IRRIGATION.

The Subject of Long Deliberation in the House Today.

SEVERAL BILLS PASS THE HOUSE.

Veterinary Inspection Required in Cities—Business in Both Houses Today.

This afternoon a long debate occurred in the House on H. B. 15, Johnson's bill proposing radical changes in the existing system of irrigation. This subject is one which generally excites much interest among country members, and it was noticeable that, on the occasion, the Salt Lake members who generally do most of the talking remained quiet. It transpired during the discussion that the irrigation committee was contemplating the introduction of a bill upon the subject of irrigation and water rights.

S. B. 101, which the House passed this afternoon, is designed to cure inequities in the present law relating to assessing stock in corporations, and to greatly when such stock is said is not assessable.

H. B. 125, which the House passed this forenoon, requires each city having 15,000 inhabitants or more to appoint a veterinary inspector, who shall designate a place in or near the city, where all animals intended for immediate slaughter must be taken for inspection, and be inspected on the hoof. After being killed the carcasses shall be again inspected and, if found good, shall be marked with a tag. If any carcass or part thereof is found unfit for food, the inspector shall order it destroyed. The U. S. government standard and method of meat inspection are adopted.

This forenoon, while the sheep scab bill was under consideration in the House, Nebeker declared that he didn't like sheep, but that, if we must have them, we ought to have healthy ones. He predicted that the people in Utah would yet regret the extent to which the sheep were committing the country, but he would support the bill.

This afternoon, in the House, Brown from the committee on Capitol grounds, reported the following report:

Mr. Speaker—Your committee to whom was referred the report of the commission on Capitol grounds, respectfully represent that they have examined and approved said report, and recommend that the amount required for the completion of the improvements as originally surveyed, reserving to said grounds, be appropriated. Also, the amount of $5,000 for caring for and keeping said grounds in proper condition, the ensuing two years, and that commissioners' report be filed in the office of the Territorial auditor.

Your committee have also taken under advisement the recommendation of said commissioners, in connection with that part of the Governor's message dated January 8, 1894, relative to the special message of Governor Wood dated March 1, 1894, relating to the erection of one wing of the Capitol building, and respectfully report that the recent assignment for the erection of such portion of a Capitol building, which will afford ample provision for all the legislative, judicial and general business purposes, meets with our approval, as is the erection of such building, the needs of the Territory or state will be provided for in this direction for many years to come.

By the erection of this building, at an estimated cost of $125,000, which amount can be obtained by issuing bonds at 5 per cent interest, it is evident by representations in figures made to your committee by the Secretary and Governor on cost of similar halls, office rents, etc., that the advantages in building over that of renting would not only pay the interest on the bonds but be a net saving to the Territory annually of from $3,000 to $5,000. And as suggested in the message of Governor Wood, the erection of this building at the present time would give work to a large number of the unemployed working class, a subject worthy of the most earnest consideration of this Legislative Assembly, under existing distress and want among so large a number of this class of citizens. Your committee are also of the opinion that all kinds of material and labor can be obtained at greatly reduced prices at the present time, so that a saving of at least 20 per cent in the cost of such a building can be saved to the Territory. We therefore recommend the letting of bonds and erection of one wing of a capitol building.

(Signed.) STAVTON, STONER, MAGG, POWERS.

Multitude dissenting.

The General Committee Seeking to Aid Only Worthy Persons.

A number of the general relief committee was in charge in connection with the work on Capitol Hill, called on the NEWS today and desired to say that the committee of which he is a member is acting in full accordance and full harmony with the other relief committees.

Regarding the work of men employed, the committee seek to employ only those who are deserving of relief. They have sought to be careful in this matter, and if any who should not be there have got work, it has not been through any intentional omission of the committee to carefully scrutinize all applications. If there are any known instances where persons who are not in urgent need of assistance, or who are unworthy of relief, having been employed, the committee would be thankful to have such cases pointed out.

From the superintendent's statement there is no doubt that strong efforts are made to expend the relief appropriation to an appropriate manner.

The few more removals of heads of departments from office and the appointments to fill vacancies that have been made Mayor is expected to make in the immediate future was today the main topic of conversation among local politicians.
