The Big Mining Case.

Today marked the commencement of the third week in the Northland-Mayflower trial, and the defendants gained a point at the outset, by having their motion for a nonsuit as Messrs. Ferry, Dodge, Richardson, Jacobson, Ivers and McGrath allowed, leaving only Keith, Kearn, Judge, Emery and McCurdick as defendants.

Proceeding with the case, William McQueen, a well known mining man, was then called. He testified to effect, that the vein found in the country shown on the map was a bedded constant vein, the hanging wall being of blue, sparry lime and the footwall of quartzite. The witness here indicated on the map the numerous places in the workings where the vein came down and rested on the quartzite. Both the Northland and Court upraises were in the vein. There were three vertical cuts in the court upraise which showed the hanging wall to be blue, sparry limestone, and two winzes sunk at each end of the raise disclosed the quartzite. At the head of the Northland upraise, the vein was a little flatter than before, but he found no fault or throw there which would or did terminate the vein. The witness then named the points where the vein outcropped, and following it around by the contact discovered in the long line of cuts, traced the vein to the Fairview, where every other witness for the defense has located it. He was positive that the contact disclosed in the cuts was identical with that found in the workings. Coming then to the porphyry, the witness stated that he had not found it anywhere except in the plaintiffs cuts in the Jessie Lode; but even supposing there was a porphyry dyke there, it would not have the least effect upon the vein, so far as terminating it was concerned. In his experience as a miner, he had known of many instances where veins had been cut by porphyry dykes, and not distributed at all, the vein being found again just beyond the porphyry. This occurred in the old Telegraph, the vein being cut by a very large dyke, and found just beyond the porphyry. He had observed the same thing in the Custer, Lucky Boy and Badger mines in Idaho, where the porphyry was from 45 to 50 feet thick.

The witness was cross examined at very great length by Judge Hoyle, but was not shaken in the least on any important point.

Martin Harkness, who has had forty years in mining, was then called, and his testimony was substantially the same as that of the witness who preceded him. The vein was a bedded, contact vein, having a hanging wall of sparry lime and a footwall of quartzite. The contact was found all the way around from the outcrop to the fair yield, where it spexed. The defendants had a vein extending from that point up through the court upraise and extending past the famous triangle.

Train Dispatcher's Convention.

The Train Dispatcher's convention will be held this year at New Orleans, in June. The one next year will be held in Salt Lake City if the efforts of Mr. E. B. Spencer, the popular telegrapher, can avail anything; and it is a presumption that they will, as he is not only on the job over himself but is receiving valuable encouragement. If the convention comes here we are assured that not less than 1000 dispatchers, accompanied mainly by families, will visit us. This would be quite an occasion.

GIFFFORD'S SECOND TRIAL.

This Time For Uttering a Forged Railway Ticket.

A FORMER ACQUITTAL PLEADED,

But the Court Decline to Entertain It—The Evidence—Other Business Today.

An important criminal case was tried in the Third District Court today before Judge Anderson. It was that of the People of the Territory vs. Frank R. Gifford, charged with uttering a forged railway ticket of the Union Pacific. The importance in a legal sense was the judicial construction placed upon the statutory defense of a previous acquittal or conviction, neither appearing except as a presentation of it by the defense. It will be remembered that the defendant was tried on Thursday last on a charge growing out of the same circumstances or set of circumstances, and acquitted through a variance between the indictment and the proof, the charge then being forgery. This time the indictment was for uttering and disposing of the same instrument which he was then charged with having forged by changing its date.

Christian Jensen, the victim of the misfit pasteboard, was the first witness called by the prosecution (represented by Mr. Stephens). Before he began his statement counsel for the defense (Mr. Morse) objected to any evidence being given for the reason that the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute an offence, the question being whether a railway could sell limited tickets for less than the regular rates. If not, there was no defrauding.

The Court thought this a ground for demurrer, and overruled the objection.

The witness then proceeded. He bought the ticket from defendant on the 9th of December last. Noticed him placing tinglues on the ticket and changing the date. Gave seventy-five cents for it.

Cashier Brown took the ticket from Jensen and returned it as no good; then collected full fare.

Mr. Craig, agent of the company at Provo, showed by his record book that the ticket—good for a round trip to Salt Lake in nine days—was bought in his office on the August 1st. The regular rate was $2 each way, but this one sold for $3 the trip; it was the regular round round trip rate.

Mr. Pinder, of Ogden, had had a conversation with Gifford about changing the dates on passenger tickets, the latter showing that there was money in it. Witness asked him if he couldn't make money without resorting to such measures as this. He was in business with jeweleuer Isaac but not lately. The latter also explained how tinglues could be used effectively in the accomplishment of the purpose named, and showed up the whole performance. Gifford took $250 of my money and squandered it, and I once threatened him with the penitentiary if he did not do me justice.

The ticket, or rather coupon, was then admitted in evidence.

The defense put the defendant on the stand first. He is a ticket broker on Main Street, this city. He made a "general denial" of all the foregoing. Never used tinglues and didn't know what it would do. Had nothing to change tickets with.

Mr. Carrigan, who occupies the same office with Gifford, was familiar with the latter's dies, pigeon holes etc., and had never seen any such paraphernalia there as that spoken of.

Mr. McDowell was working for defendant in December last, and testified similarly to the previous witness.

The attorney for the defense then offered in evidence the record of the court containing the former trial and acquittal. This was objected to by the prosecution as immaterial.

Quite a discussion here took place over the question previously raised, participated in more or less indiscriminately by his honor and both the attorneys. The former held, and he had previously announced that it was one thing to forge an instrument in writing and another thing altogether to alter or dispose of that thing, while growing out of one transaction, they might, in fact, be committed by different persons and the conviction or acquittal of one would be no bar to the prosecution of other. If Jensen himself had passed the forged ticket with the full knowledge that it was so, he would also be guilty under the statute. The objection was sustained.

The arguments of counsel were concluded at 5 o'clock, and Judge Anderson at once charged the jury, who then retired.

AMUSEMENTS.

Our National Band at the Theatre—Coming Attractions.

THE U. S. Marine Band has been here. The lovers of music in Salt Lake have had the pleasure of listening to this celebrated musical organization. The Theatre was well filled at the matinee performance and in the evening many were unable to secure admittance. Everything was sold out.

The evening concert opened with a Wagnerian overture, which was played here by Gilmore's band, and an opportunity presented itself to compare the performances of two great musicians. Both are musical perfection very nearly, but while Gilmore's band is composed particularly for indoor concerts, the Marine band is the Marine Band seems to be selected with special regard to open air music.

The band has reached a high degree of virtuosity, and no amateur could be more enjoyable than were those last Saturday. Everything was encored.

A humorous piece called "Hard Rye," arranged by Mr. Sousa was unique and called forth much merriment. It consists of a number of well known good love tunes, and as the performers stalk their respective solos, they leave the stage, until the leader finds himself alone. Then in flies the band again playing a Scotch air.

The singing of Miss Marie Dorn, the "American Jenny Lind," was also greatly enjoyed. She possesses a voice remarkably pure in tone and of considerable range, and she has mastered the technique of the art in all its details. The most difficult passages were rendered by her seemingly without effort at all. She sang an aria from "La Sonnambula" and the overture from "Winds at Clamour" and was both times heartily applauded.

THE HOME DRAMATIC.

The appearance indeed and the following evenings of the Home Dramatic Club in the "Esmeralda" is a dramatic event which has been looked forward to with a great deal of interest. The list of characters is:

Mlle Jeanne Bonnaudin, a French sculptress, Ida Sacrison.

"ESMERALDA" AT BOUNTIFUL.

The Home Dramatic Club and Belle Gilbert open their conference season in the beautiful play of "Esmeralda" this evening. The club gave a performance in the Bountiful opera house Saturday night, and the piece caught on immediately, the house being packed with an audience that gathered from nearly all parts of Davis county. Miss Gilbert's portrayal of Esmeralda was especially admired, and each member of the company, particularly Miss Claridge, Mr. Wells, Mr. Young, Birdie Clawson, and Mr. Spencer were heartily applauded for their delineations.

Where Is He?

Frank Mahorney, of Crawfordsville, Indiana, has written to the journal for information regarding the whereabouts of his brother Ed. P. Mahorney, who left the Hooker Hale for Utah, three years ago. Any information regarding him will be gladly received.

BURGLARIES GALORE.

Particulars of Several of Them Withheld from the Public.

Another daring and successful burglary was committed between 6 and 7 o'clock last night at the residence of S. O. Dodds, at No. 130 South Eighth East street, while the family was temporarily absent. On their return a gold watch, a gold breast pin and a considerable amount of table silverware and a miscellaneous assortment of trinkets was found to be missing. Who the thieves are and where they are is the problem which the police are now trying to solve.

Several burglaries were committed last week and for reasons which can only be surmised they were kept from the ears of certain reporters. Among other places which were visited by the enterprising and ubiquitous burglar were Thomas Jennings' residence, W. A. Nelden & Company's drug store.

A GOLD DUST SWINDLE.

The "Precious Metal" Turned Out to Be Brass Filings.

THE ALLEGED OPERATOR ARRESTED

In the Penitentiary in This City, at Noon Today, by Officer O'Reilly.—A Missing Photographer.

About six weeks ago the pawn broking and jewelry firm of H. Bloomfield & Company, of Springfield, Missouri, was called upon by a couple of smooth confidence men, who represented that they had a considerable amount of gold dust for sale. Negotiations were at once entered into. A quantity of like "precious metal" was submitted for examination. The result was entirely satisfactory, and the firm paid the sharpers $700 for a small bag full of the dust. On receiving their money the confidence men left the establishment promptly and a member of the firm, congratulated himself on having purchased $700 worth of gold dust for $1,000, and in his glee made a second examination of his valuable bargain. The investigation was fatal to his joy, for it was soon ascertained that the "go to dust" was nothing more than brass filings. The Springfield officers were apprised of the swindle, but were unable to apprehend the guilty parties.

Suspicion, however, rested upon one Reuben Gordon who was traced to this city. The officers here were notified and kept a sharp look out for the scoundrel and finally he was located and his movements closely watched. Damaging evidence was daily procured, and today the vigilance of Officer O'Reilly and his assistant culminated in the arrest of Gordon and a brother in the penitentiary of this city. Officer O'Reilly at once escorted his prisoner to the city hall, where Reuben Gordon was searched and an inventory made of his personal effects. He had in his possession a fine gold watch, chain and locket and $20.

To a News reporter he said he was 32 years of age, a Russian Jew, and had no fixed occupation or residence, but simply travelled all the time, remaining a short time in one place. He said he knew of no gold dust swindle, but that he was not the man. He simply introduced the "operator" to Bloomfield & Company.

Jacob Gordon, brother of the accused, only arrived here a few days ago, while Reuben has been in the city for several weeks. Jacob was discharged on recommendation of Special Agency.

The Springfield officers have been apprised by telegraph of the arrest, and Gordon is held subject to their orders.

A MISSING PHOTOGRAPHER.

The police are making a persistent and thorough search for a missing photographer late of the firm of Morgan and Chen, on State street. His name is Oscar Chen. He is alleged to have taken with him a "new outfit" and what money he could collect, leaving his partner, Mr. Morgan, to mourn his unceremonious and unexpected departure. When he left the establishment it was on the pretext that he was going to Brighton to "fix the photographing act" for Mr. Eli Sheldon. His disappearance occurred on the 1st inst.

TODAY'S POLICE COURT.

The following business was transacted in the Police court today:

Geo. A. Smith, accused of driving on the sidewalk was discharged with the admonition to do so no more.

Mary J. Dudley, a disreputable female was convicted of drunkenness and fined $5.

Wm. Jones left $5 to appear and spares to the charge of committing a nuisance.

Charles J. Hinckley and John White were fined $5 each for inebriety.

Frank Inette, forfeited $10 for failing to appear and sell the rule of a prosecuting witness.

The Necessity of the Times.

Inventive faculty will not have reached high tide until some one perfects an envelope flap warranted to stick. One of the considerable discomforts of life takes the form of a non-adhesive envelope that allows the envelope upon which it is placed to peel open again and again as it is pressed down, the result being that the letter writer is driven hither and yon for seal envelopes. And the finer the quality of the stationery the more trifle fly in the wake of the envelope.

If they are trusted to the mails without an adhesive of envelopes, they may be depended upon to arrive at their destination invariably open—or accessible to the meddlesome individual, who in spite of our civilization does exist, who is capable of prying into other people's sweetheart's love and tampering with a seal. A patchwork envelope is one of the necessities of the times.—Boston Commonwealth.

The Value of Pearls.

Nothing varies so much in value as pearls. With them fashion affects the market constantly. Sometimes white ones are sought, while other tints at intervals are in demand. For some years pink has been the season's fancy. A fine specimen, worth $100, will fetch $1,000 perhaps if another can be got to match it perfectly.—Kansas City Times.

When to Buy Shoes.

A customer with tender feet should be fitted with shoes late in the afternoon. The feet are then at their utmost size, for activity enlarges them.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.
