into three years' notes is progressing rapidly, and that the creditors representing two-thirds of the floating debt of $9,000,000 have agreed to an extension. It is also reported that Drexel, Morgan & Co. are arranging the financial affairs of the different companies.

Cholera on Board English Steamers.

BOMBAY, Sept. 12.—The cholera in a severe form has broken out on board Her Majesty's steamship "Blanche" and Her Majesty's steamship "Marathon," at this port. There have been twenty-eight cases on board the two ships within twenty-four hours. Six deaths have already occurred.

A Reverend Gentleman Rebuked.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 12.—The Michigan conference spent most of the afternoon with the case of Rev. J. W. Amey of Saginaw, the pastor with a decided partiality for fast horses. The committee appointed to investigate reported that "Brother" Amey had not lived up to the promise made in Muskegon a year ago, and recommended that he be disciplined. Amey was then called before Bishop Newman who proceeded to admonish him, in quite forceful language, that his conduct had not been at all pleasing during the past year and unless he curbed his passion for racing he would be asked for his parchment.

Suspected Train Robbers Liberated and Rearrested.

MODESTO, Cal., Sept. 12.—William Dalton and Riley Dean, the suspected train robbers, today had a preliminary examination before Judge Towner. On motion of District Attorney the case against them was dismissed, and the men were set at liberty. Dalton was immediately rearrested on a warrant charging him with complicity in the Alta train robbery, which occurred about a year ago.

An Epitome of the Times.

In every large business or lodging house there is the accompanying notice: "Boy wanted." Why? Because the boys are not to be found. Why? Because they are all employed. Why? Because they are not to be seen around. Do you go in the night to call the doctor or go to the drug store for medicine, ask for ladies in the shops, and be in more so happy as when, at infinite cost to life time or expense, he has gratified the whim of some one whom he likes—that some one being of the better sex. Sunday, is a notice fashionable house of the kind in the city, the bandbills read: "By the way Mr. Sullivan, I have one room to rent, and if you know of any of the Grand Army people who would like to work you send them up. Try to get us some one else."

Of course Sullivan promised. He set out for his office and every man he met had a word to say to him, for every one liked Sullivan. At the mention of each of these conversations the latter grew more and more happy and happy, and being popular, it was not long before he had forty or fifty people inquiring for tenants for that room. The result was that the activity of the house, for a day or two, indeed, was the opposite to Camp Sherman, and it was necessary to disconnect the bell.—Detroit Free Press.

A Sun Spot Microscope.

A spectator, viewing the sun from a distant point in space, would perceive that its brilliancy was slightly increased once in about every eleven years. Then accordingly of light should correspond, not with the periods of sun spots, but with those of most spots, because the energy of the once radiation is greatest during the spot maxima. At present a sun spot maximum is approaching, and cause but winter the force of the sun has frequently been observed during the times of the tremendous disturbances now affecting the solar globe. Our imaginary observer in space would probably behold at the present time a very slight increase in the sun's brilliancy, and this increase may go on for three or four years to come.

Whatever, dwelling upon a globe that is bathed in the sun's rays, may be unable to perceive their variations directly, yet it is certain that we have been recipients of the changes that they produce in terrestrial magnetism. It is also highly probable that a perceptible influence upon the weather is exercised by variations in solar radiation corresponding with the presence or absence of sun spots.—G. F. Morris in Popular Science Monthly.

A Tenderness Exception.

A young man who is stopping at a well known summer place has had an amusing experience. At one of the neighboring hotels he had met a fair northerner who greatly captivated his rather susceptible fancy. He request to be allowed to sell her with a precious amount, and the next day he presented himself at the door of her mother's sitting room. "Come in," called out a strident voice as he knocked at the door. On opening it he was surprised to see no one in the room, but from the next apartment came an injunction in the a harsh accents to "wait right down in 5, parlor."

Wondering not a little at his reception, he took a chair, but his astonishment may be imagined when he heard his fair one addressed in the following tender terms: "Mary Anne, you've got a beau!" "Mary Anne, you've got a beau!" and his amazement was not even relieved when his innocents entered and laughingly explained that the subject was a huge green parrot.—New York Tribune.

New York's First Bath Tub.

"It is really astonishing," said a gentleman to me, "how many people there are who, on a sweltering day when the thermometer is way up in the nineties, do not have a bath. Although their bills with hot and cold water, are at their the most every minute of the day. They are either too lazy to take a refreshing bath, or they forget all about it. People do not sufficiently appreciate the many conveniences of a modern home which we now enjoy. And it is not so many years since we had them conveniences. Last May there died in Greenville Mrs. Mary Mason Jones, aged eighty-nine. The year she married (1836) she built a residence at No. 123 Chambers street, New York, and that was the first residence in the city to have gas and a bath tub. At no time in the history of the world have people had so much comfort and luxury as at the present day.—New York Epoch.

Thought He Had a Sea Serpent.

Captain John Brooks, of Block Island, became quite troubled by seeing, one day last week, while bathing in his pots, of a six foot sea serpent, subsequently pronounced a monster sea eel. Captain Brooks was in doubt for a few moments as to the propriety of the blue fish still he was in at the time, and his reason being at least a little distant, he was not particularly "stuck" on his companions. He succeeded at last, however, in killing the "serpent of the sea" fish, which every it was, after it had bitten through his rubber boot and sock, grazing his leg.—Hartford Times.

It Was Only His Wooden Leg.

George Horter, whose home is near Elgerman, attended a session at Fort Mar Thursday. A few years ago Horter had one leg torn off by a threshing machine, and he now uses a wooden leg. He undertook to walk from Fort Mar to Elgerman, and, becoming tired he down beside the railroad track to rest and fell asleep. While in this position a train passed by. At the time he happened to have his wooden leg resting on the track. It was cut off by the train, but the man sustained no personal injuries.—Baltimore Sun.

Wants $100 for Missing the Game.

Because he missed a baseball game J. W. Gaus a member of the Milwaukee board of trade, has brought suit for $100 damages against the Milwaukee City railroad company. He complained to the conductor that he hoped some of the passengers for the ball park, but on reaching Chambers street the driver refused to turn down to Juneau park. Being late, he could not walk the distance in time to see the game.—Chicago Tribune.
