Whiskey Making Trouble Among the Nez Perces.

AN OIL STRIKE NEAR CASPER.

Land Slide Near Elk Park.—Jealousy Kills a Man in Denver.—Coast Items.

Boise Statesman—Governor Willey of Idaho says there are about thirty men at work on the west shore of the Great Payette lake in making the Mt. Idaho and Salmon Meadows road, who are very apprehensive concerning the Nez Perce Indians, who always manage to get hold of liquor in some way, when they become ugly and dangerous. It has been so for a number of years, and though thus far there has been no difficulty, there is liable to be so long as intoxicants can be procured by them.

Denver News special—Casper, Wyoming, June 9.—News has just reached here of another strike of oil at the Salt Creek well, some fifty miles north of Casper. The first well in that district reached the oil sand in September, 1889, when a flowing well was struck, the oil gushing at the rate of 800 barrels per day. This well was at once plugged and a new one was started, on which, when at a depth of 1430 feet work was discontinued for the winter, it contained again about ten days ago, and now at a depth of 1700 feet the oil sand was reached and the oil is at present flowing at the rate of from 200 to 300 barrels per day. The Pennsylvania company, which owns these two wells, has a large tract of land in the immediate vicinity and it is their intention to put down several wells this season. Great excitement prevails, and it is the universal opinion that the Wyoming oil fields will experience a genuine boom during the summer.

Helena Journal.—A land slide four miles this side of Elk Park on the Montana Central Sunday night caused a wreck and delayed traffic some hours. Freight train No. 15 ran into the obstruction at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The engine was badly smashed, but no one was injured. The passenger train from Butte, which was due in Helena at 11 a.m. yesterday, was delayed, not reaching this city until 6 p.m. Bishop Brewer, who came over on the train, said it was the only time it ever took him all day to come from Butte to Helena since the old staging days. A large force of men succeeded in clearing the track in a comparatively short time.

Sacramento Record-Union.—Mrs. Fassler, the unfortunate woman who was so brutally assaulted a few nights ago at her home at Twenty-first and V streets by some unknown person or persons, died last evening at the residence of Mr. Gehrig, a neighbor, where she was removed the day after her injury. If she knew who her assailants were, the secret has died with her. It is certainly a strange case to fathom. Why she should have been assaulted so mercilessly, without cause, is a mystery, and if the assault was committed by some enemy or enemies known to her—which many persons believe was the case—she has carefully shielded them from harm. Mrs. Fassler's body was removed to the undertaking rooms of John Miller.

Denver News—Ex-Policeman James C. Jones shot and instantly killed T. J. Strawn in a fit of jealousy, in the alley adjoining Jones' residence, 2054 California street, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The bullet entered Strawn's neck near the first vertebra. The dead man was removed to the house while Jones gave himself up to the police and was locked up in the city jail. The weapon used was a 41-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver. Jones claimed the man he shot was wrecking his domestic happiness and that he had the proof of the fact in a letter. Mrs. Emma Jones, the wife of the ex-officer, is a handsome woman, thirty years of age and the mother of two interesting children, the oldest being but nine years old.

Espeda Capital—A man giving his name as David Holt claims he was confronted by a couple of highwaymen at the north end of the Santa Fe bridge, early yesterday morning, and robbed of what valuables he had about him and most of his clothing. According to his story, as related to a reporter, he had arrived in town on the Union Pacific train, and getting off at the junction had walked down to the Santa Fe railroad bridge, and lighting a newspaper, so as to be able to load and light his pipe, he saw two men confronting him, one of whom asked him for some tobacco. This he says he gave the man, when the other man immediately covered him with a revolver and demanded his money. When he informed the robber that he had none, he was ordered to strip off his coat, which he did. Then he was ordered to give up his hat, boots, socks and vest, and he says they came near taking his pants, but he persuaded them not to do so. Before they left him he boasted that they would return his two army discharges, one from the Ninth Illinois and one from the Twenty-seventh Illinois Infantry, but they seem they would shoot him if he asked again for them and ordered him to make tracks over the bridge. He says he did so and at the break of day made his way to the police headquarters and reported the circumstances.

San Francisco Chronicle.—The coasting schooner "Alice," while boating out to sea yesterday afternoon, about 130 miles north, collided at sunrise 1 of the seawall with the Oregon Improvement Company's steamer Willamette Valley. Forty feet of the steamer's railing and half of its bridge was carried away, one of the lifeboats was stove in, and one of the davits badly bent. Several of the vessel's plates are believed to be opening. There were no passengers on the steamer at the time. She arrived Saturday from Yakutat bay, and had just finished discharging her cargo of grain at section 1 of the seawall and was about to start back to her regular berth when the collision took place.

A Merchant's Opinion.

Mr. John Caughar, a merchant at Caughar, Fulton County, Ohio, says that St. Patrick's Pills are the best selling pills he handles. The reason is that they produce a pleasant cathartic effect and are certain and thorough in their action. Try them when you want a reliable cathartic. For sale by Z. C. M. I. Drug Dept.

Stallion Fight.

One of the most terrible battles that probably ever took place between earth stallions occurred near the house earch of the Little Missouri Horse farm in the spring of 1889, at the time when the several families or droves of horses were being driven in from the ranges for an account of stock and for the branding of the young colts. It happened by the merest chance that three droves came in together, with the stallions leading. Naturally the three joined, and at once arose the question of leadership. This could only be settled by a battle, and before the herders could begin to form any plan for separating them, the three stallions were engaged in fiercest battle.

As described by those who saw it, this battle was as savage and so bloody that it seemed certain that at least one of the combatants must be killed. It lasted a little more than twenty minutes, and when the "smoke of battle" drifted away and the fight was done, a big gray Pomboom called Napoleon was seen to be the victor, and for it was that, with uplifted head and proud ly curved tail, led the company of mares and colts to the pastures, while the two defeated ones marched together, the whipped cues, dejectedly in the rear.

In this instance, although the fight was an unusually desperate one, and all three horses were badly cut and torn, none of the three suffered more than temporary discomfort.—Harper's Weekly.

Railroad Free Beggars.

Although there is a clause in the interstate commerce law forbidding the granting of railroad passes there is scarcely a railroad company in the country that does not issue thousands of passes every year. In this city there are some railroad men high in authority who find it necessary to devote two or three hours each week to the mere signing of blank passes which their private secretaries subsequently fill in as directed.

Applications for passes are made on a great variety of grounds. Women who have sick relatives and friends to visit, men who want to go home a very large class of pass beggars. Chauncey M. Depew sees a large number of this class. His wife, relatives and friends then for gentility makes him the favorite game of impecunious persons looking for passes.

All railroad presidents endeavor to dodge the applicants for passes, but they only partially succeed. Many applicants, when told that the president is too busy to see them, calmly sit down outside of his office door and wait until he comes out. Sometimes they wait half a day, and then fail to get the desired pass.—New York Times.

A Muscular Christian.

Dr. Rainsford is the most unique divine in New York as I saw him in Beecher's old pulpit in Plymouth church not long ago. Over six feet in height, his bearing is upright and he carries himself with the precision of a former drillmaster. His frame hair was carefully parted in the middle. His countenance was open and frank, and his eyes beamed through a pair of pale blue pince-nez. Dr. Rainsford is a perfect type of the English parson when Anthony Trollope loved to depict. He is a Lenbomer by birth. His cheeks bear the glow of ruddy health.

He is a fine sermon, a good cricketer, an enthusiastic an angler as ever whipped a stream, and he can ride to hounds, bat or do a twenty-five mile walk a day without turning a hair. His church is very large, and has no end of societies and relief committees at work. His congregation numbers nearly 3,000 persons. He is popular with the young and an advocate of the people's pleasures—indeed, an enlarged edition of Walter Besant, and he would like to have a people's palace in every city in the Union.—New York Cor. Richmond Dispatch.

Mr. Kelly's Unanswered Great Boss.

James Black, of Sheepshead bay, has a dog known as the Great Dane. He is the property of Banker Kelly's son, of New York, and is kept with Mr. Black's large canine family in the barn adjacent to his house at the bay. A few mornings since Mr. Black found one of a pack of foxhounds to which he was boasting among the missing. After a diligent search he found the skin of the lost animal close to the quarters of the unwonted Great Dane. The latter had eaten the fortunate tenth, the shell being all that remained to tell the tale of the raising dog. Mr. Black required to the owner and apologized as best he could.

"Do not weep," said Mr. Kelly, "the Great Dane ate up his father also."—Kings County (N. Y.) Journal.

Good Form in Carrying Parcels.

In London it is not considered "good form" for a gentleman to carry through the streets a parcel, however small or elegantly wrapped. He may carry a book, if it is not too large and is not wrapped up; for a book is a book, but a parcel may be a pound of cheese or a dozen red herring. The restriction is a foolish one, a form of class distinction that is inconsistent with the highest civilization, in which every man will be a gentleman if he is thoughtfully considerate of others, whether he is a laborer or rides in a carriage.—Youth's Companion.

Fell of Alarm.

Frank—Blanche seems awfully shy. What do you suppose makes her so timid?

Max—She's probably afraid you're not going to propose.—Massey's Weekly.

Foot Shooting.

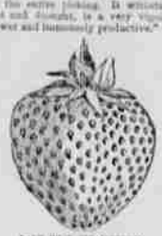
No record of the work of the big guns on the big iron clads of Europe is allowed to be published, but the papers admit that the big cannon are so powerfully that an enemy a mile away might be fired at twenty times before being hit by accident. The best of the gunners further declare that the means for big guns has been run to footing.—Detroit Free Press.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

USEFUL AND ORNAMENTAL GARDENING FOR COUNTRY HOMES.

Strawberries—A Brief Description of Some of the More Promising of the Newer Varieties—Each Kind Has Some Advantages.

Mentioned with the more promising of the newer strawberries is the Lady Rusk, a fertilizer variety. It is claimed to be "several days earlier than the Crescent, large and holding its size throughout the entire picking. It winterhards best and thriftier, is a very vigorous grower and immensely productive."



LADY RUSK STRAWBERRY.

Dolly, also a fertilizer, is a seedling of Crescent fertilized with Cumberland. Berries uniformly large, nearly glossy; pale scarlet; flesh same color, firm, very good; season medium. The plant is a good grower, standing well under a hot sun.

Haverland, another fertilizer sort, is large and handsome in form and shape. It is moderately firm and of fair quality. The big claim made for this berry is that it is exceedingly productive. For size and productiveness, with many growers, Bubach No. 5 stands in the front rank, and having nothing to be desired for home use, but for marketing it lacks the necessary firmness. Its season is medium to late. Jessie, though not a new berry, is not as widely known as it ought to be. The berries are large and showy, of good quality, and the plants are vigorous, healthy and productive. Parker Earle is another berry worthy of culture. It is a seedling of the Crescent, fertilized by pollen of a seedling of Henry's Prolific.

Standard Pears on Quince.

The standard trees will bear a good deal of exposure and fairly well protected they will stand properly set out. Many trees are ruined by being planted. A sack should be placed to each tree and the close firmly tied to it just below the point where it was headed. In removing the tree a circle two feet or so in diameter should be left round the stem of each tree.

The piling up of soil on their circles is a possible source of injury to the plants, as it places the roots too deep below the surface, which is a mistake. It is a common practice to plant a few bedding subjects in these circles, but they should be those that do not run too deeply. It would be best to keep the circle cultivated, or mulched with some material, or time time during the summer and especially during dry weather. Liquid manure can be given occasionally with great advantage.

Operations on Heavy Soils.

The old idea that grapes thrive best on light land is mainly due to the fact that such soils are naturally dry. While a heavy clay is not best for the grape it is no necessary absolute to success in vineyarding, provided it is thoroughly underdrained. In fact, grape growing is possible under a wider range of conditions and soil than is the case with any other crop. The one thing that grape roots cannot abide is stagnant water. No matter if the vines are in subsurface. It is then just the power of the vine to repair but that. Land thoroughly drained to the depth of three feet or more and mellow in the spring, and before a difference in temperature of 3 to 10 degs. or more at the time when the vine most needs warmth, says Green's Fruit Grower.

Desirable Currants.

At a Massachusetts farmers' meeting, from among the many varieties of currants, the Versailleuse, Fay's seedling and Victoria of the red, and Dana's transparent or French transparent for the white, were selected as most desirable for general cultivation. The cherry and Versailleuse are both of French origin and are reported by the Royal Horticultural society to be one and the same. The fruit of the Victoria is smaller, but the bushes bear profusely, and being later than the other varieties, it is a desirable sort with which to lengthen the season.

Things That Are Sold.

A gardener who has tested it for three years tells in The Home Journal that broken pieces of bone do much better than bone meal or stickery for dressing flower-pots. The plants seek the fertilizing quality out of the bones and make such a vigorous growth that the plants in pots supplied with bones could be told at once.

John Thorp, a good authority, calls the new Clothilde Soupert a very and most valuable introductions of many years. "It is perfect as a plant pot for market and surpasses the Hermina as a bedding rose."

Overcultivating injures the texture and flavor of the fruit, and over manured dried-fruit-testing pieces will testify.

It is essential to recent that roses are beginning to be less desirable from the little United States array that there was a year or two ago. The reason is that now an enlisted man is permitted to buy his discharge if he gets tired of army life. Desertion used to be the only way. Buying it out is really cheap in the numbers. Besides it is much safer. Then again the hours of duty have been shortened, and other changes made which make life more endurable to the common soldier in America.

Eugene William has stirred his court preachers with consternation by issuing an order that they shall shorten their sermons to a quarter of an hour. No wonder they are perplexed. Where will "eschatology" come in now? Eugene William evidently intends that nobody in Germany shall do any preaching but himself.

The People's Party.

Born in Cincinnati in May, 1891. Thirty-three states and territories and 1,417 delegates to boom it.

The infant gives no its sins and others of its advent into the world the following: it will work for, among other things, the abolition of national banks as banks of issue, and for one by the United States of legal tender treasury notes instead of bank notes, also for the establishment of the sub-treasury loan system. It calls for free and unlimited coinage of silver, and the prohibition of alien ownership of land in the United states.

It calls for a graduated income tax, and demands national control of railroads, steamboats, ferries and telegraphs and steps lines. If rigid government control does not correct the abuses that have grown up around our methods of travel and transportation, then the government must assume and own and run all our railroads and other means for moving about this country. Lands owned by railroads shall be limited to those in actual use, and all others shall be taken from them and bestowed on bona fide settlers. Next it wants the election of president, vice president and United States senators by direct vote of the people, and eight hours for a day's work. It earnestly recommend home the action of the World's fair directors in refusing the minimum rate of wages asked for by the Chicago labor organizations.

By way of glittering generalities it recommends universal suffrage to the favorable consideration of the states and territories, equal taxation, so that no class shall not be taxed up at the expense of another, and that all public revenues shall be limited to actual expenditures and shall be honestly and economically administered. Finally, first, last and always, it demands the issue of more legal tender treasury notes—no end of legal tender treasury notes.

Weak Women.

The more sensitive nature of the female sex renders women much more susceptible than men to those disorders the which spring from lack of harmony in the system. The nervous system gives way, sick headache is frequent, the appetite is lost, and other ailments peculiar to the sex cause great suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for such cases, and has proved the most gratifying cause for the relief it has afforded thousands of women whose very existence before taking it was only misery. It strengthens the nervous system, gives healthy and indigestion, purifies and vitalizes the blood, and gives regular and healthy action to every organ in the body.

Pneumonia and Bronchitis Carry off Sue third of the Human Race.

It is not generally known that Pneumonia and Bronchitis carry off one third of the human race, but such are the facts, and what is more surprising, both of the above diseases result from neglecting a common ordinary cold. A cough should never be neglected. If it is, strange thing you could tell you cough harder, and it sticks by you longer. Ballard's Horehound Syrup is the best remedy in the world for Pneumonia, Bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. If you have any throat trouble, call for Ballard's Horehound Syrup and take no other. Ziegler's Conservative Mercantile Institution, Agents.

Spontaneous Cures.

S. H. Clifford, Grand Canal, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, his spirits fell away, and he was hardly reduced to flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him. Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speeker, Calaveras, O., had five sings Fever sores on his leg; doctors said his leg must amputate. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by A.
