HE KILLED A CAT.

A Benefactor to the Community Arrested for Shooting a Pet of the Felis Domestica Species.

For sometime past Grandpa Matthews and some of his neighbors residing in the northwestern part of the city have been interrupted in their dreams and disturbed in their sleep by a certain ubiquitous Tom-cat. Almost nightly Tom would take up his position under the bedroom window, beneath the floor, where he could neither be coaxed or joked out, climb a tree, spring on to the roof of the house and inaugurate a series of ear-piercing screechs that have no parallel except in the camp of a tribe of Tuscaroras when Commercial street firewater inspires them to the commission of deeds ridiculous and offensive to decent people.

Grandpa Matthews has the reputation of being a peaceful citizen, but Tom aroused his ire so he loaded his gun and laid for him. His vigilance was rewarded with success. He took unerring aim at the troublesome cat and when the smoke cleared away from the muzzle of his long-barreled gun it was discovered that the formerly animated mouse trap had been blown to atoms and now the legion of cats that were attracted to the Matthews' residence by the cries of Tom are seen no more.

Mr. Matthews was arrested for firing a gun within the city limits and taken before Justice Kesler this morning on that charge. That functionary decided that the accused was a benefactor to his neighbors and dismissed the case against him.

CITY GAMBLING DENS.

The Deputy U. S. Marshals are Getting in their Work.

The headquarters of the Deputy U. S. Marshals in the Wasatch building are absolutely deserted this afternoon, and the cause is not far to seek. The last grand jury, acting upon the telling words of Chief Justice Zane in his charge at the opening of the present term of court, in regard to social evils in the city, gave special attention to the running of gambling dens in this city, and had before them a number of witnesses in the course of their investigation. This resulted in the finding of a host of indictments against the keepers of well-known gambling houses in the city, and the warrants for their arrest were issued today. About one o'clock Marshal Parsons' force started out on a "serving" expedition, and by three o'clock, out of the score of warrants then in their hands, three of the shots had taken effect.

Commissioner Greenman patiently awaited the coming of the offenders, and up to the time of the News going to press G. S. Sparks, Henry Nugent and Calvin S. Woods had appeared and given bonds in the sum of $500 each to secure their attendance at a future time to answer the charges against them. The deputies are still rushing around in quest of their other victims.

It is believed that when the gambling fraternity have been dealt with by due "process of law," the keepers of houses of ill-fame may expect an official call.

Killed in a Mine.

Mary Murray, administratrix of the estate of Isaac Snell, deceased, brought suit in the Third district court this afternoon against the Daly Mining Company. The action is to recover $10,000, and costs of suit, for personal injuries resulting in death.

In May, 1891, the deceased, Isaac Snell, was employed in the defendants' mine, known as the "Daly," near Park City, as a timberman or carpenter. The cage by which he was descending into the mine—being, it is alleged, defective in construction and unsafe—gave way, and Snell was precipitated to the bottom a distance of 200 feet, his death occurring almost instantly.

M. Marcellus Nelson is the plaintiff's attorney.

Sensations During Hanging.

One question often asked, and which few living persons are able to answer, is "What are the sensations of a man who is being strangled with a rope, one of the few who have lived to give an account of what occurred to them at the critical moment say that after one interval of pain the mind seemed to be full of a mass of brilliant colors before the eyes. Professor Bergstrom, who was one day testing for himself what such an experience would be like, lost his footing and was accidentally discovered and rescued just as the last faint spark of life was about to leave the body. He declared afterward that he felt no pain and that the only sensation was that of a fire before his eyes, which finally changed from a bright blue to a black color. He said that he had no fear of the consequences and that the colors were even a source of extreme pleasure."—St. Louis Republic.

TO-DAY'S TELEGRAMS.

Reasons for Doubting the Genuineness of the Alleged Letter from Grant.

AN ARM OF THE MOTHER OF THE VIRGIN MARY.

Copenhagen Pets on a Holiday Appearance.—Thomas O'Brien Escapes.

By Telegraph to the News.

THAT GRANT LETTER.

Excellent Reasons for Regarding it as a Forgery.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Gen. Bussey, Assistant Secretary Treasury, in this city speaking of the alleged Grant letter to Congressman Tracy, said: "Excellent reasons for ordering the letter a forgery. He was in New Orleans in 1880 when Grant returned from his trip around the world and was with him a great deal for ten days. He encouraged the efforts looking to a choice of delegates favorable to his nomination, saying that his experience as President, and travels in the old world made him feel desirous of another term in the White House. In order that he might be enabled to carry out certain plans he had in his mind. In all conversations he never uttered a word that would harmonize with the sentiments contained in this letter. He was in New Orleans when in 1880, just a month before the letter is supposed to have been written.

THE GENUINENESS OF A RELIC.

Its History from a Catholic Point of View.

NEW YORK, May 24.—At the weekly meeting of Methodist ministers yesterday, one of the members said it was strange that Protestants should stand still while a part of the alleged arm of St. Anne was exposed for the worship of the ignorant in the Catholic church St. Jean Baptiste. He thought a protest should be made. There was no proof, he said, that the so-called relic was really what it was represented to be. Others spoke to the same effect.

Monsignor Bernard O'Reill, formerly a decorated private of Lee XIII., when told of these remarks, said: The body of St. Anne was buried, according to Bollandist, in the tomb of her husband. His arm was preserved. A legend in the south of France is that all the relatives of our Lord and the Virgin Mary were banished from Palestine. They took with them the body of St. Ann, and it was entombed in a subterranean chapel in the cathedral of Apt, in the south of France, in the first centuries of that age, in the first century. When France was invaded by the Barbarians, the entrance to the chapel was walled up and evidence of its existence obliterated. In A. D. 772 the vault was discovered and opened in the presence of Charlemagne, Archbishop Turpin and a great company of priests and nobles. On the coffin was inscribed: "This is the body of St. Ann, the mother of the blessed Virgin Mary." A letter of Charlemagne to Pope Adrian I. concerning this discovery is extant. The body has been kept ever since in the Cathedral of Apt to the great glory of the city. The relic was recently exposed in this city. It came from the right arm which was sent to Rome and kept in the monastery of St. Paul. "With respect to the Methodist ministers who criticise us," said Mr. O'Reilly, "I have only to say that they should go to the libraries and read for themselves the historical proofs of the miraculous preservation of the body of St. Ann."

The committee on judiciary has reached the conclusion that the word "laymen" in the discipline, which provides for lay representation, does not include women.

After a sharp discussion this morning the conference decided to allow the Epworth League to have its own special secretary.

This action, however, was somewhat modified later on the demand of the friends of the Y. P. S. C. E. who wanted the work of these young followers of the church recognized.

An announcement was made that Rev. G. A. Reeder, of the East Ohio conference, had given $10,000 to assist the erection of Methodist headquarters in the city of Rome. This caused great enthusiasm. After further action on the rules to govern the Epworth leagues, Dr. J. F. Berry, managing editor of the Epworth Herald.
